BENDER ON STAND DENIES TRYING TO FREE RUTHERFORD

Alleged Prosecutor, on Trial for Compounding Felony, Disclaims Interest in Criminal Case.

DID NOT "SUSPECT" A PLEA OF GUILTY

He and Six Character Witnesses Wind Up Defense
Testimony—State Rests
After Rebuttal.

A Samuel Bender, on the witness stand for 90 minutes today in his own defense against a charge of compounding a felony in the Rutherford murder case, made sweeping denials that he had anything to do with the settlement of the criminal case against William Allen Scott Rutherford, slayer of a Majestic Hotel bellboy.

The defense rested at 11:20 a. m. with Bender's testimony and that of six character witnesses. It had been forced to present its case by Judge Hayes' action, late yesterday, in overruling a demurrer to the State's evidence.

The State took only 20 minutes for rebuttal. The case will go to the jury this afternoon.

A dapper little man, nattily attired in a blue seersucker suit, Bender faced the jury defiantly, described by the State as having been the dual role of special prosecutor and damage-suit attorney in the Rutherford case, collecting $5000 from John Rutherford for the use of himself and client after Allen Rutherford went free on bail, denied on the stand, as he previously had in statements to reporters, that he was a special prosecutor in the Rutherford case.

Bender's presence in court this week has interested the public, and he has been the subject of much speculation for Circuit Judge and for re-election to the Republican City Committee from a downtown ward next Tuesday's primary.

A crowded courtroom listened while Bender asserted that he did not even suspect Rutherford would be allowed to make a plea and pay a fine until I appeared in court on May 5 and the announcement was made.

Sidener Among Spectators.

With Bender as the center of defense testimony, the two attorneys, Mr. Frumberg and Harry Sidener, proceeded to question him, receiving a series of negative answers straight down the line, while a group of attorneys interested in the case pressed close about the bar to not to miss any of his statements. Among the spectators were Attorney Sidener, with whom Bender was jointly indicted, and upon obtaining a severance, named in an information on the same charges. Sidener's trial has been set for next Wednesday.

"What connection did you have with the second-degree murder case against William Allen Scott Rutherford for the shooting of Jack Tucker?" "I had no connection whatever."

"What connection had you with Mrs. Tillie Tucker?" "I represented her in damage suits against Rutherford and the Majestic Operating Co. The latter suit is still pending."

"Were you present at the indictment?" "Yes, but only as a spectator. Rudolph Schneider handled the case for the State. All I did was to question one witness."

In court to hear evidence.

"Did you appear in Circuit Judge Hayes' court during the case?" "Yes. I went there to hear the evidence that I might better present my civil case. I was not interested in the criminal case."

"Any other kind of prosecutor in the case?"

The State's objection to the form of the question was overruled. The question was never special prosecutor. Sidener was interested in the criminal case. I didn't have anything to do with it."

STOCKS CONTINUE TO RISE IN SPITE OF RESISTANCE; 2,500,000 SHARES SOLD

NEW YORK, July 30.—With U. S. Steel common and General Motors at new high records, stock trading continued at a feverish pace today although the general upward movement encountered stiff resistance. Total sales again approximated 2,500,000 shares.

After selling as high as 194 1/2, General Motors encountered a flood of realizing sales which carried it back to 186 1/2 where support again appeared. Reports of an impending split-up of the shares and other extraordinary heightened speculative interest in the stock. Meanwhile U. S. Steel mounted several points to a new peak above 149, holding near this level while dozens of other industrial issues yielded to profit-taking.

Selling activities in the late trading were promoted partly by the calling of bank loans and a rise in the call money rate to 5 per cent.

DURANT AMASSES NEW FORTUNE IN GENERAL MOTORS

Rise of 12 Points to Record
Price of $191 Gives $1-500,000 in Profits to Market Operator.

TWICE STRIPPED BY THIS SAME STOCK

Many Believe Fortune No.
3 of Founder of Corporation Is as Large as Ever

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The great fortune of William C. Durant, most successful and spectacular stock market operator of modern times, was swelled by another $1,500,000 when shares of the General Motors Corporation soared 12 points yesterday to a record price of $191. In this one stock, his favorite, Durant has made around $20,000,000 in the last year, according to authoritative estimates.

It is fitting that the shy, silent little operator should rise this particular stock back to fortune's crest, for upon two previous occasions his undaunted faith in its value had stripped him of wealth. Only six years ago he lost control of the corporation for the second time, his huge holdings of stock being "taken over" by Morgan-Dupont interests.

Durant founded the General Motors Corporation, made his first fortune out of it, and was deposed from the presidency in 1910. The second fortune, also founded chiefly by General Motors, was reputed to have amounted to $100,000,000 prior to the 1920 depression, in which he met disaster. Many believe that the present Durant wealth, which is fortune No. 3, is as large as ever before.

Profits Total $8,000,000.

In the striking advance of General Motors stock, which began in 1925 and ended temporarily last March, Durant carried 235,000 shares, the average price of which was between $70 and $80, according to information from reliable sources. On that move the stock crossed $150 a share. It is not known how much he sold, or what the average selling price was, but he is believed to have made about $12,000,000.

Following the spring reaction, the present record-breaking upward move got under way with General Motors around $115 a share. Durant at that time is understood to have had a line of 120,000 shares. He has, of course, sold out and out of the stock since then, but it is believed his holdings are still around 120,000 shares, and that his profit on the move has totaled between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000.

While Durant's name is now a thing of the past, in Wall street, his methods are strikingly different from those of most great operators of the past. He has made money, not through whole- sale manipulation, but through careful backing of a compar- atively limited number of stocks of great merit. His position in General Motors is typical.

Faith in Corporation Unlimited.

Despite his ups and downs, he has believed for almost a quarter of a century that the potential growth of this corporation was almost unlimited.

His present represents a dream come true, even if its fulfillment has come from other hands than his. It is estimated that the company this year will earn profits of more than $20,000,000, or around $34 a share.

Wall street in general now sees what Durant and a few others saw long ago, and in the last few days, following publication of a report showing record earnings for the first six months of the year, the buying of General Motors has been a wild scramble. The stock shot up 7 1/2 points Wednesday. Yesterday more than 350,000 shares changed hands, and the advance of $12 a share represented an aggregate market appreciation of $38,800,000 in the total stock outstanding.

Big Gains From Other Stocks.

General Motors is not the only stock on which the Durant profits have been enormous. In the 1924-1925 buying of United States Cast Iron Pipe, he was credited with having made $10,000,000, holding approximately 60,000 of the company's 120,000 shares of stock outstanding. This year's action of the same stock has been scarcely less important, for it has shot up from a low of $150 a share, to a high, thus far, of $245 a share.

He also is reported to have taken handsome profits from time to time out of Nash Motor, Hudson Motor,

NASSAU, BEAUTY SPOT OF BAHAMAS, HARD HIT BY STORM

Uprooted Trees, Wrecked Buildings and Splintered Boats Washed Into City by Waves
Clutter Streets—150 Persons Missing.

By the Associated Press.

NASSAU, New Providence Island, Bahamas, July 30.—Whipped by wind and wave, and with more than 150 persons missing, the Bahamas Islands remained virtually isolated from communication with the outside world today while further count was taken of the toll of destruction from the worst hurricane in the recorded history of the islands.

The majority of those missing are believed to have been drowned with the sponge fishing fleet, which has not been seen since it set sail three days before the West Indian hurricane struck the islands Monday night.

Scene of Desolation at Nassau.

Nassau, the beautiful capital of the Bahamas group, with a population of more than 12,000, presents a picture of desolation. Debris from uprooted trees, wrecked houses and splintered boats washed up by the waves, clutter the state highways. Virtually all business has been suspended. Abandoning efforts to repair the ruin, Nassau turned first to search for the missing sponge fleet and to ascertain the conditions on other islands under her administration.

Only three fishing smacks were left in Nassau Harbor from 60 craft moored there Sunday. Between 150 and 200 sloops are missing with the sponge fleet.

Among the vessels known to have sunk in the harbor here was the 80-ton yacht Isosceles, formerly the Shamrock IV. Sir Thomas Lipton's famous American cup challenger. It lies under 40 feet of water beside numerous small craft varying from sailboats to small yachts.

Nassau received her first word of outside damage from newspaper men arriving in an airplane from Miami late Wednesday, and in turn supplied first information of her own condition.

Into Wrecked Zone by Airplane.

Hal I. Layton of the Miami Daily News and R. F. Mitchell, Miami correspondent of the Associated Press, were the newspaper men who pierced the wall of silence between Nassau and the outer world. Their flight by airplane was not without adventure. Forced down on a deserted island when fuel gave out, they were rescued by a chance seaplane in search of a missing yacht which supplied sufficient fuel to resume the flight to Nassau. Arriving at Nassau, the newspaper men found the wireless down and were unable to communicate with radio stations in Miami.

The correspondents plane subsequently flew through the outer islands of the group, several of which revealed evidences of the severe storm.

Great Isaac Light, Britain's northernmost light of the group, was hit full force. The roofs of the only two wooden houses were stripped off, while the lighthouse showed a large crack in its sides. The promontory was stripped of all foliage and was hardly more than a denuded rock.

TWO MEN MILES APART KILLED BY ELECTRICITY

Experts Think Charge at Nitro,

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 30.—Two men, 32 miles apart, were electrocuted yesterday apparently by the same charge of electricity.

L. A. Palletto, a lineman for the Appalachian Power Co., was killed at a substation at Nitro, near here, when he tapped a wire carrying 44,000 volts. At Gauley Bridge, Okey McCreery, an employee of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., while working on a telephone line away from all high tension wires, was electrocuted at almost the same instant.

Experts suggest that the electricity discharged into the air at Nitro when Palletto was killed jumped to a telephone line and killed McCreery.

LONDON, July 30.—The mystery of the disappearance of Vice Admiral Sir Guy Gaunt was solved yesterday when Sir Richard Cruise, a divorcee, alleged that she eloped with Gaunt last year. Sir Richard testified Sir Guy was his wife's friend before their marriage in 1913, and told him just before the elopement that he intended to leave the country because he was too fond of Lady Margery. Sir Guy was British naval attaché at Washington during the war.

SHIPWRECKED KITTEN'S 'MEOW' STOPS LINER IN MID-ATLANTIC

Little Siamese Animal Is Rescued

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 30.—From out of the fog came a shrill "meow." A bell sounded on the great liner and a boat was lowered. Not many yards away was a floating hatch cover on which sat a Siamese kitten, tawny-haired with black tips on ears and feet.

Capt. R. B. Lowrie of the Dollar liner, President Garfield, reported the rescue yesterday after the Garfield docked at a world cruise. The incident occurred 800 miles east of Boston during a thick fog. Prince Mahigool, son of the King of Siam, who has come to the United States to study medicine, according to Lowrie, verified the rescued kitten as an honest-to-goodness Siamese. The kitten still believed to be aboard the Garfield, having been adopted by the crew as a mascot.

STUDEBAKER GAVE $20,000 TO SMITH CAMPAIGN FUND

Nominee's Manager Dis-

EX-CONGRESSMAN DOWN FOR $25,000

Allen F. Moore Previously Had Refused to Name
Donors in Compliance With Their Wishes.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Allen F. Moore, campaign manager for Frank L. Smith, successful candidate in the Illinois senatorial primary, decided today to furnish the Senate Campaign Funds Committee names of all contributors to the Smith political fund.

Moore disclosed that Clement Studebaker of South Bend, Ind., had contributed $20,000, and former Representative Ira C. Coppy of Aurora, Ill., had given $25,000 in two installments.

Other contributors included Daniel Schuyler, Chicago attorney, $2500; Eugene Pike, $1000; Judge Stranely of Chicago, $500, and Nick Kachavola, on behalf of Greek merchants of Chicago, $1000.

Studebaker Much Interested.

The Smith manager said that Studebaker met him in the Congress Hotel here on the occasion of the Indiana dinner last winter and had stated that he was very much interested in his friend, Frank L. Smith.

"He asked me to call at his office, which I did, and he gave me $10,000. Later he gave another $10,000," Moore said.

(Studebaker is president of the Illinois Power & Light Co., owning public utility companies all over Illinois. Smith is chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission, which has jurisdiction over utility companies.)

In making known his decision to give the names of the contributors, Moore said that some of the men for "social, political and business reasons" had requested him not to reveal the contributions.

Moore told the committee that the only obligation imposed upon him by Smith in the campaign was that "I was not to obligate him in any way."

Moore, Illinois Republican national committeeman, said he knew nothing of the report that Smith managers had offered Charles Scendry of East St. Louis, president of the Illinois Foreign Voters' League, $6000 for the support of that organization.

Three Away Scendry Letter.

"In going through my files I came across an unanswered letter from Scendry under date of July 22, of this year, asking for a conference with me," Moore said. "My secretary received it and threw it in a basket."

The witness added that if the matter had come to his attention he would have told Scendry that Smith already had the support of the foreign voters and so did not need his assistance.

The little black memorandum book to which Moore referred when he first appeared Monday was handed to the committee. It was in cipher, the witness explaining that he kept it in his desk for noting interviews with down State leaders who called on him.

Opening the books at random, he read one cipher that a leader asked for $2800 for campaign purposes in his county and was given $600. The committee did not press for all details from the book and Moore was excused after being on the stand only half an hour.

James A. White, United States Marshal at Murphysboro, Ill., testified that he had charge of organization work for Senator McKigley in five down-state counties and that he personally spent $1475 of his own money, for which he was not reimbursed. White could not say how much money was raised in the five counties—Alexander, Union, Polk, Perry and Randolph. There were local organizations in each of the counties, he added.

Taking up his own county of Jackson, the witness testified that there were hired workers at the polls, receiving from $5 to $15 a day. He said that the $1475 he gave went for workers and automobile hire.

White exhausted the list of witnesses on hand and the committee adjourned the hearing to Tuesday to enable Senator Reed to fill week-end engagements in Missouri and Senator La Follette to fill such engagements in Wisconsin.

LORRAINE MANVILLE GOULD, New York actress, and her brother, Thomas F. Manville, each of whom gets $8,776,473 from the estate of their father, Thomas F. Manville Sr., late partner in the asbestos manufacturing firm of Johns-Manville.

Manville died last night at $5000 bail. He informed investigators four years ago he had seen Mrs. Hall and her brother return home on the night of the slaying. Chief Justice William M. Gummere today fixed bail for Mrs. Hall at $7500 on each of the two charges of murder for which she was arrested Wednesday night. The hearing was held at the justice's summer home at Point Pleasant, N. J. Gov. Moore announced the appointment of State Senator Simpson as special prosecutor to direct the case against Mrs. Hall.

A youth about 20 years old, dressed as a farm hand, was taken to the headquarters of the State Constabulary here today for questioning. His name was given as a point of contact for the slaying. Information about him was withheld.

New Evidence Kept Secret.

State officials today sought at least two more witnesses. The new evidence on which the action is based is held secret, other than that which involves moral turpitude. Biebler cited a case from the Old Testament.

"When Noah, after the deluge, drank of the wine from his newly acquired vineyard and experienced the first recorded intoxication, the circumstances were inquired into and, without ostracism, the unfortunate incident was closed. Noah's death at the age of 950 was not conclusive that the sin of his youth was punished by a shortened life."

"Many in olden days erred through wine, and drunkenness was punished and censured, but so far as we have ascertained, never until the decision of the case of State vs. Biebler has any theory, monarchical or democracy found it necessary to take away as much as even the value of the right to earn a livelihood in a 'little Iberian village' or the City of Moline, Kan., without an inquiry into the facts."

"In the light of the decision one can but wonder what effect it would have had upon the brilliant membership of the Sanhedrin had some local peace officer happened upon the marriage festivities at Sana after the performance of the first recorded miracle by 'The Man Nobody Knows.'"

Biebler was disbarred July 10. The Supreme Court gave an opinion that "an attorney ought to be a help and not a hindrance in this forward moving attitude toward the suppression of intoxicants."

TOPEKA, Kan., July 30.—Disbarred because a jug of whisky was found on the back porch of his home, Roy Biebler, Moline lawyer, turned from Kansas law books to the Bible in petitioning the State Supreme Court for reinstatement.

Declaring mere possession of liquor does not involve moral turpitude, Biebler cited a case from the Old Testament.

"When Noah, after the deluge, drank of the wine from his newly acquired vineyard and experienced the first recorded intoxication, the circumstances were inquired into and, without ostracism, the unfortunate incident was closed. HIGH TAXES FORCED SALE OF ROMNEY'S 'LADY DAVENPORT'

Sir William Explains Disposal of Possession Priced by Family
Since 1782.

LONDON, July 30.—Heavy taxation is blamed by Sir William Bromley-Davenport for the sale of the famous Romney portrait of his great-grandmother, Lady Davenport, to Duveen brothers for $58,000 ($281,300).

"The utterly appalling character of modern taxation," he said today, "makes it quite impossible to live in big houses under the old conditions, and such sales are inevitable. The picture has been a prized family possession since 1782, and modern conditions alone led to its sale."

In peculiar contrast to the sale of the Lady Davenport portrait yesterday was the sale today of another Romney portrait—of John Wesley—which brought only six guineas. It is asserted by the Duveen brothers that no purchaser is in sight for the Davenport Romney, but that it probably will be sold in America.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 30.—William Phillips, factory worker, has joined Mrs. Edward Wheeler Hall in the county jail, where she is held without bail, accused of the murder four years ago of her clergyman husband and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, wife of the sexton in her husband's church.

Phillips, who was a night watchman at the New Jersey College for Women, a few blocks from the Hall home, where the bodies were found side by side under a crab-apple tree, was arrested last night as a material witness and held in $5000 bail. He informed investigators four years ago he had seen Mrs. Hall and her brother return home on the night of the slaying.

Chief Justice William M. Gummere today fixed bail for Mrs. Hall at $7500 on each of the two charges of murder for which she was arrested Wednesday night. Former Witness Recalled.

Mrs. Jane N. Gibson, who said four years ago she saw Mrs. Hall and a man quarrel with Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills, then saw the shooting, has been questioned again. She reiterated her story.

Unless the April grand jury is recalled or Mrs. Hall gets bail she faces the prospect of remaining in jail until a new grand jury is called in September.

Although she insists that her arrest is ridiculous, Mrs. Hall makes the best of her situation. She has a room with barred windows on the second floor of the jail; her meals are sent in, and she spends much of her time in conference with her three lawyers. She is 49 years old and is reputed to be worth $1,750,000.

Missing Investigator Sought.

It was learned in Trenton that a warrant has been issued for former State Trooper Henry Dickman, investigator assigned to continue the Hall-Mills inquiry single handed after all other troops had been recalled from the case in October, 1922. Dickman is sought on a bad check charge involving a Jersey City bank, and on suspicion that he has knowledge of who killed the Rev. Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills. The search has been going on for him ever since he disappeared in June, 1923, is now under way with fresh vigor.

Dickman left without collecting three months' pay due him from the constabulary, or $100 due in expense money. For several months before he disappeared reports came to State Police Headquarters here that he had large sums of money and took trips to Canada and other distant points. The state police believe Dickman learned the identity of the slayer or slayers, and was bought off.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—On reconvening next Tuesday after adjournment tonight, the Reed Campaign Fund Investigating Committee of the Senate plans to go into the details of a story told late yesterday by Timothy P. McCarthy, an East St. Louis newspaper reporter, that Frank L. Smith's campaign managers offered $6000 to Charles Scendry of East St. Louis for the support of the Foreign Voters' League of Illinois for Smith in the recent senatorial primary.

The offer was made at a dinner attended by a number of persons, McCarthy said, and on the day following, Scendry, who was described as a Democrat, announced the support of the league for Smith. At the same time, according to McCarthy, he exhibited $2800 in cash, stating, "We have declared for Smith."

Subpenas for a number of persons named by McCarthy as attending the dinner have been ordered and this phase of the investigation may extend over a day or two, McCarthy said, those present at the negotiations included a man named Faulkner, the Smith manager in East St. Louis, a man named Ames, and a coal operator named Lumaghi.

L. F. Lumaghi Denies Connection. Louis F. Lumaghi, president of a coal company, and Allen T. Spivey, editor of the East St. Louis Daily Journal, have denied that they were connected with the Smith organization in St. Clair County. The committee also dipped briefly yesterday into the Republican senatorial contest in Iowa last month, calling to the stand Smith W. Brookhart, who won the nomination from Senator Cummins after the Senate had rejected him (Brookhart) in favor of Daniel P. Stock, Democrat. Brookhart said his managers raised and expended less than $6000 and that while he had no first-hand knowledge of expenditures on behalf of Cummins he would say that no more was spent over the rest of the state, than was expended in one district. Cummins' total would not exceed $50,000.

Calling half a dozen witnesses in the Illinois primary in addition to McCarthy, the committee failed to uncover any appreciable amounts of money put into that contest. On the contrary, it found there had been a duplication of one $25,000 item and this reduced the known total to date to $49,835.47.

Mrs. McCormick Aided McKinley. John R. Butman, a publicity man employed by Senator McKinley, testified that it was his understanding that Mrs. Medill McCormick, widow of the Senator, had authorized the expenditure of from $8000 to $10,000 in foreign language newspaper advertising on behalf of McKinley.

From Palmer Anderson, United States Marshal for the Northern district of Illinois, a McKinley supporter, the committee learned that about 75 Deputy United States Marshals actually did serve at the polls in Cook County on primary day due to the fact that they could not be notified that the Department of Justice had rescinded its order permitting them to serve.

Expenditures of the Crowe-Bartlett faction of Republicans in Cook County were testified to by States' Attorney Robert E. Crowe and Charles V. Barrett who head the organization. The former disclosed that he personally deserted McKinley only after McKinley had disregarded his plea to vote against American adherence to the World Court.

Spent $100,000 for McKinley. J. W. Stipes of Champaign, joint manager for McKinley, told of spending $100,000 which had been furnished him by Henry J. Green, McKinley's personal attorney, but he had no permanent records of expenditures and from such memoranda as he had, he could account for only about $60,000 of the total which he paid out for literature, mailing, advertising, workers and the like.

George Schwaner of Springfield, United States Collector of Internal Revenue for this district, testified to spending $5700 of McKinley's money and from $700 to $1000 of his own in his country. Workers at the polls in his county drew "the union rate" of $10 a day, he said.

McCarthy Tells Story. When called yesterday afternoon McCarthy testified that L. E. Fisher managed McKinley's campaign, and that he had a man named Faulkner was manager there for Smith. Getting into the Scendry matter, he said that Faulkner had approached Scendry on the subject during a dinner at Groves restaurant in East St. Louis.

McCarthy said Faulkner had requested him to get Scendry to attend the dinner. Others present included a man named Philip H. Hitchcock and East St. Louis newspaper men.

"Ames plainly said his objective was to get Scendry to make a tour of speeches," McCarthy said. "Scendry was a known Democrat and so did not like to advocate the nomination of a Republican."

McCarthy said there were several private conferences around the dinner table.

"After Scendry talked, saying he was a Democrat," McCarthy continued, "he finally said he would for a cash consideration."

"How much was mentioned?" "Six thousand dollars."

Leaders "To Take Care Of." McCarthy said Scendry told the Smith leaders that he would have to "take care of" the leaders of seven foreign language organizations, asking up to the state, that they would pay for workers and campaign expenses out of what he gave them.

So far as McCarthy knew no agreement was reached at the dinner and as it wound up, Ames told Scendry: "I'll see you in the morning."

The next day, McCarthy said, Scendry issued a statement that the Foreign Voters' League would support Smith.

"Did Scendry get the money?" Reed asked. "I don't know, but he showed me $2800 in cash when he came to my office to make the announcement," McCarthy said.

"Did he tell you where he got the money?" "No sir. He showed it to me and said, 'We've indorsed Smith, Irwin and Duval.'"

"Where did he take the money from?" "It was wrapped up in a newspaper."

"Was Scendry a man of such means that he usually carried that much money around with him?" McCarthy said he was a court interpreter who spoke seven languages.

The witness said there was liquor at the dinner, which the guests supplied.

Says Lumaghi Was Present. McCarthy said a coal operator named Lumaghi was present at the dinner.

"Did he say anything about guaranteeing this $6000?" Reed asked.

"He said, 'It was there; that's all.'"

McCarthy testified that after the primary his paper received an anonymous letter saying, "The two had received $15,000 to swing Madison and St. Clair counties Smithward."

"I asked Scendry who the 'two' might be and he said the only ones he could think of were Fred Gerold, Allen Spivey and Ed Miller."

"Do you know of any money paid out in the campaign other than the $6000?" Reed asked.

"No, sir."

McCarthy then was excused.

Reed declared then that the testimony in relation to Gerold, Spivey and Miller appeared to be hearsay, and that the committee could not have hearsay evidence in the record.

Gerold Calls McCarthy's Testimony "All Imagination."

Fred E. Gerold of 525 Washington place, East St. Louis, declared today McCarthy's testimony concerning $15,000, was "all imagination."

"I had charge of the Smith forces in East St. Louis," Gerold said, "and I know no amount like $15,000 was spent here."

Gerold declined to tell what sum was spent in behalf of Smith, but declared he would produce an itemized statement of expenses if called before the committee as a witness.

Allen T. Spivey, editor of the East St. Louis Journal, which supported Smith, characterized McCarthy's testimony as "all lies and unfounded on facts." Spivey admitted he did not know how much was spent, explaining he was not connected with the Smith organization, and had supported him because of their long-standing friendship.

Inquiry at the offices of the clerks of St. Clair and Madison counties today disclosed that there are $5,000 registered voters in the two counties.

The President received an informal call at the office yesterday from Representative Snell of Potsdam, N. Y., chairman of the House Rules Committee. Snell said the country was very favorably disposed toward Mr. Coolidge and that Northern New York, a Republican stronghold, was stronger than ever for him.

Frank W. Stearns of Boston, close friend of the President, is in White Pine Camp for a visit of indefinite duration. Mrs. Stearns is expected to join him here later.

FARM BUREAU AID LAW UPHOLD
Supreme Court Ruling Favors Statute Passed in 1919.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 30.—Constitutionality of a State law, passed in 1919, authorizing counties of Missouri to appropriate money toward the establishment and maintenance of county farm bureaus was upheld today by Division No. 2 of the State Supreme Court, in an opinion by Judge Robert W. Otto.

Validity of the act was attacked by the County Court of Jasper County, in a suit brought by the Jasper County Farm Bureau to collect the unpaid balance of an appropriation made by the county for support of the bureau in 1921 and 1922. The County Court contended the law permitted appropriation of public funds for a private purpose and undertaking, and therefore conflicted with the Constitution. Judge Otto ruled that county farm bureaus had been recognized by the Legislature as public societies, and that they had done a public work in the advancement of agriculture. All the judges concurred, except Judge Graves, who was absent.

THIRD OF STOKES' MILLIONS WON BY WIDOW, CHILDREN

Litigation Over Property of Late Hotel Magnate Ended by Settlement Involving $1,500,000.

CONTEST OVER WILL TO BE WITHDRAWN

W. E. D. Stokes Jr. Agrees to Share With Half-Brother and Half-Sister Interests in All Holdings

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, July 30.—A series of legal battles, which began in 1919, has ended with a complete victory for Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, widow of W. E. D. Stokes, who yesterday authorized settlement of the contest brought by Mrs. Stokes on behalf of her children, Helen Muriel, 11 years old, and James, 10, against the executors of her husband's will, and against W. E. D. Stokes Jr., son of Stokes and Mrs. Rita de Acosta Lydig, who divorced him in 1920.

By the settlement, W. E. D. Stokes Jr., principal beneficiary of the will, has agreed to turn over to his half-brother and half-sister one-third of the estate and a corresponding interest in property owned by his father during the last 20 years. This amount is unofficially estimated at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

Independent Claims Settled. The settlement affects two independent claims of Mrs. Stokes as guardian for her children and is covered by two separate agreements. One subject is the contest of her husband's will by the children and the other is a controversy between her, as guardian, and W. E. D. Stokes Jr., individually, based upon her claim that the Hotel Ansonia and many other parcels of improved real estate in New York City and in other states, including the Wilkes-Patchen stock farm in Kentucky, were improperly transferred by the father to the son and that her children are entitled to an interest in all these assets.

Surrogate Foley's order approves the settlement, so far as it relates to the affairs of the estate. The other agreement, which is referred to in the petition of Mrs. Stokes, will be subject to the approval of the probate and county judge of Denver, where Mrs. Stokes and her children reside.

That part of the settlement which concerns the estate and the withdrawal of the contest of the will also has been approved by George L. Donnellan, special guardian for the children, who was appointed by the Surrogate and who also filed objections to the will.

The Plan of Control.

Under the terms of each agreement, the following plan of control is provided: A corporation is to be organized to be known as the Kesco Corporation, under the laws of New York, with a share capital of $4,000,000, consisting of 40,000 shares of the par value of $100 each. The executors, after payment of the debts, are to immediately transfer the estate assets to this corporation and are to receive in payment 1000 of these shares, of which 200 are to be allotted to W. E. D. Stokes Jr. and 1200 to Mrs. Stokes as guardian.

By the terms of the individual agreement between Stokes and Mrs. Stokes, as guardian, the former is to transfer all the stocks and bonds, the ownership of the Ansonia Hotel and of the other parcels of improved real estate in New York City, the stock farm in Lexington, Ky., properties in New Jersey and the securities of the Chesapeake & Western Railroad Corporation, which is to issue in payment thereof 36,000 shares of its stock, of which 24,000 shares are to be issued to Stokes and 12,000 shares to Mrs. Stokes, as guardian.

KING BORIS MAY WED ITALIAN PRINCESS

Betrothal of Bulgaria Ruler to Giovanna Reported by Geneva Correspondent.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, July 30.—Reuter's Geneva correspondent says he learns from Sofia that the betrothal of King Boris of Bulgaria to Princess Giovanna, third daughter of the Italian sovereigns, is "considered an accomplished fact."

King Boris, the only bachelor sovereign in Europe, left Bulgaria early this month ostensibly for a holiday, but it was later intimated by Premier Llapcheff that he was seeking a bride.

"Every young man of the King's age, 32, naturally desires to meet his mate," the Premier said, "but nothing definite has been settled in this regard. The King is absolutely free to act in the matter in accordance with his own good will."

There have been insistent rumors that Boris would seek an alliance with Princess Giovanna, who is in her nineteenth year, notwithstanding the difference in their religion. The Princess, as a member of the House of Savoy, is a Catholic, while Boris is of the Orthodox faith.

Boris is at present in Switzerland. He is traveling incognito as "Count Boris" and his movements have been largely kept secret. He is not reported to have visited Rome since leaving Sofia, although it is known he was at some of the northern Italian lake resorts.

By the Associated Press. GENEVA, July 30.—King Boris' brief visit to Geneva yesterday passed almost unobserved. It was only after his departure that it became known that the Bulgarian sovereign had been here and had visited the headquarters of the League of Nations. He observed the strictest incognito under the name of Count Boris.

Boris was dressed in a plain traveling suit, and lunched as an ordinary citizen at a popular restaurant in the beautiful park of Eaux Vives on the outskirts of the city. The party included Prince Cyril, Boris' brother; two members of the King's suite, and the Bulgarian Charge d'Affaires, Boris was in the best of spirits, and expressed himself as delighted with his tour.

Nothing happened, however, regarding whether he intended to visit his father, former King Ferdinand, who resides at Coburg, Germany.

Higlin died of wounds suffered when he and two others alleged to have been running a still fled when Grooms and W. L. Dally, Marshal at Arbyrd, raided the place and shot at them.

I. C. C. SAYS GOULD RUINED D. & R. G. TO BUILD A NEW ROAD

Financial Troubles All Due to Assumption of Western Pacific Obligations, Report States.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The Interstate Commerce Commission held today that the insolventcies and receiverships of the Western Pacific and the Denver & Rio Grande railroads "were all traceable to one source, the assumption in 1905 by the Denver companies of obligations with respect to the Western Pacific and its securities which were beyond their abilities to fulfill."

This conclusion was announced in reporting completion of the commission's five-year investigation into the financial operations and practices of the Western Pacific and Denver & Rio Grande railroads, which was backed by the Denver companies to complete the Gould chain of railroads across the country, the commission asserted that the enormous losses by stockholders and bondholders and the long period of impaired railroad service followed as the natural economic results of that one ill-advised undertaking.

Traversed Unprofitable Region. "The greater part of the Western Pacific railroad," the commission said, "traversed a mountainous and desert country which was utterly unable to contribute any substantial amount of traffic. Ample railroad facilities already existed for traffic moving between the Pacific Coast and all territory east of the Rocky Mountains."

The report declared that in order to make good the operating deficit during the Western Pacific's stage of adolescence, Gould "bound that burden upon other roads of his system with little concern to whether or not they could bear it without impairment of the ability to serve the public adequately over their own rails."

The early activities of Gould and Jeffrey (E. T. Jeffrey, president of the Old Denver) in initiating the Western Pacific project," said the commission, "were carried on by use of funds and upon the credit of the Old Denver without the authority of the company's directors or stockholders. If the project was undertaken as a personal venture such misuse of company funds cannot be too severely denounced, and this statement is made with full recognition that the loans obtained from and upon the credit of the Old Denver were later repaid."

"If the early initiation of the project was on behalf of the Old Denver, the undertaking was unauthorized and the use of company funds and credit in that undertaking was likewise unauthorized."

No Personal Profit to Officers. The commission found no evidence that the insolventcies of the Western Pacific and the New Denver were brought about for the personal profit of the road's officers, but added that shortly after the Missouri Pacific established control over the Denver companies, those companies "thereafter profitably and conservatively managed, were committed to an unwise speculation which was intended to benefit all railroads of the Gould system, whereas its risks could be borne by the Denver companies alone."

That such a situation could have been brought about through ownership of only 30 per cent of a railroad's stock," the report continued, "is illustrative of the inequities which were formerly possible within a railroad system controlled through interlocking directorates."

No order was entered in connection with the investigation, although the proceeding was described as "for the purpose of determining the manner and method in which the business of these companies had been or was being conducted, with a view to the making of a report and such order or orders as might be proper in connection with their accounts and practices and the issuance by them of securities."

AUTO FATALITY, ACCIDENTAL

Coroner's Jury Investigates Collision Fatal to Edmund Doswald.

A verdict of accident was returned today by a Coroner's jury investigating the death of Edmund Doswald, 43 years old, 2855 Kookuk avenue, who died yesterday at city hospital of a fractured skull.

Boris was dressed in a plain traveling suit, and lunched as an ordinary citizen at a popular restaurant in the beautiful park of Eaux Vives on the outskirts of the city. The party included Prince Cyril, Boris' brother; two members of the King's suite, and the Bulgarian Charge d'Affaires, Boris was in the best of spirits, and expressed himself as delighted with his tour.

NEW DEMOCRATIC ORGANIZATION

Effort to Be Made to Get Party Voter to Polls.

A new organization to get out the Democratic vote and in general, to stimulate the party's wellbeing in St. Louis, was formed last night in Moolah Temple by about 200 persons. It was declared that apathy was endangering the party, when some effort might convert it into a successful factor at the polls. Temporary officers were elected as follows: William H. O'Brien, president; Joseph J. Meares, chairman of the Democratic City Central Committee; James Ring, John Nangle, Miss Margaret Rowan, Mrs. Nat Brown and Mrs. Mary Ryder, vice presidents; Ben Brinkman, treasurer, and William F. Glynn, secretary.

SAYS 'KING OF OSAGE HILLS' HAD $25,000 POLICY ON INDIAN

U. S. Prosecutor in Trial of W. K. Hale Charges Latter Hired Ramsey to Kill Henry Roan.

By the Associated Press. GUTHRIE, Ok., July 30.—T. J. Leahy, special Government prosecutor in the trial of William K. Hale, "King of the Osage Hills," said today that he had evidence that Hale hired Ramsey to kill Henry Roan, Osage Indian, declared that Hale hired Ramsey to kill the Indian, impelled by the fear that Roan would commit suicide and block the payment of a $25,000 insurance policy Hale held on Roan's life.

Leahy made the Government's opening statement to the jury. The evidence will show, Leahy said, that Hale had obtained the policy on the Indian's life, paying the premium.

Most of the evidence introduced today was to establish the intricate circumstances surrounding the death of the Indian, whose body was found in an automobile in a pasture near Fairfax, Ok. Roan had been shot through the head.

RECEIVER SOUGHT FOR NEGRO UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION

Director Says Risk Firm Owes Him $27,000 and Is Dissipating Assets.

A receivership suit was filed today against the St. Louis Underwriters' Association, 2503 Pine boulevard, holding company for the Douglas Life Insurance Co., a Negro organization which was forbidden to operate by the State Insurance Department last spring.

The suit was filed by William C. McMahon, 4138A West Belle place, a director holding $4 shares, who alleges that the company owes him $27,422.65 as commissions on the sale of stock. He asserts that the company's assets are being dissipated and asks for an injunction forbidding the sale of the company's assets by its present officers.

WARNS OF VISOR CAP DANGERS

Ophthalmologist Says Painful Ailment of Retina May Be Result.

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, July 30.—Warning that positive danger to vision lies in the visor cap eye shade was sounded today by Dr. Joseph H. O'Neil, president of the Massachusetts Society of Ophthalmologists. He said that photophobia, a painful condition of the retina, would result from promiscuous wearing of the eye shades, which gained wide popularity from the pictured success of Helen Wills on the tennis court.

"By the use of the shades under normal conditions, rays of light that are necessary to produce a healthy stimulus to the eye are cut off and the eye soon loses its ability to function as nature intended," Dr. O'Neil said.

STICK TO OWN PRIMARY, DEMOCRATS ARE TOLD

City Chairman Outlines Danger to Party by Mixing in G. O. P. Fights.

Joseph J. Meares, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, today issued a warning to St. Louis Democrats against participating in the Republican primary next Tuesday. He urged all Democrats to vote in the primary of their own party. No voters may vote in the primary of our city and State ticket depends on the selection of the man to head that ticket," Chairman Meares said. "Here is a situation which requires every Democratic vote which we are able to cast next Tuesday. We must not neglect our own situation because of a Republican fight for minor offices."

Meares reminds Democrats that the city Democratic organization has endorsed Harry R. Hawes' senatorial candidacy.

Two Votes, or Scratches Required. "It is to him we look to head the Democratic ticket in November," he continued. "He must be nominated for both short and long terms. Two votes, or two different scratches for his opponents, are required."

"Democrats who participate in the Republican primary," he said, "are probably actuated by the thought that the contests in our own party for major nominations are practically closed in a way satisfactory to St. Louis Democrats. While to a certain extent this is true, we must not lose sight of the fact that the spirit and intent of the primary law under which we are forced to operate contemplates that Democrats shall take part in the Democratic primary and Republicans in the Republican primary. Any other procedure will ultimately work to the detriment of party affairs."

Warns Against Overconfidence. "Again, it should be remembered by Democrats that an election is not over until the ballots are counted. In the past the most hopeful situations have ended disastrously through overconfidence and its consequent apathy. We must not let this possibility even arise on next Tuesday. We have excellent candidates in the field who deserve every St. Louis vote they can get and to forget them for the purpose of taking part in a purely 'outside' fight is a dangerous thing for Democrats to attempt."

"But probably above all these considerations is the strictly political consideration that a heavy Democratic vote in the St. Louis primary will have an excellent effect on the vote in November. Let us not forget that to weaken party spirit now may have a serious effect in November, and this effect will extend all through the ticket, city and State."

3000 Manila Cigarmakers Strike.

By the Associated Press. MANILA, July 30.—Nearly 5000 cigarmakers have gone on strike against a wage reduction by the principal factories here. The employers say that the demand of American importers of Philippine cigars for a reduction in prices of more than 20 per cent makes the wage decrease necessary, that it is impossible to sell the American trade at the prices demanded unless production costs are lowered.

Farmer Blasting Stumps Killed.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., July 30.—Premature explosion of dynamite which set off near where he was working, fatally injured R. P. Marshall, 45 years old, a farmer who was blasting stumps on a county road near the English School east of this city at 3 p. m. yesterday. Marshall's body was blown into the air 40 or 50 feet. He died a few minutes later.

VANDEVENTER PLACE ON TRAIL OF ROOMERS

Adolphus Branham, However, Says "Guests" Not Lodgers Occupy Kerens Mansion

Residents of Vandeventer place, who, in 1923, enjoined Adolphus Branham from keeping roomers in the former Richard C. Kerens mansion, at 36 Vandeventer place, are of the opinion that Branham has violated the injunction by continuing the rooming house and have cited him for contempt of court.

But Branham, a candidate for Republican committee for the Nineteenth Ward, insists his neighbors are mistaken. In a deposition filed in the contempt case he says he has "guests" at the house, but neither roomers nor boarders.

"The house, as you know, is very, very large, and is rather spooky if nobody's in it," Branham said, explaining the large number of "guests" at No. 36.

On some points Branham's memory was poor. He testified he sold the house some time after the injunction was issued to Miss Clotilda Cook, but he could not remember the date of sale or the price. Miss Cook then sold to a third person, whose name Branham could not recall. Branham now is the tenant there, he said, paying $100 monthly rent to the "unknown owner."

One by one Branham discussed his guests. J. G. Chatwood was living in the house at the invitation of Branham and the fact that Chatwood paid light and water bills was purely optional on his part. Howard Miller likewise was invited and whatever money he gave to Branham was a "donation" toward expenses. Miss Frieda Vick and her parents also were invited and there was no understanding about rent.

Chatwood testified he paid $180 in bills for Branham during the six months he was Branham's "guest." Miller, an employee of the Missouri State Grain Inspection Bureau, testified he and his wife boarded there for a month, paying Branham $15 a week. Miss Vick, a clerk at City Hall, said she paid Chatwood $5 a week for the rooms she and her parents occupied.

The contempt case was to have been heard yesterday, but Branham and Miss Cook were not in court so it was continued until Thursday.

MOST PROSECUTORS IN MISSOURI FAVOR MORE POWER FOR STATE JUDGES

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., July 29.—There is a decided trend among the judiciary, prosecuting officials and lawyers toward lodging more power in the courts in directing trials of persons accused of crime, it is declared in a report on judicial administration in this State, part of the crime survey of the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice, which was delivered here yesterday.

The report, which is copyrighted, continues with a discussion of the suggested change in Missouri to the Federal and English practice with respect to permitting trial judges to sum up and comment on the evidence, which is now prohibited by law. Without directly advocating this change, the document relates that a majority of Missouri Prosecuting Attorneys and Circuit

Judges answering a questionnaire in the survey favored it.

Delivered at Farmers' Meeting.

Former Circuit Judge J. Hugo Grimm of St. Louis, who also reviewed State Supreme Court decisions in the survey, and Arthur V. Lashly of Webster Groves, former Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, who is operating director of the association, prepared this report, which was delivered at a mass meeting for farmers of the county held by the commercial clubs of Cape Girardeau.

Fifty prosecutors wrote that they favored permitting judges of Missouri to sum up and comment on evidence, while 28 opposed this. Judges in 15 of the 38 circuits of the State replied that the statute prohibiting this should be repealed, while nine took the opposite viewpoint and the remainder refused to answer or were undecided.

Sought to Sound Sentiment.

"No question of judicial procedure," says the report, "has been so widely discussed by members of the judiciary, the bar, and by the lay public in recent years as has this one." Certain notable trials in the Federal courts have led to spirited attacks upon the Federal system of giving the judge presiding at the trial real power over the case by permitting him to comment upon the evidence in an oral charge, and to some extent express an opinion as to the weight and sufficiency thereof for the benefit of the jury.

"Realizing the importance of the question, and there having been some considerable division of opinion among the judges, as well as the prosecutors, concerning the advisability of giving this great power into the hands of the judges of the State courts, a further questionnaire was submitted to all of the Circuit Judges of the State, in which they were asked this specific question: 'In your judgment, would the administration of criminal justice be promoted if the trial judge had the same powers to sum up the evidence and orally charge the jury at the conclusion of the case that the Federal judges now have?' Out of 67 judges to whom the question was propounded, 27 replied categorically in the affirmative and 23 in the negative."

Some Fear Abuse of Power.

Three judges of one circuit who voted against the change asserted that this power is too greatly abused by Federal judges and that it was dangerous to give judges too much authority. Another jurist replied that "some Circuit judges talk too much now." Among reasons of those advocating the innovation was that of increased efficiency of the courts.

The report tells the recent vote of the St. Louis Bar Association, to test sentiment on a bill in Congress to restrict the commenting power of Federal judges, which resulted in favor of the present system by a vote of 213 to 117.

The Committee on Jurisprudence and Law Enforcement of the American Bar Association has reported, it is noted, that the bill in Congress was a serious menace to the usefulness of jury trials and that a trial from which "the important right of the Court to express his opinion as to the credibility of witnesses and weight of testimony is lacking would not be a jury trial as that term was intended by the framers of our Constitution."

Fixing Punishment.

There is a decided sentiment among Missouri judges and prosecutors in favor of having juries decide only the question of guilt or innocence and letting the Court fix the punishment in felony cases, the report asserts. The reason is that jurors are less capable than jurists of making the punishment fit the crime.

It is an almost universal custom among judges, when pleas of guilty are entered, to be guided by the prosecutors' recommendations in determining sentences, the association found. This is what happened when the Rutherford murder case was settled in St. Louis for a $500 fine and a civil payment out of court. Judges of 22 of the 38 circuits said they required such recommendations, and it was shown that as a rule these were accepted. Because the prosecutor usually is in a better position to investigate the facts, the St. Louis Circuit Judges replied that the Circuit Attorney's recommendations received consideration but were not binding. Describing the Maryland system of permitting the Court to try serious felony cases, on request, without a jury, the report says the Legislature of Missouri could not constitutionally make this possible here.

Refuting the theory that a trial judge is a mere referee or moderator, hedged about by Supreme Court rulings, the report says, "There are many things which may be done by him to insure a fast, speedy and impartial trial to the State as well as to the defendant." His serious demeanor, it is held, can carry much weight.

The survey asked Circuit Judges if they favored amending the law requiring them to include among instructions to the jury the subjects of reasonable doubt and good character, so that the Court would have only to instruct on law points as requested by the defense. Thirty-five judges in 23 circuits favored the amendment, five judges in five circuits opposed it and two in two circuits not only approved but suggested a still more drastic change.

Jury Duty and Women.

Whether the Constitution and laws of Missouri should be amended to permit service of women as jurors is held in the report to be a political question, but it is said: "Where women are qualified to serve as jurors, experience seems to have shown that they make at least as good jurors as men. It is not a question of sex but one of intelligence and character. No doubt courts would be much more liberal in excusing women from jury service than men, for the duties of a mother and wife may make her presence at home during a part, at least, of court hours indispensable."

Dilatory notions filed to gain delay in trial are a common occurrence, the investigators found, pointing out that while the Court has some discretion, much depends on prosecutors. The Court's greatest discretion is in the matter of granting continuances, which cause delays and weaken the State's case in various ways. Judges of 22 circuits usually grant continuances consented to by the prosecutors, but the rest are not bound by his argument.

Just one continuance causes an average delay of 80 days in the final disposition of a felony case, the survey determined, and nearly all cases tried on pleas of "not guilty" have more than one continuance. Absence of witnesses is the principal cause for continuances, judges of 32 circuits stated.

Changes of venue were found to be "practically unknown" in St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph. In counties of less than 75,000 population, which covers most Missouri counties, change of venue must be granted when five citizens make affidavit requesting it, and rural lawyers make free use of this. Prosecutors, however, the report declares, are clamorous for repeal of this law as a prolific source of unreasonable delay, and only two judges in the whole State opposed its repeal.

Only 5 per cent of the trials held in the period of the survey resulted in mistrials, or failure of the juries to agree.

Members of political organizations and some public officials use their influence, it is asserted, to have well-qualified citizens excused from jury duty, which affects those who can best afford the sacrifice. Better than campaigns to induce business men to act as jurors, Grimm and Lashly maintain, would be to impress on judges their responsibility.

Few outright paroles are granted in St. Louis, it is stated, and it seems that investigation and supervision of bench paroles is adequate except in the larger cities, where more funds and employees are needed.

Illinois Pastor to Pittsburg, Pa.

ARGUMENTS MADE ON BENDER'S DEMURRER

Court Stresses Three Points as Being Necessary to Sustain Charge.

At yesterday's session of the Bender trial, following an afternoon of argument by State and defense counsel, Judge Hays overruled a demurrer offered by the defense and ordered the trial to proceed.

The demurrer was presented after the State had rested at 2:25 p. m. Despite a strenuous attempt by the defense to persuade the court that the State had not presented sufficient evidence to let the case go to the jury, the judge in a lengthy and carefully worded decision ruled otherwise. Attorney-General Gentry and his aids were jubilant.

Two points of Judge Hays' decision were regarded as important to the prosecution. By ruling that the State had made a reasonable showing against the defendant, the court destroyed Bender's contention that his indictment was unwarranted. The court held that from the State's evidence there was a reasonable presumption of guilt, sufficient to make it a case for the jury to decide.

Secondly, the court held that no evidence having been produced to the contrary, the presumption of law was that the State had established its case of second-degree murder against William Allen Scott Rutherford. The State's case against Bender is predicated on successful maintenance that Rutherford's crime was second-degree murder.

On this latter point Judge Hays commented:

"I shall not go into detail and analyze the evidence. I will mention, in passing, its general scope. It tends to show that last October, William Allen Scott Rutherford, with a deadly weapon, shot and killed one Tucker.

"If the evidence adduced by the State is believed, the shooting was not a justifiable shooting, not an excusable shooting, but one which the law would say, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, was done with malice, aforethought. That would be the presumption that the law would indulge in, in the absence of evidence to the contrary—a shooting under such circumstances as disclosed by the testimony when that testimony is given its most favorable state, is that this was murder in the second degree."

Sufficiency of the Evidence. As to the sufficiency of the evidence presented by State's counsel, the judge ruled:

"Now, this statute says that if the defendant compounds a felony in any one of three ways designated in the statute itself, he himself is guilty of a felony. The court must consider, therefore, the evidence in its general scope to determine whether it is of substantial character to prove all of those elements of the offense of compounding. The statute is not altogether clear to this court. Unlike most of our criminal statutes, it has never passed under the review of our Supreme Court, so that this trial judge, of so much less ability than the Supreme Court of the State, is called upon to apply the statute without any guide or compass afforded by the Supreme Court.

"The court, in view of the fact that a wrong construction of this statute made at this time would terminate the case, and that termination concedes no authority for guidance of the bench and bar of the state in the future, feels constrained to act with great care and caution. . . . The court is by no means free from doubt in its mind about this statute.

"In this situation, if the case goes on, any mistake the court may make either way will not be final in its effect, but will be subject to review of the superior and final court of review. I am not persuaded that the demurrer should be sustained; it is therefore overruled."

Demurrer Overruled. The statute on compounding a felony was passed in 1835 and has seldom been invoked. The three points which Judge Hays referred to as being necessary to the sustenance of the charge of compounding a felony are these: that Bender agreed to conceal Rutherford's crime; that he abstained from prosecuting Rutherford; or that he withheld evidence of Rutherford's crime.

In presenting the demurrer Harry Blodgett, of defense counsel, argued that there "was not a scintilla of evidence" connecting the defendant with the case. Blodgett asserted that the State had failed to show Bender had actual knowledge of Rutherford's crime and that there had been no proof that he concealed it or withheld evidence of it.

The strongest argument advanced by Blodgett was that Bender could not have abstained from prosecuting Rutherford because he had no power to prosecute him. Blodgett also bore heavily upon the State's contention that Bender had accepted "a large sum of money, amount unknown to the Attorney-General," from John Rutherford, brother of the slayer.

Says State Knew Exact Sum. "The Attorney-General knew exactly how much money Bender received in this case," Blodgett declared. "This defendant received $1000 as his fee, according to the State's own testimony."

Replying for the State, Special Prosecutor Wayne Ely told the Court that Bender did not have to be special prosecutor in order to be amenable under the felony statute. He pointed out that the law is broad, including "anyone" who compounds a felony.

Ely pointed out that circumstantial evidence could have weight in this case, remarking, "men have been hanged on circumstantial evidence and I think a man should have been hanged in the Rutherford case."

He went on to say that the State's evidence showed John Rutherford had sent $5500 to St. Louis prior to the settlement of the criminal case against his brother and on May 8, when Allen Rutherford went free on a $500 fine, the $5500 was turned over to Bender for the use of himself and client, Mrs. Tillie Tucker, mother of the slain bellboy.

Before the demurrer argument arose the State had presented four witnesses at the forenoon session. They were John E. Bowcock, the Assistant Circuit Attorney, who made the recommendation on which Rutherford escaped a second-degree murder indictment; Circuit Judge George E. Mix, who accepted the recommendation; a banker and a newspaper reporter.

The testimony of Bowcock and Judge Mix, published by the Post-Dispatch yesterday, supported the State's assertion that Bender took an active part in the settlement of the criminal case against Rutherford. The banker, Victor Jaqueman Jr., of the National City Bank, verified the payment of $5500 by check to Bender and Mrs. Tucker.

NEW HAY FEVER PRESCRIPTION BY
ST. LOUIS DOCTOR

A St. Louis physician is now offering to the general public a preparation for Hay Fever which has been successfully using in his private practice since 1919, and which he guarantees will give positive relief to the most severe cases of Hay Fever, or it costs nothing.

The principal of the Sherman School of this city, says this prescription permanently relieved him of his Hay Fever. Scores of other St. Louis people praise it highly many of them reporting that the sneezing and other distressing symptoms disappear after one day's treatment. Wolff-Wilson, Johnson Bros., Walgreen and all other good druggists are distributing this treatment, under the name of Hay Remo, with an offer to refund the purchase price to anyone who does not get satisfactory results after using half of it. If possible use Hay Remo daily before the anticipated attack. This preparatory use adds to the benefit. Hay Remo is also very effective for Rose Cold, Summer Catarrh and Nasal Sinus Trouble.

The

Vibrationless beyond belief

The Buick Motor Company today presents the 1927 Buick, with an engine, vibrationless beyond belief.

This achievement, we earnestly believe, will rank as one of the most important in all motor car history.

Our engineers, working in conjunction with the engineering staffs of General Motors Research Laboratories and General Motors Proving Ground have divorced the annoyance of vibration to a point never before attained.

They have given Buick motor cars a new luxury of quietness at every speed, exceptional among all cars, no matter what their price.

Never in all the twenty-two years of Buick success has there been offered such convincing proof of engineering and manufacturing leadership.

Buick offers you today a brilliant example of the quality of Buick craftsmanship—

Confident that acquaintance with its performance and value will fix in mind the conviction that money can buy nothing finer—

Certain that you will discover in this great new car, further evidence of the deep meaning in the long-standing Buick pledge: "When Better Automobiles are Built, Buick Will Build Them."

Four Vital Engine Improvements

To produce the silent power-flow in the 1927 Buick, Buick engineers have made four fundamental improvements in the structure of the famous Buick Six-Cylinder Valve-in-Head engine. These include a Counter-Poised Crankshaft, a Trislon Balancer; new light-weight pistons; and then a Completely Cushioned Engine, insulated and isolated by rubber mountings, fore and aft, from all metallic contact with the chassis.

Buick Also Introduces The Vacuum-Cleaned Crankcase

Another revolutionary improvement in the 1927 Buick is the vacuum-cleaned crankcase. Crankcase moisture, the vicious foe of engine efficiency, is now drawn out of the crankcase before it has an opportunity to do harm. The crankcase is cleaned and kept free of dilution by the Buick Vacuum Ventilator, a new device, operated by the air flow; positive and certain in action, and without a single moving part. The oil in the crankcase of the 1927 Buick need be changed only four times a year!

Other vital improvements

And Thermostatic Control of Cooling

Buick performance is now made more certain, more pleasant and more economical by thermostatic control in the cooling system. Water circulation is halted and the heat held in the engine, until the proper operating temperature is reached. Thermostatic Control also assists the Vacuum Ventilator in its work, by reducing the use of the choke.

Other Refinements To Eliminate Noise

Gear noise is removed by Buick's new giant-tooth transmission. This transmission is quiet in all of its speeds. Further quietness has been obtained by an entirely new muffler design. This minimizes exhaust noise, with no power loss.

Balanced Wheels for Smoother, Safer Driving

And in this remarkable new car, Buick introduces balanced wheels, another contribution to easier and safer driving.

The Buick chassis now offers a perfection of performance long looked-for—but never before found in any motor car.

Millions saved by volume production have been used to develop Buick quality to the point where nothing could be finer.

Luxurious New Bodies by Fisher

The princely beauty of the new Fisher Bodies is in thorough keeping with the unusual and incomparable performance standards now attained.

Rich Coronation Colors in Duco dress these cars in striking custom finishes. Refinements of profile with low-gravity body construction impart an air of fleetness, grace and high quality. And, in the creation and selection of the upholsterings and interiorware, artistic taste is unmistakably reflected.

And Here is the Most Remarkable Fact About This Remarkable Motor Car—Value!

This greatest of all Buicks is the greatest of all Buick values. Buick volume has permitted engineering research and development on a scale far beyond the reach of most manufacturers.

Constant improvement has leveled one price barrier after another, until now you are offered, in this new Buick, a car as fine as money can buy, at the price of cars of very ordinary quality.

This car will convince you, as no other car can, that money can purchase nothing finer—no matter how much you may be able to spend!

BOY WINS TRIP TO SEE BABE RUTH PLAY BALL

Jimmie Varner, 11, of Neosho, Mo., Enjoys Game Between Browns and Yankees.

Jimmie Varner rode home to Neosho, Mo., this morning in the day coach as happy as an 11-year-old boy could be in the knowledge that he had seen his first big league ball game, and had actually seen and shaken the hands of his two heroes, Babe Ruth and George Bunker. To prove it he carried a precious box containing a baseball autographed by the two players.

Jimmie's one-day journey to St. Louis for yesterday's game was won, strangely enough, by his ear for music. In the Neosho school month—he is in the seventh grade—the music teacher held a contest, playing snatches from 35 pieces on the phonograph. Jimmie picked down the name and number of every one, the spelling correct and easily defeated 100 contestants.

The Neosho business men, led by Gurney Lowe, president of the Neosho Playground Association, thought that he should be substantially rewarded. What would be the prize? His wide knowledge of the major batting averages and his admiration for Ruth and Sisler suggested the answer.

Doesn't Play Himself.

So Jimmie came to St. Louis Wednesday in new clothes from top to toe. His mother, a widow who works to support her son, had seen to it that he attended school five years without missing a day, and she saw to it that he was properly dressed for the momentous occasion. He was met by Alfred Monscheln, contracting engineer in the Arcade Building, who had been commissioned by Lowe to accompany Jimmie during his visit to St. Louis and Sportsman's Park.

Jimmie does not play baseball, nor does he play any musical instrument. But he likes to watch a good game and he knows good music when he hears it. His ambition is to be a sport editor and with that in view he "covers" Neosho games for the Joplin Globe.

Takes Notes on Game.

Commissioned to write about yesterday's game for the Globe, he took copious notes as the play progressed, forgetting his assignment only when Babe went to bat. Jimmie's visit was considerably different from that of the Ozark boy who came alone to see Babe Ruth in action. Last month, Clarence "Rusty" Queen, 12, of Springfield, "bummed" his way to St. Louis, got himself into the House of Detention, but succeeded finally in seeing Babe strike a homer under glorious circumstances.

Yesterday Ruth failed to hit a home run. In the first inning he struck out and Jimmie anticipated it. As Ruth prepared to strike at the third ball, Jimmie remarked, "He's going to fan that one." And Babe did. But Jimmie had seen him lift one to Grand boulevard in practice.

COURT UPHOLDS SEIZURE OF LIQUOR BY POLICE

Judge Mix Again Sustains Demurrer That Owner Must Show When He Bought It.

The right of John Wolff of 2018 Butler street to replevin from the Police Department 712 bottles of assorted liquors was again discussed yesterday before Circuit Judge Mix, who, at the conclusion of argument, reaffirmed his decision of Tuesday, sustaining a demurrer to Wolff's replevin petition.

Police Commissioners Henry Kortjohn and Arthur Freund, who appeared for the Police Board, contended that the petition failed to show that Wolff had come into legal possession of the liquor. Until such showing was made, they said, the liquor was considered contraband property under the State prohibition law.

Wolff's attorneys, J. B. Garber and Walter Kelly, declared it was not necessary to show in the petition that their client had possession of the liquor prior to the advent of prohibition, as the defense contended. However, Wolff asserts that the liquor seized is of the pre-prohibition variety. The police, he avers, unlawfully took possession of the property and removed it from the basement of his home two weeks ago.

When Judge Mix originally sustained the demurrer, counsel for the petitioner were not present. They appeared the next day and complained that the case had been taken up without notice to them, so the Judge set aside his ruling and remanded the petition. When the decision was reaffirmed yesterday counsel for the plaintiff announced they would take the case to the Court of Appeals. In the petition the liquor is valued at $500, prohibition price.

Two Killed, 2 Hurt in Auto Crash.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 30.—Earl Schuler, 22 years old, of Tina, Mo., who was driving a motor car late last night when it collided with a pole on the St. Joseph-Troy paved highway in Kansas, near here, died in a local hospital today. Miss Aileen Monroe, 20, a Troy, Kan., school teacher, was almost instantly killed in the accident. Miss Elsie Elwood of Troy suffered scalp cuts and Harry Haupt, 23, of Troy, was cut and bruised. Haupt says his car hit the pole when he was forced to turn out at a bend by a car going in the opposite direction.

MEXICANS ACQUITTED OF GIRLS' CHARGES

Former Tijuana Police Chief and Three Others Tried After "Shame Suicides."

By the Associated Press. TIJUANA, Lower California, Mexico, July 30.—The acquittal of former Chief of Police Zenaido Llanos and three other residents of Tijuana of charges of having drugged and attacked Clyde and Audrey Petet here last February was the signal for an informal celebration last night when the jury returned a verdict after deliberating for about two hours.

The alleged attack resulted in the suicide of Thomas Petet, his wife and their daughters at San Diego after the family had visited the Mexican racetrack town. The basis for the charges was contained in notes left by members of the family.

Jose Kelly, an investigator for the Mexican Federation of Labor, testified at the trial yesterday that he had investigated the character of the Petet family at San Diego, Los Angeles and Kansas City, where they had lived, and his investigation disclosed that the young women were indiscreet.

The immediate aftermath of the trial and acquittal was a round of conjecture among Tijuana residents as to how the verdict would be received across the border. The most optimistic of these discussions resulted in expressions that United States officials might modify international boundary regulations to permit visitors to remain in Tijuana until late at night as was the practice before the Petet suicides.

Llanos, who was suspended as Chief of Police as a result of the charges, left for Calexico, Cal., where he has made his home.

Tijuana residents appeared only mildly interested in the trial, only a few being able to direct visitors to the lodge room where the sessions were held. The nine jurors and two alternates took particular care to arrive on time, but once in the makeshift jury box they produced newspapers—mostly from the American side—and with the aid of interpreters read accounts of the previous day's proceedings.

Accused Chauffeur Denies He Was Intoxicated and Will Appeal Police Case.

Clarence O'Neal, a chauffeur, of 2639 Caroline street, today was sentenced by Police Judge Rosecan to 30 days in the workhouse and to pay a $100 fine for driving an automobile while intoxicated. A policeman who arrested O'Neal July 2, for making a forbidden left turn at Tower Grove and Main, charged avenues, testified that O'Neal "smelled of liquor" and was diagnosed as intoxicated at City Hospital. O'Neal denied he had been drinking, and will appeal.

FREE BARON WHO SHOT PRINCE

Viennese Court Returns No Indictment Against Klinger.

By the Associated Press. VIENNA, July 30.—Charges against Baron Klinger, growing out of the death of Prince Cyril Vladimirovich after a shooting affair near the affections of Baroness Klinger, were quashed today when the court returned no indictment.

Baron Klinger and Prince Orloff exchanged shots in a forest near the Baron's castle at Raab, early in June. The Baron was wounded in the chest, while the charge from the Prince's right arm. When the Baroness, with whom the Prince had become infatuated, learned of the shooting, she shot herself to death. The Prince died two weeks later from pneumonia.

State Law Governs on Whisky. Dupeiguis in Missouri will not have to send their whisky prescriptions each month to the district prohibition administrator. A Treasury Department regulation requiring this conflicted with a Missouri law requiring druggists to retain prescriptions for five years. To avoid the conflict Prohibition Administrator Phillips asked the Treasury Department to waive its regulation so far as Missouri was concerned, and today he was advised it would be waived until further notice.

Former Chain Gang Boss Acquitted

By the Associated Press. ALBEMARLE, N. C., July 30.—Nevin C. Cranford, former chain gang boss at the State prison here, stood cleared today of charges of murder in connection with the deaths of two Negro convicts. The jury deliberated 40 minutes after a trial lasting two weeks.

BOY, 14, EYE-WITNESS TO KILLING OF CHIPPS

Messenger Saw Shooting at Fort Worth Church—Is Forbidden to Talk.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. FORT WORTH, Tex., July 30.—Carl Glaze, 14-year-old messenger, who has proved to be the "mystery" witness in the Rev. J. Frank Norris murder case, will testify at the trial in September, but will not be used before the grand jury. The grand jury adjourned yesterday after indicting the pastor for the murder of D. E. Chipps, lumberman, who had resented Dr. Norris' pulpit remarks about his friend, Mayor Meacham. The boy's evidence was not needed before the grand jury, but he will be put on the stand at the trial, according to the prosecutors.

Glaze had gone to Dr. Norris' church, the First Baptist, on an errand, he said, and became an unwilling witness to the shooting, after which he fled. Pedestrians saw the boy leave, but were unable to identify him, and for some days it was thought that the only eye-witness to the killing was Deacon L. H. Nutt.

Boy Forbidden to Talk. Eventually the boy told his parents of his experience and they sent him to the District Attorney. His evidence is being carefully guarded, both his parents and the prosecutors forbidding him to talk.

"We have no interest in this case one side or the other," the boy's mother said last night, "and we want Carl to go on the witness stand with only one thing in mind—tell the truth and nothing but the truth."

Reports of another surprise witness also have been current. This witness is said to have been found by the defense.

Under Texas law, Dr. Norris may expect one of three verdicts—acquittal, conviction of murder, or if the issue is raised, manslaughter. The minimum penalty for manslaughter is two years in the penitentiary. The maximum for murder is death in the electric chair. No suspended sentence may be given if a verdict of murder is returned.

The indictment had been requested by Dr. Norris, although he had made objections to the personnel of the grand jury and it had been intimated that efforts would be made to quash the indictment if returned.

Eleven Sign Pastor's Bond. Eleven citizens, four of them attorneys more or less directly connected with the defense of the case, signed the pastor's new $10,000 bond. Thirty persons signed the first bond, but J. T. Pemberton, president of the Farmers and Mechanics' National Bank, one of those whose name appeared there, said he did not sign the first bond and did not know who did. He did not sign the new bond. Most of those signing the new bond are members of the First Baptist Church.

CANADIANS TO BAR WOMEN FROM BEER PARLORS AUG. 15

Many Men Object to Their Presence; Criticism of Prohibitionists Also Prompts Exclusion. By the Associated Press. VANCOUVER, B. C., July 30.—Women will be excluded from beer parlors in Vancouver after Aug. 15. James Daniel Pearson, president of the British Columbia Hotel Men's Association, it is said, decided to bar women chiefly because many men object to the presence of women.

"Prohibitionists also denounced the fact that licensed premises admitted women," Pearson said. "While we think there was no ground for some of the criticism, this and other factors have influenced us in our decision. We have no desire to give the public offense, hence our decision to bar women."

THE McMANUS, OLD-TIME TAMMANY LEADER, DIES

Former State Senator Was Often Called "Most Humane Politician in New York."

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, July 30.—Thomas J. McManus, known as "The" McManus, former State Senator and Tammany leader of the Fifth District, died today at his home on West Forty-ninth street.

He was 64 years old and was one of the most picturesque of the old-time leaders of Tammany Hall. High blood pressure was the cause of death.

MOTHER RECLAIMS HER BABY

Had Left Seven-Months-Old Boy With Neighbors.

Mrs. Ruth Alexander, 19 years old, turned over her seven-months-old son, Leonard, to friends, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Saigus, of 1124 Tyler street, last Sunday. She said she had lost her employment as a domestic in the neighborhood and would call for the boy when she obtained employment.

She did not return, and the baby was given to police and sent to City Hospital. Last night, however, the mother appeared there and reclaimed Leonard. She explained she was working in Granite City and had been unable to come to St. Louis sooner.

Raid Woman's Home for Morphine.

City detectives found three cubes of morphine on Alfred Schallion, 26 years old, of 1521 South Broadway, last night, and when he said he bought the drug from Blanche Tibbits, 28, of 1921A South Broadway, they raided her home and seized three ounces of morphine. Schallion and Miss Tibbits, the police say, recently served jail terms for dealing in narcotics.

OPPOSITION TO KOELN ASSAILED BY CHARLES NAGEL

Official Conduct of Collector or Has Never Been Challenged, Former Cabinet Officer Asserts.

The objection made to the reelection of Collector Koeln, that he has been "too long at the crib," having held office for 16 years, was taken up by Charles Nagel, former Secretary of Commerce and Labor, in an Eleventh Ward meeting at 2331 Oregon avenue last night.

"Too long for whom?" Nagel asked. "When an executive controls so large a force of subordinates that he may practically have them dictate his remuneration, the objection to an unbroken continuance in office is perfectly sound. That is the meaning of the opposition to a third term. But when the number of subordinates is negligible, precisely the other rule obtains. In that case, the greater the proof of efficiency by experience, the more reason for continuing the service unbroken. If Judge his, during successive terms, made good, the aim is to retain him. If a contractor with the city has made a reputation for good work or goods, we hope that he may prevail as the lowest bidder.

Secret of Opposition.
"The secret of opposition to Koeln is made up of personal ambition for power in the future and personal grievance for disappointment in the past. No one has ever challenged his official conduct. No one claims that in his preference for candidates he has considered aught but the party's strength and the public welfare. As a candidate he has been an asset to his party in every election. Where in the exercise of his judgment he felt compelled to antagonize others, we have reason to love him for the enemies he has made."

Alderman Charles A. Neumann, who is Mayor Miller's candidate for Collector, charged, in a speech at 6419 Wanda avenue last night, that the American Exchange National Bank, Kingshighway and Gravois avenue, of which Collector Koeln is president, was owing the city $1671 for the installation of extra street lights, two years ago, and for lighting current.

Collector Koeln today said he had looked the matter up, and had found that the extra lights were half in front of the bank and half in front of two pieces of adjoining property, owned by D. Hedenkamp, vice-president of the bank, and Thomas Schutz. The private property owners are therefore liable for one-half the amount due, he said. Koeln said the reason the bill had not been paid was that it had never been presented. This, he said, must have been due to an oversight. He said neither he nor the bank had made any effort to evade the bill, or to exert any influence in the matter.

Bill Just Forwarded to Bank.
Inquiry at the office of Director Pritchard, of the department of Public Utilities, brought the statement that the bill had been made out and forwarded to the bank Wednesday. Director Pritchard said his attention had been called to the matter by George B. Heath, a subordinate. Heath, a lieutenant of Mayor Miller, figured in the trial and removal of Director E. E. Wall. Pritchard, who has been in office but a few months, said he did not know why the bill had been delayed.

Koeln, in answering questions of Neumann as to the checking up of his official accounts, said, "The State Auditor, the Board of Education, and the City Comptroller, all check up my office, and they have repeatedly found everything O. K." State Auditor Thompson, who was in St. Louis yesterday, said that he had always found the Collector's accounts in satisfactory shape.

Woman Candidate Refutes Charge.
Mrs. Anna Mitchell, Republican candidate for committeewoman for the Ninth Ward, today refuted the charge of those opposed to her election that she has not lived in the ward she seeks to represent for the last year, as is required by law. She offers to prove that she has resided at her present address, 916A Lami street, for 13 months.

UNEASINESS IN BOTH HAWES AND WILLIAMS CAMPS

Former Complainant Confidence Within Their Organizations Has Disappeared in Last Few Days

REPORTS FROM RURAL SECTIONS DISTURBING

Orders Have Gone Out for Intensive Last-Minute Campaign in the Cities of the State.

By CURTIS A. BEITTS, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 30.—A complainant confidence which has been maintained within the organizations of Harry B. Hawes and Senator George H. Williams, candidates for the Democratic and Republican nominations, respectively, for the United States Senate, has disappeared within the past few days. A lethargic we-can't-be-beaten attitude has changed to a feverish, and in some places, an almost panicky get-out-the-vote rush.

The altered conditions in both organizations are due to disturbing reports which have been drifting in from some rural sections of the State within the past few days, reports sufficiently alarming to arouse the leading supporters of the two candidates to a realization that there was at least a possibility of failure unless heavy majorities were piled up for them in St. Louis and Kansas City.

Orders for intensive campaign. At the beginning of the campaign no one could have conceived of a campaign in which any considerable number of voters would be won over by a last-minute campaign in the cities to make certain that every Hawes and Williams vote is gotten to the polls next Tuesday.

At the start Hawes had supporting him virtually every Democrat in the State who was known as an effective party worker. There was no organized opposition to him, and in fact one can't today put his hand on any real organized opposition other than the Antislavery League and the W. C. T. U. With such a condition existing there appeared to be no reason for a last-minute campaign.

Williams was in much the same fix. He had the Republican State Committee, Gov. Baker's job holders, former Gov. Hyde and his group, the K'el and Koelns factions in St. Louis and all the Republican organization in Kansas City. There was nothing else in the way of organization within the party except Mayor Miller in St. Louis and the Walter S. Dickey group in Kansas City.

The Dickey opposition. The Dickeyites were considered as dissatisfied and disgruntled job-holders and little attention was given them. A slight effort was made to sell them, but when it failed the Williams leaders decided that he had lost any strength he had and there was no occasion to worry about what he could do.

So Williams, too, remained in Washington until a month before the date of the primary, and returned for a perfunctory campaign. But there is no longer anything perfunctory about either Hawes or Williams' efforts.

Democrats who had been through many campaigns and had learned to analyze political situations began to suggest greater activity. They could not place their fingers on dangerous opposition anywhere, but they began to sense that all was not well. Reports began to arrive that there was danger of Hawes losing several counties that he ought to carry, and they came to the conclusion that if such counties existed in those counties these were reason to fear that they might exist in many others without appearing on the surface.

Anti-Hawes sentiment. They were unable to discover that Judge Ewing Cockrell, Hawes' opponent, has "any outstanding Democrats" supporting him, but they could detect quite a considerable anti-Hawes sentiment among the general run of Democrats in the country. So, still protesting publicly that Hawes was bound to win, but in order that a big majority might be piled up for him they ordered that the ward and precinct workers in St. Louis

ABYSSINIA'S PLEA TO THE LEAGUE UPSETS BRITAIN

Dispatch of Protest Against Anglo-Italian Treaty for Concessions Causes Embarrassment in London.

QUESTION TO BE RAISED IN COMMONS

Chamberlain Will Be Asked if Debate Is to Be Permitted on Action of the Government.

By Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

LONDON, July 30.—The British Government is gravely embarrassed by the public appeal to the League of Nations by Ras Tafari, regent of Abyssinia, against the Anglo-Italian treaty, concluded without the knowledge of Abyssinia, by which Great Britain gives away "exclusive economic influence" in the west of Abyssinia to Italy in return for Italy's undertaking to support the British claim to control of the waters of Lake Tassana in connection with her plans for the irrigation of the Sudan.

All member states of the League are receiving from Abyssinia copies of the notes sent to Abyssinia by London and Rome, together with a note stating that such claims and methods constitute a pressure incompatible with Abyssinian independence and membership in the League of Nations.

BRITISH MINERS' DELEGATES RECOMMEND SETTLEMENT

LONDON, July 30.—The conference of miners' delegates has decided to recommend acceptance of the peace proposals suggested by churchmen of the Anglican and Free churches in the present coal tieup. The proposals will be sent back to the districts to be voted upon.

TREMOR ON CHANNEL ISLANDS ROCKS LARGE BUILDINGS

Several chimneys collapsed. Thus far no casualties have been reported.

Earthquake Shock Felt at Westbourne, England.

TO BAR USE OF WORD 'ITALIAN'

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Publishing Co., (New York World and Post-Dispatch.) LONDON, July 30.—Italians will no longer be permitted to call themselves by that name, but will be called Fascists, if the wish of Premier Mussolini, as expressed to the Milizia Italiana, organ of the Fascist militia, are carried out.

In a signed message Mussolini instructs the editor to have the word Italian taken out of the paper's title and to substitute Fascist for it. He expresses distaste for the word Italian.

REPUBLICAN TARIFF ASSAILED BY GOV. BLAINE OF WISCONSIN

G. O. P. Candidate for Senate Assests Schedules Applying to Farm Products Are Deceptive. By the Associated Press. STRATFORD, Wis., July 30.—Claims that the tariff rates on butter have added the Wisconsin dairy industry are characterized by Gov. John J. Blaine as "false."

The Republican opponent of Senator Irvine L. Lenroot who added the raising of the tariff on butter, asserted in a speech yesterday that tariffs so far as they apply to dairy products or any other product of the farm are a deception.

"Tariffs only increase prices in the case of commodities which can be controlled," Gov. Blaine maintained. "The fact is that upon the increase of tariff rates on butter, the price to the farmer declined. Even today butter is being produced at a loss."

"The steel trust benefits through the high tariff law because the tariff raises the cost of production in the cost of steel and iron increases the cost of farm machinery," the Governor continued. "This makes our present tariff law cost the farmer $10 for every dollar that he gets out of it. This farmer, relying on a low market and a highly protective tariff market. The farmer does not control either his production or the price of his product, as do the tariff beneficiaries."

ZINOVIEFF EXPULSION MAY CAUSE SPLIT IN SOVIET

Deposed Chief of Political Bureau Charged by Italian Adherents With Supporting Trotsky.

By the Associated Press. MOSCOW, July 30.—The cleavage among the Communist party leaders, precipitated by the expulsion last Saturday of Gregory Zinoviev and M. Lashevitch from the political bureau of the Central Executive Committee of the Communist party, is becoming more pronounced.

Despite Leon Trotsky's continued silence, the former soviet commissar for war and navy seems to be destined to head the new opposition against M. Stalin, who ranks today as Soviet Russia's most powerful man.

This opposition often referred to as the Nop (New Opposition Party) already is gathering its forces for a definite showdown at the coming Communist congress in October.

The Communist party of Bakus, Stalin's stronghold, today in a resolution charged Zinoviev and Leo Kamenef and all their adherents with lining up with Trotsky. The resolution declared "we have been astonished to learn that Zinoviev and Kamenef have taken up Trotsky's 1921 platform. Along with others Zinoviev and Kamenef fought desperately against Trotsky's Trotskyism for Leninism. Still this has not prevented their falling into the Trotsky mire in 1926, in arranging a truce with Trotsky, evidently with a view to forming with him one bloc against the Central Executive Committee of the Communist Party."

DECLINE IN FARM PRICES

Drop From 139 to 135 Pct. of Pre-War Level During Last Month.

By Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 30.—A drop in the general level of farm prices, from 139 to 135 per cent of the pre-war level, between June 15 to July 15, is reported by the Agricultural Department, which said the July level was 14 points below that for July last year.

The price level of grains, as a group, declined five points during the month, cotton six points, meat animals two points and fruits and vegetables 21 points, while dairy and poultry products and unclassified commodities remained about constant.

During the month the farm prices of cotton, cottonseed, oats, wheat and potatoes, declined slightly, while corn, barley, rye and flaxseed increased. There was a decline also in livestock and livestock prices, with the exception of milk cows and wool, which remained about stationary.

MEXICAN GOLD SURPLUS IN U. S.

$5,500,000 Sent to Stabilize Foreign Exchange.

By Associated Press. MEXICO CITY, July 30.—It is learned that within the last two months the Mexican Government has sent about 17,000,000 pesos (about $5,500,000) gold to American banks, principally in New York, for deposit for the purpose of stabilizing Mexican exchange, which has been adverse. These shipments are in addition to remittances for the payment of the external debt.

It is declared authoritatively that the movement of gold to the United States began before the present religious crisis, and that, therefore, there is no foundation for some rumors here that the action was taken to offset a possible economic slump because of the religious situation.

PRIESTS CONDUCT LAST SERVICES IN MEXICO CHURCHES

Their Withdrawal in Protest Against Religious Regulations Is Moved Forward a Day.

GOVERNMENT ORDERS CATHOLICS DISARMED

Troops Ready to Suppress Possible Disorders — Clergy's Supporters Plan Economic Boycott.

By the Associated Press. MEXICO CITY, Mexico, July 30.—Catholics throughout Mexico today offered up devotions under the leadership of the priests for the last time before the Government's new religious regulations go into effect tomorrow.

Under instructions from Archbishop Mora y del Rio, priests will withdraw from the churches tomorrow in protest against the Government's religious measures. The withdrawal was originally ordered for Sunday.

President Calles in a speech last night declared the hour was approaching for a final fight to determine the triumph of revolution or reaction. The struggle was between light and darkness, and the Government would win, he said.

Federal troops are known to be in readiness for any emergency. At the Department of the Interior today it was said that "all necessary measures" had been taken to suppress possible disorders. It was added that the Government "is firmly decided to abate, once for all time, any resistance to enforcement of the Constitution which may be offered by the unpatriotic work of Catholic or any other agitators."

Catholics Ordered Disarmed.

All Catholics in the country are to be disarmed in accordance with an order issued by Attorney-General Ortega. Senor Ortega said this move was a consequence of reports that Catholic groups were meeting secretly at night and the authorities were fearful the gatherings would be for the purpose of offering resistance to the religious laws.

After more than a fortnight of attendance upon masses, the faithful again today crowded churches, cathedrals and shrines throughout the republic. It was feared that when the services ended at 10 o'clock tonight there would be thousands who had been unable to enter the churches.

When the priests withdrew they will turn over the churches to lay committees which they appointed. The Government has announced it will not permit lay committees to take over the churches and order the Mayor of each town to name a committee for that purpose. The priests' committees, however, will endeavor to negotiate with the municipal authorities in an effort to reach a compromise on the personal property of the priests.

A report from Mexico City says the Mayor has been instructed to preserve order when their committees take over the churches.

Church authorities have instructed all Catholics to continue attending church, and to pray for a satisfactory settlement of the situation.

The Government's religious regulations provide that only clergy of Mexican citizenship may officiate at services; that all church property shall be confiscated on the ground that it has been unlawfully held by the churches for 50 years. Religious instruction in elementary schools is prohibited. Sectarian publications are forbidden to comment on, or print news on national political affairs.

Catholic Economic Boycott.

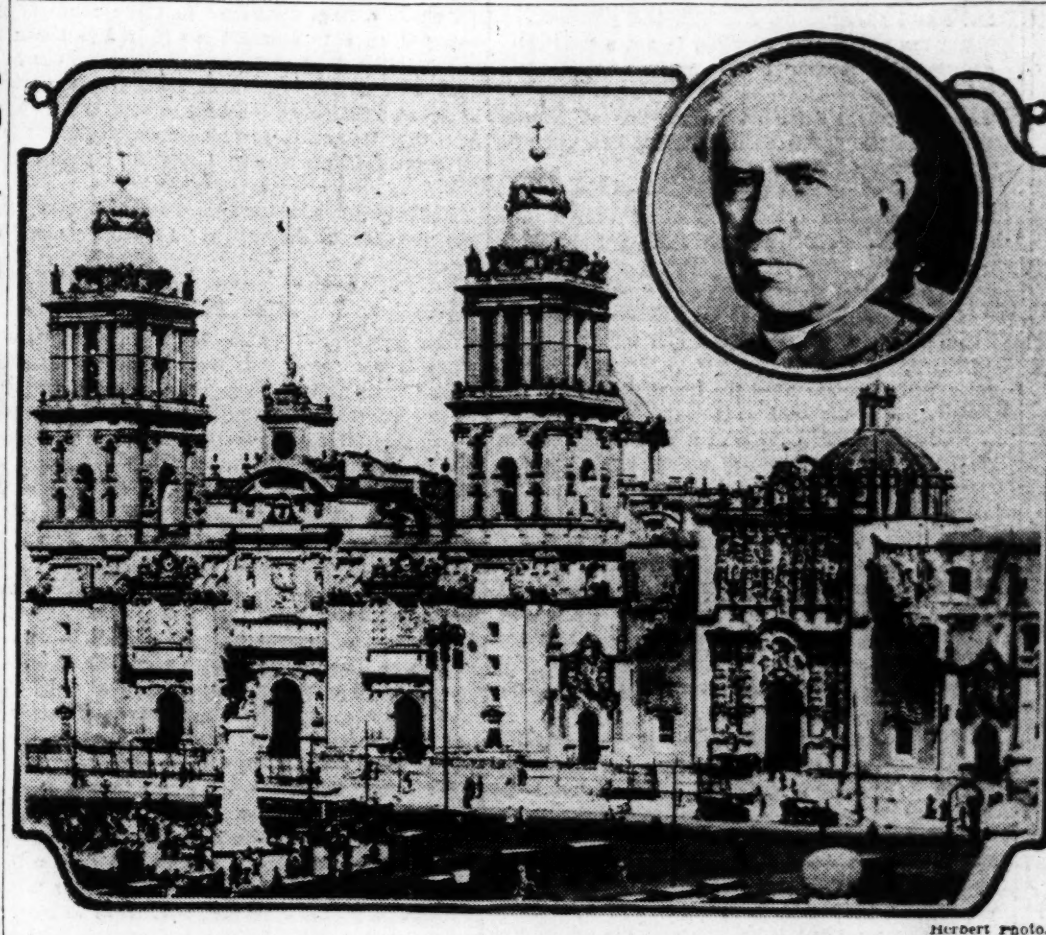

The National League for Defense of Religious Liberty will start an "economic boycott" of protest tomorrow.

The boycott contemplates that all persons opposed to the Government's religious policy shall cease spending money for anything except absolute necessities. The league hopes by the boycott to cause an economic slump so serious as to cause the Government to modify its policy.

Three successive acts of directors of the league have been arrested, charged with inciting the people to disorder. It is certain that many Catholics intend strictly to adhere to the boycott idea, although it is impossible to predict its extent.

The Regional Confederation of Labor declares it will fight on the Government side, particularly against the proposed economic boycott, which it thinks it can render inoperative.

Catholic Cathedral in Mexican Capital, Prelate Who Directs Forces of the Church

THIS photograph of the great Catholic Cathedral in Mexico City was made from the National Palace, the shadow of which falls athwart the church when the sun is high. The insert is of Archbishop Jose Mora y del Rio.

ended in the capital during the parade. Catholics have been instructed by the church authorities not to stage counter-demonstrations, but, instead, to assemble in church for prayer.

The police have begun a watch upon all Catholic churches, fearing their treasures may be taken away. Four youths who were taken from a church a typewriter and other personal property of a priest were arrested yesterday. The youths said they were taking the property to the priest's new residence by his orders.

Newspapermen Warned.

Attorney-General Ortega has issued a private warning to the directors of the foremost newspapers of the capital to be cautious in their treatment of news regarding the religious situation. Ortega said the situation had been magnified and the newspapermen were causing a grave and troublesome situation for which they might be held responsible unless they mended their ways. No official order in this respect has been issued. No specific reference was made to foreign correspondents by the Attorney-General.

Dispatches from Puebla say that Garcia Farfan, a grocer, who on Wednesday attempted to shoot Gen. Amaya, the military commandant, but instead wounded Gen. Sanchez in the hand, was shot and killed by unknown persons when on his way in an automobile to the military prison. Farfan shot at Gen. Amaya when the commandant entered his store to inquire about a described as religious propaganda.

The Government is still considering whether it will file formal complaints against the Archbishops and Bishops who signed the recent pastoral letter, suspending church services by priests. If the prelates are summoned, it will probably be upon a charge of inciting the people to disorder.

Flashlight Causes Panic.

A flashlight set off last night in the great Cathedral here while it was filled with worshippers nearly resulted in a panic. Three persons were crushed in the swaying throng, when they fell and were trampled upon. Fifty-three other persons were less seriously hurt.

Special dispatches from Guadalajara tell of great processions of Catholic men, women and children marching bare-foot as evidence of sorrow and penitence, through the streets of the city to a shrine several miles away in the suburbs, where were offered prayers for the settlement of the religious situation.

U. S. CONSIDERS THE REMOVAL OF ARMS EMBARGO

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 30.—Removal of the embargo which forbids shipment of arms into Mexico is the subject, meeting inquires with the State Department, which is to decide whether such a step shall be taken.

There are indications that some time may elapse before a decision is made. The State Department refuses to disclose its views on the subject, meeting inquires with the State Department, which is to decide whether such a step shall be taken.

Extreme caution has resulted from the fact that removal of restrictions has come up for decision at a time when the situation in Mexico is perhaps as tense as when 1924, and now is complicated by religious issues between the Government and churches of that country.

A recent modification of the embargo which permitted American exporters to make shipments of sulphuric acid to Mexico without obtaining special permits was said at the time by both the State and Treasury Departments to be entirely without relation to the embargo order as a whole.

CATHOLIC CLERGY ACCUSED OF TREACHERY BY CALLES

Final Fight Is on to See Whether Revolution or Reaction Has Triumphed in Mexico, He Tells Labor Supporters.

By the Associated Press. MEXICO CITY, July 30.—In an address to a delegation of the Confederation of Labor, which visited him at the palace last night, to inform him that the labor organization supported his religious policy, President Calles said:

"I believe we have reached the point when the situation is to be cleared up once for all time. The hour is approaching for a final fight, and we are going to see whether revolution has triumphed over reaction, or whether the triumph of the Mexican revolution has been merely ephemeral."

"As I have said on previous occasions, my Government has been deeply occupied in resolving grave national problems, such as adjusting the budget, spreading public education, industrial and agricultural development of the country, organization of the army and various social and economic problems. Preoccupied by these enormous tasks, the Government had almost forgotten the clerical element when, precisely at the most difficult moment of my administration, the Catholic clergy in all bad faith and treachery, threw its challenge to the Government of this republic."

"This challenge was made just at a time when questions were arising of an international character, which were defining whether Mexico was a sovereign country or not. (The President, presumably, refers to the oil land legislation.)"

Summons to Disobedience.

"At such a time the clergy threw its challenge to the Government, making declarations to the reactionary press of the capital, that they did not recognize the general constitution of the Mexican Republic and ordering all their supporters to disobey and fight the constitution."

"The clergy stated in its declaration that the religious clauses in the constitution were a hindrance to Mexico, an abuse, and should not be obeyed. In the face of this attitude the Government had to fight, according to law, and with right and justice, this high-handed attitude of the clergy. The result of this strife you already know. We are seeing it through. It is a struggle of darkness against light."

"I am absolutely certain the revolutionary movement is developing for the good of the Republic. (The President refers to the revolutionary movement which began in 1910 and of which the present Government is the outcome) and especially for the working classes."

"Definite triumph will be for us. I have always known the working classes would be in the vanguard in the struggle, because among them there is less egoism."

"The resolution of support presented by Confederation of Labor to President Calles says: 'We notify you that we are ready to defend the revolutionary principles with our lives. Only one thing does organized labor demand of you, which is that the situation be made clear, in order to be able to fight the enemy face to face and in the open; that you expel from your administration the sectarian elements which have always hindered the energetic work of the revolutionary government, in order that in this supreme movement every one may group about his colors.'

"The statement declares that during past Mexican history iron-handed dictatorship drowned in blood attempts of the workmen to free themselves. It continues:

"The Government is attempting to end the ignorance of Mexican workmen resulting from 20 years of tyranny and 10 years of revolution. It is this ignorance which the clergy is attempting to use by fixing in the minds of our comrades and our people generally the belief that the religion and the clergy are one and the same thing. You have shown, as we show, profound respect for all religious creeds; but we are opposed to profanation of the spirituality within a religion by using it as a weapon to destroy the revolutionary conquest of the people."

"Therefore, the proletariat offers you its enthusiastic support, notifying you that in this historic moment you are not alone, but that organized labor of Mexico is with you and does not hesitate to offer you its blood to save the revolution."

"Anything that has been enacted by law is a political issue," said Priest, replying to Williams' assertion that the prohibition question is nonpolitical. "Tyranny is always a political question. The only sense in which the wet and dry question is a moral one is in the very immoral results of prohibition."

SUCCESSOR TO DZERZHINSKY

Vladimir Kuybyshev to Head Soviet Economic Council.

By the Associated Press. MOSCOW, July 30.—It is understood that Vladimir Kuybyshev, Peasants' Inspection and president now chief of the Workers' and of the Central Control Commission of the Communist party, will be given the post of head of the Supreme Economic Council, made vacant by the recent death of M. Dzerzhinsky.

It is said S. Orzenokidist of Tiflis, a highly influential Georgian and a supporter of M. Stalin of the Executive Committee of the Communist party, will take M. Dzerzhinsky's place as head of the State police, formerly known as the "Cheka." Gregory Fraykov, who was Dzerzhinsky's right hand man on the Supreme Economic Council, has been relieved of his post.

BELGIAN TAXES STILL EQUAL

Cabinet Decides Discrimination Between Foreigners Is Impossible.

BRUSSELS, July 30.—The Belgian Cabinet, which has been considering decrees taxing foreigners in an effort to help restore Belgian finances, has decided definitely that it is impossible to discriminate between foreigners from countries having a high exchange and those having a low. The proposed discrimination would have hit nationals of the United States, Great Britain, Germany and Holland particularly hard.

The existing taxation of 10 per cent on rooms and apartments will be increased to 20. If meals are taken and paid for with rooms the tax will be 15 per cent. Foreign motor cars will pay a tax of 10 francs daily.

Sacco-Vanzetti Plea From Britain.

LONDON, July 30.—The General Council of the Trades Union Congress and the National Executive Committee of the Labor party have sent an appeal to the Massachusetts authorities for withdrawal of the death sentences against Sacco and Vanzetti, convicted of murder.

WETTEST PART OF SOUTH ST. LOUIS TO HEAR WILLIAMS

Senator to Speak Tonight at Gambrinus Hall, Named for Legendary Brewer.

CHARLES NAGEL TO APPEAR WITH HIM

Five Other Meetings at Which Republican Candidate Is to Speak Scheduled for the Evening.

The wettest part of South St. Louis will hear Senator George H. Williams tonight, when he speaks in the auditorium at Broadway and Salena street, named for the legendary founder of the brewing industry—Gambrinus Hall.

It was in Gambrinus Hall that Blodgett Priest, who is opposing Williams on a sopping wet platform, opened his campaign a few weeks ago. At tonight's meeting Charles Nagel is to speak.

did at the Tower Grove Turnverein meeting Wednesday night. There, Nagel argued that there were other issues besides the wet and dry question, and Williams said he would stand on the utterance of his opening speech at California. In that speech he said he would be guided by the wishes of the voters of the State, shown in a referendum vote, this being assumed to mean the vote on the proposed repeal of the State dry law in November.

Five Other Meetings.

Five other Williams meetings, at all of which the candidate is scheduled to speak, are announced for tonight. They are at the Buck-Isham Annex, Kingshighway and West Pine boulevard; at 1800 South Eighth street; at 2223 Warren street; at St. Paul's A. M. E. Church, J. Hauser, former president of the Central Trades and Labor Union, will preside at tonight's meeting.

Church. Lawton boulevard and Leffingwell avenue; and at Twenty-third and Wash streets.

In an afternoon talk at a women's meeting in the Maffitt Theater yesterday, Senator Williams talked of fundamental constitutional principles, and told of his study of the questions involved in the World Court issue.

"In studying thus to determine, for instance, how to vote on the Haugen-McNary farm relief project," he said, "it does not occur to you as a Senator to reflect upon whether you are wet or dry. It has nothing to do with the case."

"In all right months of work in the Senate the question which I was wet or dry did not once face me for solution. If you had tolled 12 or 16 hours a day in the Capitol, as I have done during my service there, never dreaming that the wet and dry issue would come up, you could appreciate how I felt when I came home to be surprised by designing men who injected this false issue into the campaign just to enable them to get control of the Republican party of Missouri."

Blodgett Priest, wet candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, speaking to the Junior Chamber of Commerce at the Front Street Hotel, attacked Senator Williams as a "straddler" on the prohibition issue.

"Anything that has been enacted by law is a political issue," said Priest, replying to Williams' assertion that the prohibition question is nonpolitical. "Tyranny is always a political question. The only sense in which the wet and dry question is a moral one is in the very immoral results of prohibition."

A Tender Conscience?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
WHEN I registered and took an oath to support the Constitution of the United States to entitle me to become a legal voter, I did it in good faith. But a tender conscience prompts me to ask a question as to my right to vote at the coming election if I have been guilty of buying and drinking bootleg liquor, which is clearly a violation of my oath to obey the laws of the United States.

Am I guilty of perjury if I cast a ballot? If the judges at the polls ask me if I have violated my oath and I reply that I have, does that justify a right to reject my vote? Have the judges the right to ask the question? If not, why not? If my vote is illegal, why should it be counted?

A VOTER.

Traffic Situation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
THE individuals responsible for the traffic regulations and the street maintenance of St. Louis seem to be obsessed with the idea of cluttering the street, wreck the vehicle and kill the driver, if possible.

An excellent rule of traffic regulation is, keep it moving, and within reasonable limits, the faster the better. This is best accomplished by eliminating traffic pockets by providing unobstructed roadways, reasonably wide and equally well paved from curb to curb.

The fact seems to be forgotten that the fellow behind the steering wheel is the same boob called a pedestrian when he travels on the sidewalks. The pedestrian does not keep to the right. He walks on the left side of pavements, he bumps into people when not looking, he suddenly darts in front of others, and even skids on slick pavements and comes a cropper. He does all of these things because he is an average thoughtless human being.

With these facts in mind, it should be clear to any reasonable person that the simplest traffic regulation with clear streets is always best. Yet the following situations exist in St. Louis:

Huge, poorly lighted concrete buttresses on Union boulevard near Cates avenue for the use of school children one hour a day, when temporary barriers with police protection is equally good and permits clearing the street.

A two-way silent cop for one-way traffic on Kingshighway for the benefit of the blind ally named Westmoreland place.

McPherson and Newstead cluttered with trench helmets and flicker standards which are a menace when burned out.

Large silent cops in narrow streets such as Locust, forcing single file traffic at the most dangerous point.

Silent cops on the near corner instead of the far corner, where pedestrians could see them and be governed accordingly.

Forty per cent of Delmar and Union boulevards are occupied by car tracks in the bed of a dry river, and for no reason whatever, it is proposed to do the same with Olive street.

I ask you, Partner, what kind of people are the persons who authorize these things?

DRIVER AND PEDESTRIAN.

We Welcome St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN regards to annexation it cannot come quick enough for us or most of all county residents. We lived all our lives in dear old St. Louis and moved out to Overland when we married because it is like St. Louis was when we were kids, streets unmade but good fresh air, trees, flowers, no noise or smoke. Those are our advantages, but we have our disadvantages also, which overbalance the good advantages such as people run their sewerage wherever they wish, right out your front yard, back yard, etc., which makes Overland in our district very dangerous, especially for children, and we have plenty of them out here. Also we have millions of mosquitoes.

Dear old St. Louis, we welcome you. MR. AND MRS. OVERLAND AND BABY OVERLAND.

The Redco Rider.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WILLIAMS' race for the United States Senate makes me laugh. He has straddled more horses at the same time than any man I ever knew.

He is riding the dry horse, the wet horse, the kila horse and the antikan horse, and I must say if some of those horses don't throw him on primary election day, I will confess he is the best rider I ever heard of.

But if he should be nominated and elected and a bill would come up in Congress affecting any of those parties, he would be compelled to fool somebody, because he can't be on both sides there.

Therefore, when I see a man straddle more than one horse, I am afraid of him and for that reason get off him.

POLITICAL OBSERVER.

MR. NAGEL'S STRANGE DOCTRINE.

Supporting the candidacy of Senator Williams for the Republican nomination for the United States senatorship, Charles Nagel, at a South Side Republican meeting, said:

I am opposed to prohibition because it is an attempt upon the part of the Government to interfere in the affairs of the sovereign states and because it is an attempt to regulate the private conduct of the citizens.

Mr. Nagel added:
But the prohibition question is not a political question and it cannot be made a legitimate party issue.

Thus Mr. Nagel defended the position of Senator Williams on the prohibition issue and knocked consistency and logic into a cocked hat.

When Mr. Nagel says that prohibition has caused the Government to invade the sovereignty of the states and interfere with the private conduct of citizens, in short, usurp state rights and powers and deprive citizens of their rights and liberties, and in the same breath declares it is not a political question, he chucks reason to the winds and makes politics a mockery.

Prohibition has amended the Constitution, the fundamental law of the land, so that the fathers who bequeathed it wouldn't know their own child. It has put into the statute books drastic laws designed to overthrow American principles and traditions, and to undermine all those rights and liberties which the Constitution was adopted to protect. It has spread the police power of the Federal Government into the states and under artificial criminal laws has put Federal law enforcement agents into every city, county and hamlet. It has put snappers and spies and law-officers into the homes and business places of citizens to search, seize and arrest citizens for acts not in themselves criminal.

If these governmental acts do not make prohibition a political question, we confess to a dense ignorance with regard to politics. We do not know politics when we see it.

Mr. Nagel says he opposes prohibition because it usurps state rights and powers and wrongly interferes with the conduct of citizens. How is he going to get rid of it? How is he going to repeal the eighteenth amendment unless he convinces the people that it is wrong and induces them to vote for its repeal? How is he going to repeal the prohibition amendment and repeal the prohibition laws unless he elects candidates who will vote for repeal?

Mr. Nagel says because prohibition is not a political issue it cannot be made a legitimate party issue. Does Mr. Nagel really believe that a bad policy of government, wrongful governmental acts, laws destructive of popular rights and liberties and respect for law, can or ought to be repealed by individual action, by social action, by moral action, by groups or blocs apart from parties? Does he believe in the abandonment of party government? Does he believe in the abandonment of all effort to control legislation and governmental action vitally affecting the people through parties? If we are to retain party government, how are we to effect changes in the laws and in administration policies except through parties? If the old parties cannot make prohibition a legitimate issue, then, according to Mr. Nagel's theory, we will have to organize a new party to save the people from wrongful governmental policy and action, bad laws and bad administration. Prohibition will then be a party issue and we will still appeal to party government.

Let us glance for a moment at Senator Williams' statement which Mr. Nagel is defending. Senator Williams says he will await a referendum of the people and will become wet or dry, in accordance with the expressed will of the people. When the will of the people has been registered with reference to prohibition, will Senator Williams and Mr. Nagel abandon the Republican party and treat prohibition as an issue wholly outside of the party, or will they not then make it a party issue and act with the party?

In view of the fact that prohibition is to be submitted to the people for decision, do Senator Williams and Mr. Nagel, his defender, believe that there ought or ought not to be a full and free discussion of the merits of prohibition in order that the people may make a sound decision? Do they or do they not believe that candidates for offices who will have to carry out the will of the people should or should not express their own opinions with regard to the right or wrong of the prohibition issue? Do they believe that an issue seriously affecting the law and the policy of government and the rights and liberties of the people is taboo to candidates for offices, who, in their official capacity, must make or repeal or modify the laws or determine governmental policies?

In short, do Senator Williams and his ingenious defender believe that a candidate for the great office of Senator, elected to advocate and support sound policies, just laws, should be dumb and blind on a question which touches the very fundamental principles of government? Do they believe that Congress ought to be dumb and blind with regard to an issue that rightfully is social and moral, but which has destructively invaded the practical policies of government to control the conduct of citizens? Do they believe that citizens should be deaf and dumb with regard to the opinions of the men they elect to decide what shall be the policy of the Government and what Congress shall do with regard to prohibition?

Senator Williams and Mr. Nagel, for the benefit of Senator Williams, may advocate dumbness and blindness with regard to prohibition and try to convince the people that they ought to ignore it as an issue in the election, but the prohibitionists are not so foolish. They are busily engaged in electing candidates who will carry out their destructive policies and advising people to vote for them.

Mr. Nagel is advising people to pay a high price for the nomination of Senator Williams.

A SAFER AIR MAIL ROUTE.

The uncertain flying weather of deep winter, when benighted aviators are whirled off their compass courses by shifting winds and the ground is obscured by swirls of driving snow, is to be shorn of some of its terrors for flyers on the Chicago-St. Louis air mail route.

Maj. William B. Robertson, president of the contract carrying company, has announced that work would be begun at once on the lighting of the route and the installation of seven emergency night landing fields. A total of $47,000 is to be spent in making the route safe for night flying.

The work will be completed by early fall, so that pilots leaving St. Louis on the northbound flight will have a well-marked route before them, when early darkness falls. Similarly, southbound flyers, who will be leaving Chicago before sunrise during the winter, will have a plain path to follow with the southbound mail.

The announcement is gratifying in that it insures the permanency of the service. Drawn from a Government appropriation of $200,000, it is an expression by the Postoffice Department that it believes the Chicago-St. Louis service worth while.

And as a final assurance that the route is to be operated on a first-class basis it is announced that the Weather Bureau is to install a meteorological station at Lambert-St. Louis field for the guidance of flyers. Obviously, the mail service is here to stay and Maj. Robertson is to be congratulated for his efforts in bringing it to St. Louis and keeping it here.

If Mussolini can imagine Patrick Henry crying "Co-operation or starvation!" he can do more than we can.

ENTER THE SPY.

How certain are the phenomena of political science! When it was found that the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution belonged to war hysteria and was no longer taken seriously after the war psychosis, it was inevitable that persistence in it would produce the spy. The spy has never failed to appear when law, lacking public sanction had to be jammed down the throats of the people. He slunk through the reigns of the Russian Czar, a sinister figure penetrating to the confidences of the students. He was a guest unbidden at the ancient feast, an eavesdropper at the medieval tryst. He turns up in the clothes basket in the Decameron. Sometimes he has been in the chimney, sometimes under the floor, sometimes in the closet—always loathed of men, always without honor. Wherever he has been able to insinuate himself, snake-like, hated, spreading distrust among men, there always the spy.

He turned up a few days ago in the trial of a New York run runner. There was called to the stand one A. Bruce Bielaski, formerly head of the Bureau of Investigation in the United States Department of Justice. It was not at first clear what his position is, but it developed that he is in New York on a secret mission from the Treasury Department. He is a spy. Asked what his connection with the Government is, he answered that he is head of a new Bureau of Prohibition Investigation. No such bureau has ever been officially announced. Bielaski said his Government title is Special Assistant United States Attorney-General, and that his salary is $1100 a month. He had paid sums ranging from $200 to $550 to Government witnesses in the trial. Asked if one of these is still on his payroll, he answered: "No, on the Government payroll." He is the personal representative of Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement. Lincoln has a contingent fund of $50,000, Washington, which is as much surprised as New York to learn that we have prohibition spies, figures that Bielaski and his kind must be paid out of this fund.

Anyway, the inevitable has happened. The Government spy, the man suspected by nobody and admitted to the secrets reserved for friends, has turned up in the effort to make people like prohibition whether they want it or not. The man who has at different times hidden in closets and behind doors, even concealing himself sometimes in the bedrooms of ladies, who is just as likely to die in the drain pipe as in bed, is thrust upon us once more by the Velstead law. Meet the spy.

Query: How much easier would it be for France to get on its feet financially if it had all the money spent to subdue Abd-el-Krim in Morocco and the Druse tribesmen in Syria?

WATCH THE BIRDIE, CHARLEY.

Charley Dawes, who is going to Colorado for trout, refused to pose in fishing togs before Chicago photographers. "Who do you think I am?" he demanded. "President Coolidge?"

Dawes is making a great mistake. If he really entertains serious White House ambitions he should begin now to be photographed as a fisherman, as a farmer pitching hay and carrying sap buckets, as a miner, a street-car motorman, stevedore, pearl diver, plumber and cowboy.

Photographs, not issues, are what decide modern elections.

It adds to the merriment of the campaign that Dave Proctor, making a plea for dignity on the part of candidates for the Senate, should in the same breath compare his opponents to poison-spitting snakes.

WASHINGTON MIGHT TRY HIM.

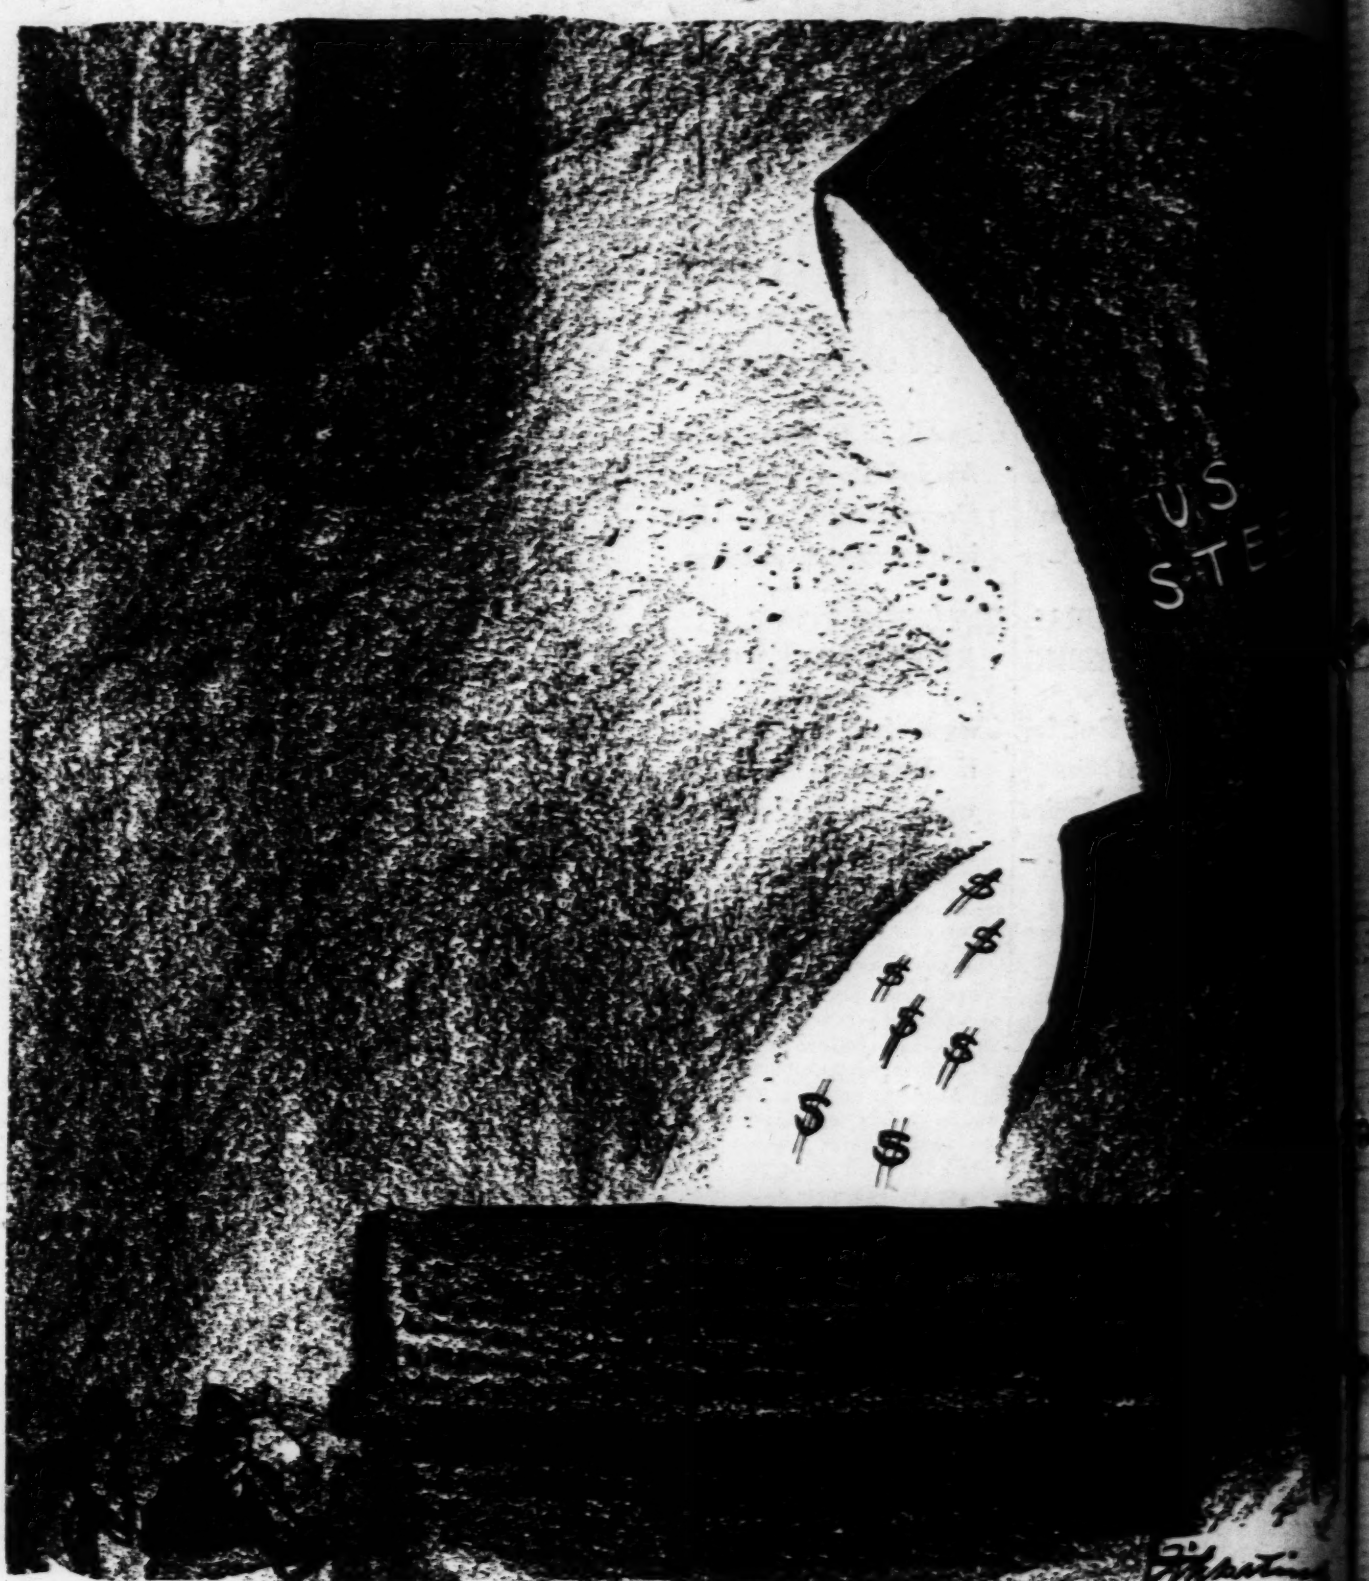

Jeremiah Smith, back home in Boston, has punctured the story the papers told about his returning the salary check for $100,000. He says he simply turned back an unexpended balance of $60,000 from the expense fund which the Hungarian Government allowed him for his secretarial staff. But that in itself was something of a feat, and under pressure he also had to admit that he did not receive any salary for his two years of labor in disentangling Hungary's finances.

"When you're going to go to work blue-penciling other people's salaries, you can't very well take a big one yourself," he explains. Since that is the way Mr. Smith feels about it we shall let this explanation stand. But a glimpse may be permitted at the way he proceeded in putting Hungary back on her financial feet. In the first place, he chose modest accommodations for himself and staff in preference to the gorgeous palace suite assigned him. Then, after arranging a loan, he set about giving a demonstration of Yankee economy. He fired thousands of useless officials, trimmed wages, curtailed expenditures, boosted taxes and saw they were collected, and did all these outrageous things so blandly that nobody raised the slightest row.

Quite a chap, this Jeremiah Smith of Boston. The more we hear about him the better he looks. One wonders if he might not accomplish some such miracle in Washington as he has performed in Budapest.

The Nation has been trying to find out if Republicans in the Senate think the Democrats in Pennsylvania ought to be elected, which takes the cake for midsummer meanness.

We expect any moment to hear that the man who said this would be another year without a summer has been murdered.

HE DROVE A MULE!

We miss the log cabin in which candidates used to be born. We mourn its passing. Formerly, a candidate who had the utter misfortune not to be born in a log cabin stood no more chance than we would in a beauty contest. Then candidates, in an effort to catch the public eye, took up golfing, hay-making and fishing. These diversions fell flat. The candidate's humble beginnings are the point of interest.

Therefore, we cheer George Brennan, aspirant to the Senate in Illinois, to the echo, if the echo is handy. George drove a mule! We're for you, George! Any candidate, making speeches from a Rolls-Royce, can say he formerly drove a Ford. Anyone can drive a mule! One—George Brennan! Illinois, this department graciously pardons, condones and forgives your primary scandal. Something has taken the place of the forgotten humble log cabin. George drove a mule!

We cannot approve of the St. Louis Retail Druggists' Association for their recommendation that the amount of prescription whisky be cut. The idea, evidently, is that prohibition has made drug-shops of drug stores. The well-known, but scarcely observed amendment forbids liquor for beverage purposes. If anything, druggists deserve censure for allowing restrictions to be put on legitimate medicinal sales. There is nothing more disgraceful in the sale of medicinal whisky than in the sale of nursing bottles.

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

PREPOSTEROUS HUMAN MATERIAL

From the Hamilton (O.) Journal.

THE St. Louis Post-Dispatch has been an Enquirer in its condemnation of primary election system. The Post-Dispatch with regretful conviction, thus delivers itself:

"We begin to realize that it is a present-system of primaries, once it is aided as a cure-all for every evil in politics, which makes it possible for a spume of ignorance and sublimated vanity to rise up and demand that a nation of trust, which require brains and ability and trained administrative capacity, be placed in their trust care."

"The citizen who looks out over the political field this year, contemplating dates offering themselves for positions both high and low, must, as the Post-Dispatch feelingly puts it, 'find his gurgles at the PREPOSTEROUS ASSUMPTIONS of the part of some of this human material.'"

"What is true of the nation is true of states and the minor political divisions. It is lamentably true of the state. What must be THE RESULT when state, county, township and municipal elections become more and more complex, abstract as the years go by? All of the problems should be handled by men able and competent. From high sources, quite frequently, are heard the full, anxious references to a falling of the vote in general elections. The answer is the answer. In neither party will a class of citizenship vote for its INCORRECT 'PRODUCT OF PEANUT' MEANS."

"In the broad view, the Republican Democratic National Committee are the best today. THE PARTY DISCIPLINE, once feared and respected is no more primary radically has modified conditions."

THE KEYSTONE OF ECONOMY

From the St. Joseph News-Press.

IN New Jersey, the latest State budget system, it is estimated that there will be a saving to the taxpayer of $1,000,000 in the current year. In Pennsylvania, where the system is well established, there was a net saving last year of nearly $2,000,000 on the five items of salaries and wages, traveling expenses, equipment, and printing and stationery. There is crying need in Missouri to form on this line. Through lack of checks on outgo much of the money in this State is wasted. The members of State funds of the biennium of 1923-24 (after deducting for bonus and road bonds) totaled $60,000,000. For the corresponding period 1925 the disbursements were only $50,000,000. Many State institutions in Missouri, as many boards, collect and spend without accounting for them to the State Treasury. WOMAN BOOMED FOR THE VICE PRESIDENCY

Friends of Governor of Wyoming Urge Her Nomination By Democrats.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 29.—The Vice President of the United States, Governor Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming.

This is the nomination being made in ever-increasing volume among Democrats of this State. Friends of the first woman ever to govern an American commonwealth are bending their efforts toward getting her up in her behalf this year. A majority greater than ever before has given a candidate for Governor of Wyoming and thus place her in the fore-front of those eligible for the Vice Presidential nomination at the next Democratic national convention.

A gracious smile was the only response Governor Ross would make when asked if the movement would meet her approval. She had received the correspondent at the executive mansion, where she was dictating corrections in her address of welcome to the National conference of Governors opening here.

Busy With State Problems.
Pressed for an expression on the Vice Presidential gossip, the Governor replied that her mind had been occupied almost exclusively with the affairs of Wyoming. In a State that is just developing on a large scale there are many things to be done, and any mistake now would affect generations to come. There was the great problem for Wyoming of water rights and distribution from this, the water shed of the continent. There was the problem of State aid to farmers and livestock men.

The Governor was vitally interested in the practical details of such problems and in the political game scarcely at all. It was her old-fashioned theory of government that affairs should be conducted in the interest of the people as a whole, rather than in the interest of those doing the governing. "Everyone Very Kind."

Told that many Republican politicians were privately conceding her re-election, a suspicion of moisture came into the Governor's eyes as she said simply and impulsively:

"Everyone has been generous to me—very kind."
Gov. Ross is not political—she refused to point with pride to any administrative accomplishment.

Her eyes said "these are my jewels" as they strayed toward a picture of her sons. They were George and Ambrose, 22 years old, twins, and Bradford, 18. George is a next year's Rhodes Scholar from the University of Wyoming. Ambrose is a "live wire" and Bradford this summer collected first prize in two broncho busting contests and is slated for a tryout in the great Cheyenne frontier days celebration.

Few Spectacular Acts.
As Governor, Nellie Ross has done few spectacular things. There was a prohibition enforcement of either or so removed. A Game Warden and a couple of Sheriffs went back to private life. The Governor wanted state officials to stay sober and enforce prohibition.

She vetoed a few bills passed by a Republican Legislature that has been learned to co-operate with her. Indeed, the Republicans are charging Governor Ross with a policy of stagnation or do-nothingism.

"A keen, shrewd woman," one Republican leader called her. "She is too careful a politician to do anything we can attack."
"A fine Governor, a square shooter," said a noted labor leader. "I didn't vote for her before—now I will."

No Opposition in Primary.
In the Democratic primaries to be held Aug. 17, Governor Ross has no opposition. Frank C. Emerson, State Engineer and Frank E. Lucas, Secretary of State are contesting for the Republican nomination.

The former is the candidate of the official Republican organization, which declared against the present primary law and on this issue hinges the election next fall. It is the Democratic hope that sufficient rural votes will desert the G. O. P. machine on his issue to cause a Democratic landslide.

Missing Woman Sought.
Search is being made for Mrs. Rosa Pryor, 25 years old, who disappeared July 14 while she and the family of her husband, Frank Pryor, were preparing to move from 1118 Clara avenue to 2753 Lafayette avenue where they now live. Relatives said she left the house with no personal effects to buy food for lunch and did not return.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THE name of Miss Julia Klipstein has been added to the list of 1926-27 debutantes, whose formal bows to society will play important roles in the formal season. Miss Klipstein, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Klipstein, who have taken possession of their new home at 22 Brentmoor, will accompany her mother on a trip to Hyannisport, Mass., returning home Sept. 15. They will leave St. Louis tomorrow.

Miss Klipstein is a graduate of Mary Institute and Miss Bennett's School in Millbrook, N. Y.

Harry Brookings Wallace of 4716 Pershing avenue will depart today to join Mrs. Wallace and their family at Magnolia, Mass., where they are guests of Mrs. Wallace's mother, Mrs. Samuel M. Kennard of Portland place, at her summer home.

Mrs. John Fowler of 35 Westmoreland place is the guest of Mrs. John Fremont Hill of Augusta, Me., at her summer home in Magnolia. She will leave there this week for Biddeford Pool, where she has a summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. R. Gifford of 411 North Newstead avenue are spending the summer at Annisquam, Mass., where they have a cottage.

Mrs. L. Ray Carter of 8 Portland place has opened her summer home, "The Pines," at Annisquam, and another family spending the summer there comprises Mr. and Mrs. John F. Betts of 5150 Westminster place, their daughters, Misses Mary Howell and Audrey, and their son, John F. Betts Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Jamison of 6105 Lindell boulevard and their son, Paul Jr., will leave St. Louis for the White Mountains. They will join Mr. and Mrs. Jamison's daughter, Miss Elizabeth, at Camp Cochechee, Me., and spend some time at the Washington Hotel in Bretton Woods and Swampscott, Mass.

Mrs. Patrick N. Lynch Bellinger of Washington, D. C., wife of Commander Bellinger, U. S. N., formerly Miss Miriam Benoit of St. Louis, has gone to Hot Springs, Va., to visit Miss Isabella Wells.

Mrs. E. L. Lynch of 5380 Barmere avenue and her daughters, Eleanor and Margaret, and Mrs. W. A. Meitell of Pershing avenue, will depart soon for Chicago, where they will be guests at the Edgewater Beach Hotel for a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. George Castleman Mackay, of 3680 Lindell boulevard, and their two young daughters have gone to Woods Hole, Mass., to pass the remainder of the summer. Mrs. Mackay's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Philander Cable, are now making their home at Buenos Aires, Argentina, where Mr. Cable is connected with the American legation. He has formerly been attached to the American legation in Sofia, Bulgaria.

Mr. and Mrs. George Chase, of 5579 Cates avenue, will depart early in August for Grand Haven, Mich., to pass the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. George Claves, of 4455 Maryland avenue, and her daughter, Miss Katherine Claves, are spending the summer in Brittany. They are expected to sail for home in October.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilbur Brown of Buckingham Court have sailed from New York for Europe. They will spend two months abroad and will sail for home, Oct. 1.

CARDINAL DUBOIS IMPRESSED BY RELIGIOUS FREEDOM IN U. S.
Archbishop of Paris Writes on His Experiences at Recent Chicago Eucharistic Congress.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, July 30.—The religious freedom in the United States and the lack of prejudice, greatly impressed Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris, who has written a letter to the weekly organ of his diocese concerning the recent Chicago eucharistic congress.

"The event was an incomparable triumph for the holy eucharist in that immense populous city, bustling with business, where all nationalities rub shoulders and every form of civilization and religion mingle together," the Cardinal wrote.

His letter sums up the congress as a lesson in faith and a striking testimony to the unity of the Catholic Church, which made strong impression, especially on those disbelievers in its doctrines or belonging to no religion. The Cardinal was particularly struck by the full liberty allowed the organizers of the congress, describing it as "an example of the truly liberal spirit."

He spoke of the co-operation of the civil powers with the religious in insuring success of the congress and drew attention to the official neutrality shown. He recalled that President Coolidge sent a message and that the Mayors of New York and Chicago received Cardinal Bonzano, the Papal Legate, and other Cardinals.

Attention, politeness and sympathy were everywhere, yet it was a Catholic fête in a country where Catholics are far from a majority," concludes the Cardinal, wondering when such liberty will be allowed the churches of France.

Williams to Speak at Picnic.
The annual picnic of Mary Queen of Peace Catholic Church will be held Saturday and Sunday on the parish grounds on Berry road near Algonquin lane. Senator Williams will deliver a speech Saturday at 3 p. m.

CHARLES A. COX DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Ex-President of Merchants' Exchange Will Be Buried From Home Tomorrow.

Charles A. Cox, 79 years old, former president of the Merchants' Exchange, and for 50 years in the meat packing business in St. Louis, died of pneumonia today at his home, 501 Clara avenue.

The funeral will be at the home tomorrow, followed by interment in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mr. Cox came to St. Louis in 1876 from Kentucky. He entered into a firm known as the Morris, Butt & Cox Packing Co. This was dissolved in the following year, and the Cox & Gordon Packing Co. was formed. Mr. Cox continued as president of this firm until his death. His place of business is at 1019 South Third street.

He was president of the Merchants' Exchange in 1889. He was a director of the Merchants-Labor Bank for 20 years, withdrawing from the directorate five years ago. He was a former president of the Kentucky Society, and was a member of the St. Louis Club.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sarah A. Cox, two sons, Charles G. Cox of Oakland, Cal., and Douglas A. Cox of St. Louis; and three daughters, Mrs. Virginia Brank of Summit, N. J., Mrs. Sarah Sims of Kobe, Japan, and Mrs. Ethel Lowell of Worcester, Mass. He had 17 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

TEMPERANCE CONGRESS ENDS
Twenty Nations Represented at World Gathering in Esthonia.

By the Associated Press.
DORPAT, Esthonia, July 30.—Bishop James Cannon Jr. of Richmond, Va., said today that the world's temperance congress, which has concluded its work, was the most fertile of any temperance gathering within his memory. Twenty nations were represented by 390 delegates.

At the final sessions yesterday a resolution was passed affirming that the sale of alcohol is one of the chief social evils of the world and urging that, although the temperance congress had not decided respecting means for removing the evil, society should not underestimate it. The resolution also appealed to the League of Nations to examine into the question of alcohol in a similar manner to its investigation of opium traffic. It supported local prohibition and urged more thorough investigation into the results of prohibition in the United States.

Miss Hildegarde Frerichs of St. Louis is at the Oceanide, Magnolia, for the summer.

Mrs. Festus J. Wade of 4532 Lindell boulevard, has gone to Montreal, Canada, to pass the late summer.

Miss Loraine Grover, daughter of James Hamilton Grover of Hotel Chase, will depart Tuesday with her father for Hot Springs, Va., to remain until September. Miss Grover will be among a party of sub-debutantes from St. Louis, who sail from New York Oct. 2, under the chaperonage of Mrs. Atwell Lincoln. Other members of the party will be Miss Julia Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Wells of 13 Kingsbury place; Miss Janet Shields, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Shields, of 6409 Wydown boulevard, and Miss Margaret Burkham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burkham, of 5035 Westminster place. Miss Grover was graduated in June from Miss Porter's school in Farmington, Conn.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR WILLIAM F. COURT TODAY
Vice President of Printing Concern Suffered Loss of Both Legs Two Years Ago.

Funeral services for William F. Court, vice president of the Court-Usner Printing Co., who died Tuesday after a short illness, will be held at 2:30 p. m. today from an undertaking parlor at 1905 South Grand boulevard.

Two years and a half ago both of Court's legs were amputated, following an infection. Since that time he had been taken to his office each day in a chair placed in an automobile.

He was 61 years old, and lived at 5531 Tennessee avenue.

Artist and Sportsman Dies.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 30.—Louis J. Rhead, 69-year-old artist and sportsman is dead, at his country home at Amityville, Long Island, of a heart attack thought to have been induced by his exertions recently in hooking and landing a 38-pound turtle, which had been devastating the trout ponds on his estate. Mr. Rhead was well known as an illustrator of children's books, and as an author of books on angling.

Damascus' Gardens of Biblical Lore Echo to Rattle of Machine Guns

Smell of Burnt Powder Replaces Aroma of Blossoms, Where the Princes of Babylon Once Walked.

By the Associated Press.
DAMASCUS, Syria, July 30.—The Gardens of Damascus, by tradition the oldest inhabited city in the world, where the apostle St. Paul and the prophets of old once preached eternal life and good will among men, now echo to the rattle of machine guns, the roar of cannon and the drone of airplanes pouring death and sowing hatred.

Somber Senegalese and swarthy Circassian troops are stalked by savage Arab discontents across the expanse, and indomitable druses march through the palm-flanked avenues where the princes of Babylonia, the Pharaohs of Egypt, the prophets of Israel and the Emperors of the West once walked.

Once the gardens formed a huge emerald set in the yellow sands of the Syrian Desert, but today they are taking on the gray color of forbidding fortresses. Barbed wire lines their paths formerly hidden under fences of flowers. The smell of burnt powder and the inevitable odors of a bitterly fought battle-ground have replaced the aroma of blossoms.

City Being Steadily Destroyed.
For some time the Gardens of Damascus have been the scene of steady fighting between the French army that is maintaining France's mandate in Syria, and the disaffected druses who seek to storm Damascus itself. Fully 500 men must have lost their lives in the sanguinary struggle that halted when the French troops returned to their protected lines within the city, abandoning the gardens last Monday.

Damascus itself, more or less in a state of siege since October, 1925, is steadily being destroyed in the opinion of neutral observers.

In the eyes of Orientals, Damascus is a rich jewel, "the pearl of the East." It has maintained during 4000 years of reputation unequalled in antiquity. Fabulously wealthy in trade and commerce, "the head of Syria," as the prophet Isaiah once called it, has for centuries immortal equipped camel caravans loaded with precious goods which found their way into the markets of the world. It was an "Arabian Nights" city of splendors.

Now, with its Midan and Shagour quarters—one-third of the city—practically destroyed, and its other two-thirds lifeless, their shops and bazaars closed, it is a city slowly dying. Caravans no longer leave for outside countries and trade is at a standstill.

Tomb of the Emperor Saladin.
When the prophet Mohammed first gazed upon Damascus and its fair gardens, he exclaimed: "Verily, this is a paradise." Tradition says he thereupon turned his back on the city, refusing to enter, saying that Allah had promised heaven beyond life and that he did not want to jeopardize his chances by entering an earthly paradise. These same gardens, now the picture of war, present anything but the aspect of paradise.

Bankers Meet London on Farm.
By the Associated Press.
OREGON, Ill., July 30.—Several hundred members of the Illinois Bankers' Association intent upon learning first-hand just what agriculture needs, the better to formulate their policy toward farm relief proposals, will meet on the 4500-acre farm of Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, here today. Lowden, just back from a tour of Europe to study agricultural conditions, will give the bankers the benefit of "Lessons From European Agriculture."

MOTHER A CHAMBERMAID TO KEEP DAUGHTER IN LUXURY

Without Denial Hears Child Call Her "the Cook"—Shuffling Trial Reveals Facts.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 30.—How a mother worked as a hotel chambermaid, so that her daughter might live on Riverside drive and study for the stage, was told in court today. The mother even accepted without denial her daughter's description of her as cook instead of mother.

Mrs. Mary Tapola, 48 years old, and her daughter, Mrs. Marian Abrams, 19, who came here two years ago from Crosby, Minn., were taken to court for sentence for shoplifting. The mother having pleaded guilty and the daughter having been convicted.

A probation officer told the court that at the time of the arrest the daughter had denied any relationship with her mother, said she had met her by chance in the store, and that the elder woman used to be her cook. The mother made no denial, accepted full responsibility, and pleaded guilty. The daughter was dressed in fashionable and expensive clothes while the mother was shabbily attired. Each paid a fine of $50.

DENIES BENEFIT FUNDS ARE USED FOR POLITICAL PURPOSES

City Register, Head of Municipal Employees' Association Replies to Koehn Supporters.

J. H. Grosse, city register, and chairman of the board of trustees of the Municipal Employees' Benefit Association, today issued a statement declaring that no part of the association's funds was being used for any political purpose in connection with the primary or otherwise. The funds, he said, are held for the benefit of the employees, the purposes being chiefly recreational. There is also a plan for a loan fund.

Grosse's statement was in the form of a reply to charges made by the supporters of Collector Koehn, to the effect that the employees' association is giving financial support to the campaigns of Neumann for Collector and Proctor for Senator. "Not a cent of the organization's funds has been expended in behalf of any candidate in this campaign," Grosse declared.

and Kansas City should leave nothing undone to bring out the vote. In the case of Williams' campaign the disturbing elements were more easily located. David M. Proctor, the dry candidate against Williams, has made consistent gains in the country and the knowledge of this gradually permeated to the Williams supporters and aroused them from their political sleep. Proctor had the Antislavery League and the W. C. T. U. behind him and many places he succeeded drawing to his support active party workers who had no affiliations with either of these organizations. The included in virtually every county Republicans who had sought office under Gov. Baker and had failed to get the jobs. They were regular Republicans who had worked for the party and who had the same claims for party recognition that those had who got the jobs. But of course there never are enough jobs to go around and for almost everyone appointed there are from two to 10 who fail to land and are disappointed.

The K. K. K. Flurry.

Then the Ku Klux Klan endorsed Williams and that raised a disturbance within the Williams organization, leaders fearing that it would mean a gain of thousands of votes for Blodgett Priest, wet opponent of Williams.

Then the most dangerous of all rumors reached the western part of the State from St. Louis. That was that there was considerable question that the Koehn machine in St. Louis would be able to function very efficiently for Williams on primary day. The report has been circulated here that Koehn has a real fight on his hands for renomination for Collector and that there is at least an even chance that he will be too busy looking after his own interests to give much attention to Williams.

If this should prove to be the case, it undoubtedly would mean an increased vote for Priest, a decreased vote for Williams and a net gain for Proctor. So the order has gone out to the Republican organization in Kansas City to deliver for Williams down to the very last vote. The Hawes and Williams leaders express confidence of ultimate success.

Situation in Kansas City.

There seems little question that both Williams and Hawes will carry Kansas City. The Proctor organization will go down the line for Hawes and it should have no difficulty in delivering for him a majority of approximately 15,000 out of an expected total Democratic vote in the city of from 40,000 to 45,000.

It appears that about 90 per cent of the Republican city organization in Kansas City is supporting Williams and there should be no question about its ability to carry the city for Williams, however, this is Proctor's home and the organization may not be able to do as much as it expects. Proctor leaders insist it will be nearly an even break in Kansas City between Proctor and Williams, but it is more likely that Williams will have a majority of something like 3000 or 4000 out of a probable total Republican vote in the city of 35,000.

DEMPSEY TO TRAIN AT SARATOGA; STARTS EAST NEXT SUNDAY

LICENSES NOT TO BE ISSUED FOR FORTNIGHT

Col. Phelan, Commissioner, Will Reserve Decision on Fighters' Applications, Until National Guard Breaks Camp.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., July 28.—Jack Dempsey will leave Colorado Springs Sunday afternoon for New York City to apply for a license to fight Gene Tunney, challenger, there Sept. 15.

Dempsey decided to depart Sunday after receiving a telegram from Tex Rickard, promoter, asking him to hurry East.

Dempsey will stop two days in Chicago and spend several days in New York City before going to his training camp at Saratoga Lake.

Tunney Calls on Col. Phelan.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, insisting that they want to battle for the heavyweight boxing championship, must await the pleasure of one who is training a regiment of men for any big fight that may come along.

Col. John L. Phelan, upon whom hinges the heavyweight situation at the present time, as chairman of the license committee of the New York State Athletic Commission, is too busy preparing men for war to take any action in regard to a mere boxing match.

Tunney, a veteran of France himself, visited the Colonel at the camp of the National Guard at Peekskill, N. Y., yesterday, and made known his plans to obtain a possible license to fight Dempsey.

The Colonel was affable and discussed various matters with Gene for an hour. He also escorted him on a tour of the camp during which the boxer shook hands with ring guardsmen.

Must Wait Until Aug. 11. After the conference the Colonel said no decision regarding a license would be forthcoming until he was out of the army and back at his desk in New York. That will be Aug. 11.

Col. Phelan said Tunney's and Dempsey's applications would be decided on their merits.

MILK LINGLEN TO GIVE PYLE ANSWER IN NEXT FEW DAYS

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 30.—Suzanne Linglen will decide within a few days whether she will proceed to the United States under the banner of Charles Pyle, American sports promoter, or whether she will refrain from all tennis until the Riviera season opens.

With legal counsel Mr. Pyle has conferred with the French champion at her summer home in Fourville, but Suzanne, under the advice of her father, who is acting as legal and technical adviser, has requested a few more days to make up her mind.

Yankee Second String Stars Have Played Important Role In Team's Success This Year

New York Has Run Roughshod Over All Opposition In Spite of Injuries to Dugan, Meusel, Catchers Collins and Bengough and Two Hurling Aces.

By Herman Wecke.

There's an old saying "that no ball club is stronger than its substitutes."

That holds true of the 1926 Yankees, who are running roughshod over all opposition in the American League pennant race. Without good reserve talent, there's no telling what position the New York club would hold today. But the Yankees have excellent reservists and that's the story.

Miller Huggins' aggregation has carried on in the two-thirds of the campaign already completed with its share of bad breaks as far as injuries are concerned.

Indicating that no matter what the New York outfit looks like when stacked up against other clubs on paper, it is nevertheless a pretty fair organization. There are those who hold that the Browns' infield of Slater, McIlillo, Gerber and McManus has it all over Gehrig, Lazzeri, Koenig and Dugan. Which probably is true, as the only place the Yanks could really be given an edge is at third. Dugan being regarded as one of the best in the business. But the Browns, be it known, do not possess the substitutes that are hanging around on the Yankee bench waiting for a chance.

Three Stars Out of Game. Dugan started the season as one of the main cogs of the Yankees. He batted over .400 for the first 15 games. Then his "trick" knee gave out and he was forced on the shelf. That was blow No. 1. But the Yankees carried on with Mike Gazzella, a Southern Association graduate, at the hot corner. Gazzella did so well that only recently Dugan was able to get his old place back.

Next Bob Shawkey, a pitcher of parts, went out with a broken bone in his foot. But others stepped in and the New Yorkers kept right on winning.

It did not stop there, not the Yankees' misfortune. Bob Meusel, hitting .365 and leading the American League in stolen bases at the time, was forced out of the battle from a fractured foot, suffered in trying to add to his piling total. But once more substitutes were available and Huggins' troupe carried on.

Regular Catchers Crippled. Meanwhile Benny Bengough, a catcher, was having trouble with his arm. He was unable to work. Pat Collins, former Brownie, was doing it all. But Collins finally went out with a strained arm and it looked as if the Yankees were up against it. They had Bill Skiff, an Association graduate, but he knew little of American League methods. Bengough, had arm and all, was also pressed into service.

That looked like the worst break of all for the Yankees. But about this time, the Senators asked for waivers on old Hank Severid and Huggins claimed him. Thus the New Yorkers were again well equipped.

Waite Hoyt, right hand pitcher, also went out for a time, but he's back, as is Shawkey.

When Meusel went out, Huggins snared Roy Carlyle, an outfielder, from the Red Sox to help out.

Now Huggins has Paschall, who is doing most of the playing during Meusel's absence, and Carlyle as extra outfielders, while he has Ward, Adams and Gazzella awaiting a chance to break into the infield.

Huggins Not Sitting Tight. And with Collins and Bengough on the injured list, Huggins has Severid for the catching duty.

But Huggins is not sitting tight. That was evinced when he put in a claim for Roger Peckinpaugh. He wants the veteran on hand to replace Koenig, who has shown a tendency to "blow" in the pinches. Thus Huggins seeks to fortify the Yankees against another possible misfortune.

It proves that the Yankee second string players have played no small part in the success of the New York club this season. Also showing that it's a wise manager who has plenty of good substitutes sitting around on the bench waiting for a chance to replace an injury, or even a faltering regular.

AMATEUR BOXER WANTS TO BORROW $75,000 AND ENTER PRO RANKS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Henry Lamar, amateur light heavyweight boxing champion of the United States, may now realize his ambition to become a professional fighter. His wife, Phyllis Moore Lamar, just turned 21, has inherited $150,000 from the will of her uncle, James Shackelford, of Montreal, Canada. Harry wants to borrow $75,000 to launch his professional career.

So far Mrs. Lamar has refused to advance the money, because, she said today, she wants Henry to give up boxing.

The Lamars were married in 1923 and kept it a secret for some time. Later, Mrs. Lamar started divorce proceedings, but dropped them when Henry "promised to be a good boy." He returned to his studies in the University of Virginia.

He and Phyllis have not lived together, however, since the reconciliation. "I couldn't live on the make," he was an amateur boxer, she declared.

EAST, ST. LOUIS TRAP SHOOTER TAKES SECOND

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 29.—G. Ford of Detroit won the grand handicap championship and Herman Grinstead of Indianapolis won the double targets championship at yesterday's wind-up of the amateur trap-shooting Association, central division tournament here.

Grinstead broke 75 out of 100 targets, to tie with S. L. Denny of East St. Louis, Ill., but the former won a shoot-off.

Ford had a score of 98.

NATIONAL BASEBALL BODY OPENS MEETING TODAY

By the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., July 29.—The officials of the National Baseball Federation will gather here today in their semiannual meeting.

The principal topic under discussion will be that of the playing rules under which the national tournament will be played in Philadelphia during the early part of September.

About 50 delegates from all cities on the circuit are expected for the meeting. New Haven, Waterbury, New York, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Memphis, Erie, Indianapolis, Boston and other cities will probably send representatives.

15 POWER BOATS ARE ENTERED FOR GOLD CUP RACE AUG. 21

By the Associated Press.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., July 29.—Fifteen sleek powerboats, six more than started in last year's contest, have been entered for the 1926 Gold Cup race, classic feature of the Gold Cup Regatta, to be held in Manhasset Bay, off here, Aug. 21 and 22.

The entry list is headed by Caleb S. Bragg's Baby Bootlegger, winner of the trophy for the past two years. Five other boats that figured in last year's 50-mile test also are entered, among them Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell's Nuisance, Carl Fisher's Baby Shadow, put out of the 1925 race when it caught fire while leading; and Impeh and Solar Plexus, owned by Horace E. Dodge of Detroit, who has four entries altogether.

Other entries include two representing the Detroit Yacht Club, one each from the Indian Harbor Yacht Club (Conn.), Forest Adair of Sarasota, Fla., and Wagg & Bigelow of Palm Beach, Fla.

WRAY BROWN TO PLAY INDIANAPOLIS STAR

By the Associated Press.

Wray D. Brown, local tennis star, will play an exhibition match in Indianapolis on Sunday. He is expected to play a singles contest against John Hennessy, Indianapolis champion, and in doubles following the singles.

The occasion of Brown's visit to Indianapolis is the opening of that city's first grass courts. Four courts have been laid out at the Highland Golf and Country Club in Indianapolis. For the past several years Indianapolis has held a number of exhibition matches, in addition to the national play court and Western Association tournaments.

MISS WILLIS WINS SECOND ROUND MATCH

By the Associated Press.

EAST HAMPTON, N. Y., July 29.—Miss Helen Willis, national champion, defeated Mrs. Frederick Schmitz of New York, 6-2, 6-1 today in the round before the semifinals of the women's invitation tennis tournament. It was the California girl's second match since her return to competition here.

Brooklyn let Ford go because there was dire need to acquire Eutler. The latter unfortunately turned up with a disorganized stomach that went on strike at training camp and Uncle Robby had to send him to Johns Hopkins to have his stomach overhauled.

With Maranville then playing shortstop and second base, five times were hard and days were dreary for Uncle Robby.

Now Ford is never likely to go back to Brooklyn, but if he can steady the Cincinnati infield he may help to bring the Reds back to first place. The Pirates may lose some of their games with Western teams, but the Reds have got to find a streak of pay dirt and win about 19 games to show to be thoroughly on their feet again.

Maranville Next Old-Timer Likely To Draw Release

By John B. Foster.

Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, July 29.—Another colorful career in baseball apparently is coming to a close. Next of the veterans to draw an unconditional release is likely to be "Rabbit" Maranville, who has played some games for Brooklyn this year. All major clubs have expressed a lack of interest in his future, and Uncle Wilbert Robinson will probably permit him to depart in peace.

The "Rabbit" in his day has been a fine ball player, and he would have had a far more glorious past if he had not taken too much of his professional career as a ride on the waves of fancy. This year he began the season by starting every old bird in the big league when he accepted 15 chances in one nine-inning game. That is by far the best fielding stunt performed so far this year on a major league diamond.

Cure Worse Than the Disease. Maranville seemed to be going along happily to a future in which his name again might adorn the posters of fame, and then he spilled his dignity and immediate skill by catching cold. When a ball player catches cold it goes hard with him because the medicine for a cold upsets the system dreadfully.

Off and on the "Rabbit" played fairly well for Brooklyn, but it became obvious some time ago that the team would never go forward until it put a player in short field who could get over more ground than the little fellow, Little Fellow, who, as side partner of Johnny Evers in 1914, put the Giants to rout after they had appeared to be almost sure pennant winners. Evers had earned his fame before that, but Maranville won his spurs more gladly have taken him from George Stallings and Boston after it happened.

But it didn't happen again. The "Rabbit" went to the navy and the life was too much one of "Sweeney" for a landlubber after he came back to baseball after the war. He flashed every now and then like a sputtering wick in a candlestick, but he never has been the same Maranville of 1914 and 1915, although he has had opportunities to be captain, manager and chief of the gallery.

Valuable to Minor League Team. There are plenty of minor league clubs that can use Maranville, especially those that need a veteran to steady an infield. But his playing days for the majors are about completed.

Missouri Open Aug. 31.

Missouri open tournament for this year has been awarded to Joplin and will be held over the Schifferdecker Country Club links Aug. 31 and Sept. 1. The best medal score for 72 holes will win the title.

Eddie Held, who recently won the Trans-Mississippi title at Algonquin, is the present open champion and will probably defend his crown.

Harry Cooper, Joe Matthews and Dewey Longworth will head a formidable list of Kansas City players at Joplin and about a dozen local pros and a sprinkling of amateurs will take part. Fifteen trophies, valued at $750, will be awarded the winners.

City Pro Meet Later.

At a meeting of local professionals following the Joplin event, the date will be set for the city professional championship tournament. Earl Howell won the title in 1925.

Developing Talent.

The monthly pro-amateur gatherings, inaugurated this year, in which the two classes of players are paired in a low-ball affair, have been highly successful and another will be held soon. The meetings are especially beneficial to young amateurs whose play is steadied by a professional amateur partner and corrected by advice.

Long Gets a 61.

HAROLD LONG, professional at the Lakeside Club in Oklahoma City, hung up a remarkable record over the home course last week by breaking the course record and turning in a 61 for 18 holes, bettering the mark of 62 held jointly by Bobby Cruikshank and Bill Creavy, brother pros.

Long has been at the Lakeside links for about a year, and not long ago was a caddy at the various courses around here, playing in caddy tournaments under the name of "Sherry" Long. His first professional engagement was at Galesburg, Ill., which he left for the Lakeside offer.

Long must have been scared by the monstrous 28 he made on the first nine and took 38 to come in. He missed a putt for a par 3 and a 69 on the eighteenth.

Playing on greens where he goes in the direction in which he is pushed will be like, say, up a job as Dempsey's manager and taking on Mike McManis, one of our promising weights. In addition to Mike Lawrence Schutte, who has yet reached his majority, he should beatville the Texas "sledge gun" and Chester Olsen will make the trip.

MAYOR'S BRIDGE PLAN DEFENDED AND ATTACKED

C. E. Smith and H. S. Caulfield Speak for F. H. Gerhart Against It Before Aldermen's Committee.

Two speakers supporting the Mayor's plan for making the Municipal Bridge useful to the railroad and one opposing it appeared yesterday before the Public Utilities Committee of the Board of Aldermen, holding its first public hearing on the proposal at City Hall.

C. E. Smith, consulting engineer for the city, presented the chief features of the Mayor's proposal and the benefits expected to accrue from it. Henry S. Caulfield, representing the Alton & Southern Railway, was the other speaker in support.

Frank H. Gerhart, representing three improvement associations of south and southwest St. Louis, opposed the plan. The trunk line members of the Terminal Railroad Association were not represented at the hearing.

Glendy Arnold, attorney for the Chamber of Commerce, announced his intention to speak at a later hearing, to be held after the Board of Aldermen convenes Sept. 15.

Mayor Attends. Mayor Miller was present during Smith's exposition of his plan, but did not participate in the discussion further than to prompt Smith, by a question, to point out how his plan is expected to diminish or perhaps remove entirely the Terminal so-called "arbitrary" long held to be a handicap upon the industrial development of the city.

The substance of Smith's explanatory talk was as follows: It is proposed, by building the southern approach to the bridge authorized in the bond issue, to connect the Manufacturers' Railway, a belt line, with the bridge, that road having promised to use the bridge if such connection is provided. The southern approach also would connect the Missouri Pacific with the bridge and the hope is that, with the connection provided, the Missouri Pacific could not economically, either to itself or its shippers, decline to use it. It also is proposed to permit the Alton & Southern, a belt line connecting with all but one of the East Side trunk lines, to build an approach in Gratiot street, connecting with the Missouri Pacific southwest lines at Fourteenth street and through the Missouri Pacific with the Frisco and Rock Island. Thus physical facilities would be provided for the interchange of freight between the east and west bank of the river by virtually all the lines running east and west from St. Louis.

Charge of $1 a Car Proposed. The charge which the Mayor proposes to make for the use of the bridge is sufficient only to pay interest on the investment and provide maintenance. In the beginning a flat charge of $1 a car is proposed. As volume of freight movement increases, it is proposed to reduce this to the figure resulting from a division of all costs to the city by the number of cars passing over the bridge.

Thus it is hoped that the present figure included by the Terminal Railroad in its rates as the cost of bringing freight over the river will be sharply reduced until eventually the railroads will find it profitable to make its rates from the 100-mile zone about St. Louis the same as St. Louis to East St. Louis. At the present time the present higher rates to St. Louis are held to include the so-called "arbitrary."

A Contrast in Present Rates. In support of this analysis of the benefits that might reasonably be expected to accrue from the Mayor's plan, Smith cited this condition:

"The rate of the Missouri Pacific on iron ore moving from South-east Missouri to Granite City is $11.10 a ton when that ore moves through St. Louis and over the present river crossings controlled by the Terminal Railroad," he said. "However, the congestion of the St. Louis terminals has provided for its own use a car ferry at Ivory street. When it moves from Ivory street over the Ivory street ferry, its rate is reduced to 75 cents a ton."

"Hence," Smith concluded, "the essence of the Mayor's plan is to cheapen the cost of crossing the river with freight and hence it tends to lower rates."

Objects to Toll on Free Bridge. Gerhart's long technical and legal exposition of the free bridge situation was built upon insistence that the bridge was projected by the people to be a free bridge and that any plan which proposed any toll whatsoever was in conflict with that purpose.

Smith had cited the original bridge ordinance, which contains a clause empowering the Board of Aldermen to fix "compensation" for use of the bridge by any public utility. He declared that this destroyed the position of Gerhart that the people contemplated that public utilities would use the bridge with charge.

Gerhart, in reply, quoted the preamble to the ordinance in which it is declared that the bridge forever shall be a free bridge. He declared that this was the version upon which voters had cast ballots and by casting an affirmative majority they had forever made the bridge

TERMINAL PRESIDENT MARSHALS OBJECTIONS TO MAYOR'S BRIDGE PLAN

Gratiot Street Approach Especially He Says Would Tend to Increase Instead of Relieving Congestion of Railway Traffic.

Certain railroad objections to Mayor Miller's plan for immediate use of the Municipal Bridge by the roads are set forth in a letter sent to the Mayor yesterday by Henry Miller, president of the Terminal Railroad.

As is known, the Mayor's plan contemplates providing approaches to the bridge for the Alton & Southern and Manufacturers' Railways under their pledge then to use the bridge. One of these proposed approaches would be constructed in Gratiot street and President Miller's chief objection is directed against this phase. He declares that the approach would create five new grade crossings and would tend to complicate the use of established facilities in the Mill Creek Valley.

Already one of the chief worries of the Terminal in handling passenger and freight trains expeditiously. Furthermore, he declares, the Mayor's plan leaves to other, larger railroads, the financial responsibility of building their own approaches under terms which would make the financing of such approaches difficult if not impossible.

He intimates that he city must look to the Terminal Railroad to provide the new belt lines which will be necessary to serve expanding industry, while conferring upon competitors of the Terminal the benefits of use of the bridge.

His letter, which was published in late editions of the Post-Dispatch yesterday, follows: "I am sorry that absence from the city prevented an earlier reply to your letters of July 14 and July 24, and apologize for the delay. You may be assured of hearty co-operation in any plan that is best for the city and its shipping interests. I think the records at the city hall will show that, during the six years of my administration, there have been no matters in which the city and this association were jointly interested that have not been amicably adjusted, and that there are now no matters pending unsettled. This policy will be continued."

Bridge Capacity Ample. "Regarding your plan: The East and Merchants bridges are fully occupied only about four hours of the 24, indicating ample bridge capacity now and for many years to come."

"St. Louis lacks yards for the assembly, classification and distribution, and for the loading and unloading of carload freight. "The experience is that the facilities for handling freight and passenger traffic are outgrown about every 12 years; therefore, our terminal problem is to provide for the expansion of facilities for this purpose accordingly."

"In the development of your plan near in mind that the city has built, at a cost of several millions of dollars, the east approach of the Municipal Bridge to a connection with the Alton & Southern, and proposes to build a southern approach to a connection with the Manufacturers' Railway, which will involve a large outlay, but provides that the other railroads shall construct and maintain their own connection and that no license to use the Municipal bridge shall be issued for any stated term or period."

"The heavy outlay involved in constructing connections, except for a very limited use of the bridge, could not be financed on such a temporary grant; therefore, your plan will not appeal to the 17 trunk lines that furnish practically all of the transportation facilities and handle the bulk of the traffic to and through this gateway."

"It also disregards the essential elements of the plan of the Terminal Committee, which in many respects repeats the recommendations of the Terminal Facilities Committee of the Business Men's League in 1924, and the Municipal Terminals Commission in its reports to the municipal assembly during its four years of service, 1925 to 1929."

Objects to Gratiot St. Plan. "To construct a double track in Gratiot street, as proposed, involves five railroad grade crossings, and no great amount of traffic could be interchanged through that channel without seriously interfering with the service required by those industries, among which the one of the largest is the Terminal."

"It would also interfere with the operations and service at the main freight station and team yard of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway and prevent access to the Gratiot street team yard, the largest Terminal car loading facility on the south side of the Mill Creek Valley."

"That is a very congested district and service is rendered there under many difficulties on account of the limited area and track layout."

"Your plan would complicate what is already a bad situation and serve to increase rather than diminish congestion in the Mill Creek Valley from which, owing to the passenger zone and narrow confines, we divert freight traffic daily. "Your plan is in the nature of an experiment that may only result in further delaying the development of facilities urgently needed to cope with the growing commerce of the city."

"In considering your plan the Terminal Committee made the following comment in their public statement: "What useful purpose will be served by linking together, by means of the Municipal Bridge, two small terminal lines (the outgrowth of allowances made by the railroads on their own traffic), who are now charging as much or more than the Terminal for similar service, and have no commercial equipment whatever. Moreover, the committee is opposed to concentrating any more freight traffic in the Mill Creek Valley, the railroad capacity of which was outgrown 25 years ago; this is by far the most congested part of the Terminal facilities. They held out the bait that if the city will build expensive approaches, in other words furnish the facilities for them, without their investing anything, they will make a limited use of the Municipal Bridge and establish a small charge for the use of the property of the city. That is illusive and unsatisfactory."

"Under their proposal what will the total charge be for handling a car of coal delivered here at the intersection of several lines at Mitchell or Dupuy, or any east side connection, to a delivery point in any of the numerous team yards or to an industry on the Missouri Pacific, Wabash, Frisco, Burlington, Rock Island or the Terminal in St. Louis, to the Scullin Steel Co., for instance? The bridge being only a fraction of the mileage, this question covers about 85 per cent of the traffic. What would it avail to have them name a low rate to a point serving a comparatively small area?"

"There is food for thought in the foregoing. Is it good business to maintain four organizations instead of one? Also consider that every increased investment and each added charge tends to increase the cost of transportation. Looking to the Future. "Under your plan, what provision will be made for the future development of the transportation facilities of the city? For taking care of the General Electric Co., the American Can Co. and future industrial prospects seeking a location here, who will require extensive additional improvements in the way of truckage and other facilities for handling the traffic?"

"There remain but a few large areas of industrial property in the Union avenue district, the largest group in St. Louis, and when that property is taken up additional belt lines must be constructed to make available other large areas of property for our continued industrial growth."

"The impression that industrial development has been retarded by Terminal service and charges is erroneous. "It is true that constant agitation and misleading statements have been given prominence, but your attention is directed to the fact that national concerns, having plants in many other cities, such as the General Motors Co., the General Electric Co., the Endicott-Johnson Shoe Co., the Underground Cable Co., the Atlas Tack Corporation, the United Drug Co., and many others too numerous to mention, after full and careful investigation, have located here and found no fault with either the service or charges."

"Most of the criticism has come from sources that do very little shipping and are not familiar with Terminal operations. "As to whether your plan for the use of the Municipal bridge interferes with the Terminal Committee's plan, it is altogether unlikely that the railroads would be willing to consider the adoption of that plan if it does not have the sanction and support of the city administration."

No Acute Terminal Crisis. "In conclusion it is opportune to make clear that, at the present time, there does not exist an acute terminal crisis, as many people believe. With the present facilities 27 per cent more traffic was handled in 1925 than in 1920; traffic is moving to and through St. Louis more promptly and with less delay than ever before."

"Whatever happens, there shall be no resentment, and that the utmost will be done to render the best possible service at minimum cost, you may be assured."

useful to the two small belt lines as stimulating and preserving competition, which, he declared, would improve service to shippers.

UPLAND STUDENT OF EXTRADITION TREATIES

Post-Dispatch Bureau 20-23 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Jacob Underwood, Upland of St. Louis, whose disappearance from this country in 1924 was followed by the $400,000 crash of his own two jewelry firms and five St. Louis stores, was able to elude the arm of justice through his knowledge of international extradition treaties.

Upland is now in New York awaiting sentence on his plea of guilty in the Federal Court there July 13 to the charge of conspiracy to hide assets of a bankrupt. He had returned voluntarily to this country after escaping deportation from Germany as an undesirable alien. Before giving himself up in New York, however, he went to Russia and later to Brazil, he returned to this country by way of Cuba.

Fled From Germany to Russia. State Department officials today explained that at the time Upland was in Berlin there was no extradition treaty between the United States and Germany. German officials agreed to deport him on a vessel making its first stop at New York, where Upland could be arrested. Two weeks grace was allowed Upland, during which time he escaped to Russia, whence he could not be extradited or deported because the Soviet Government had not been recognized by the United States.

The departmental officials refused to give for publication the names of the countries with which the United States has no extradition treaties, saying that to do would be to inform criminals of places where they could escape justice. They declared that many criminals fled to foreign countries under the misapprehension that they could not be extradited, only to be caught and returned to the United States.

Custom as to Passports. When asked how Upland was able to get his passport visaged for the various countries he visited, the officials said this was simple because he would not have to go to the American embassies and consulates. His American passport, they added, would be accepted by every foreign official as a bona-fide document and he would be given the visa upon payment of the usual fee. It would be impossible, they maintained for the American Government to ask all the foreign embassies and consulates to look for American fugitives.

The State Department is now trying to negotiate extradition treaties with all countries where none exists now. They are usually kept semi-confidential.

N. Y. CENTRAL ASKS LEASE CONTROL OF 'BIG FOUR' By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The New York Central applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to acquire control by 99-year lease the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, known as the Big Four railroad.

Permission also was asked to acquire by lease the Michigan Central and the Chicago, Kalamazoo and Saginaw railroad.

In another application the Big Four requested permission to acquire by lease the Cincinnati Northern and the Evansville, Indianapolis & Terre Haute. Those roads now are operated as part of the Big Four system.

The arrangement proposed, the applications said, would result in operating economies, increased efficiency, and improved service.

The Big Four has a mileage of 2,395 in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan and Missouri. The New York Central already owns $4,681 shares of Big Four preferred stock with a par value of $3,488,100 or 84.694 per cent of the total outstanding, and 429,411 shares of common with a par value of $42,941,100, or 91.338 per cent of the total.

The Michigan Central operates 1,862 miles of line in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, New York and Canada. The New York Central owns 185,762 shares of the capital stock, with a par value of $18,576,200, or 99.145 per cent of the total.

The Chicago, Kalamazoo & Saginaw runs 48 miles in Michigan. The New York Central owns 49 per cent of its capital stock, and the Michigan Central 49 per cent. The Big Four owns 97 per cent of the capital stock of the Cincinnati Northern, which has a mileage of 244 in Ohio and Michigan, and all the capital stock of the Evansville & Terre Haute, which operates 146 miles in Indiana.

MAN AND GIRL DROWNED WHEN LAUNCH CAPSIZES

Three Others Rescued From Mississippi Near Quincy, Ill. Victim's Losses Life.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. QUINCY, Ill., July 30.—The Mississippi River claimed three lives near here yesterday. Henry Eisenberg, 22 years old, and Miss Gladys Purcell, 21, both of La-grange, Mo., were drowned when the launch in which they were riding the waves behind the steamship Bald Eagle capsized, pitching its five occupants into the river a mile below Lagrange. The other occupants of the boat were rescued.

Eisenberg, son of a Methodist preacher of Monticello, Mo., was employed in the Lagrange Savings Bank, and Miss Purcell was an instructor of physical education in Lagrange College. The bodies have not been recovered.

A World War veteran named Johnson who is said to live at Champaign, Ill., was drowned in the river two miles south of Warsaw, Ill., at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The body was recovered. He is survived by a widow and several children.

E. G. LEWIS GIVES $5000 BOND LOS ANGELES, July 30.—Edward G. Lewis, Louis Cohen and William Ahrens, indicted with H. L. Kramer Wednesday on a charge of conspiring to use the mails to defraud, posted bond of $5000 each with a United States Commissioner yesterday. Kramer will give bond later. They will be arraigned in Federal Court Monday.

The indictments charges that the fraud was perpetrated in connection with the sale of life memberships in the California Illustrations Review, one of Lewis' publications. Lewis denied any intent to defraud. "We were refused permission to appear before the grand jury and an agreement that before any action was taken by the postoffice inspectors we would be given an opportunity to show what their charges might be, and give an answer, was not kept, although we had voluntarily given the inspectors every possible aid in the investigation," Lewis declared.

TO ISSUE WARRANTS FOR ELECTION OFFICERS Prosecutor Prepares Action Against Six Who Failed to Report for Duty. Warrants charging failure to report for duty at the polls on registration day, June 24, will be issued today against six judges and clerks of election. Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer announced.

The warrants will be issued under a statute which holds failure to report as a misdemeanor punishable by from three to six months in jail. The six men named are from a list of 89 recently certified to Schweitzer for investigation by the Board of Election Commissioners.

Schweitzer said he was investigating each case individually and it is expected that before his investigation is finished many more warrants will be issued.

The six to be named in warrants today, according to Schweitzer, are Manley M. Rice of 5659 Pershing avenue, Republican clerk; Fred H. Bernet, 17 Windermere place, Republican judge; Beverly M. Nevins, 8211 Bell avenue, Republican judge; David J. Carter, 3226 North Twenty-third street, Democratic clerk; Robert J. Della, 4392 Obeir avenue, Democratic judge; and James George, 1114 Madison street, Democratic judge.

The warrants will be the first to be issued in several years for election judges and clerks. In the past officials who failed to report have been rebuked and the charges dropped, but because of an increase in the number of absentee officials, more drastic action was urged by the Election Board.

Among the 83 cases still under investigation, there are 36 Republicans and 47 Democrats, including several women. The statute provides that failure to report, if the purpose of the absent official is to permit an undesirable person to serve in his place, is a felony punishable by imprisonment for from two to five years in the penitentiary.

Supper Served on the Lawn Is a Delightful Diversion

Occasional Out-Door Meals Offer Help to Housewives in Breaking the Monotony of Summer Cooking.

AN OCCASIONAL lawn party during the torrid summer months is a particularly interesting way of breaking the monotony of hot-weather meals. A gay supper on the lawn is an especial boon to the hard-worked housewife. It offers her the opportunity of a change with the children, the benefit of the out-of-doors, and a respite from the kitchen.

Food may be prepared hours before the meal, leaving the afternoon free for other necessary work or a few hours of leisure. Salads and sandwiches are, of course, always acceptable, but it is essential to vary the menu with a new culinary wrinkle now and then.

The vogue of frozen fruit and vegetable salads will continue as long as the hot weather endures. Many of these frozen salads provide almost an entire meal. With the addition of a slice of cold ham, cold roast beef or baked veal, lamb or pork, the heartiest appetizer will be satisfied, providing the frozen dish contains a supply of the necessary foods for nourishment.

The following recipes offer the housekeeper several attractive and delicious frozen salads:

Frozen Fruit Salad.—Take equal portions of bananas, peaches and pineapple, with a few sliced almonds browned. Dice the fruit, chop the nuts and mix all together and moisten with a few drops of lemon juice or some of the pineapple and peach juice. Place this mixture in can of ice cream freezer and pack in ice and salt mixture. Do not turn crank, but allow the mixture to remain shut time to serve.

When ready to remove from freezer, serve in cantaloupe halves or in lemon baskets, or on a bed of shredded lettuce. Garnish with maraschino cherries and serve with dressing made out of one cup sugar and one-half cup of thick syrup. When syrup threads when dropped from spoon, pour over two well beaten egg yolks, beat mixture while pouring. Then whip in the two egg whites which have been beaten stiff. Cook the dressing for two or three minutes in the top of a double boiler. Take off, add juice of lemon and spoonful of vanilla extract. Let cool and pour over salad.

Frozen Tomato Salad.—For frozen tomato cream salad use one-half envelope of gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, one can tomatoes, quart size or one quart of cold stewed fresh tomatoes, two cloves, one allspice berry, one-fourth teaspoon celery seed, one-half teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne pepper, one slice onion, one tablespoon tarragon vinegar and one-half pint heavy cream. Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes. Cook tomatoes with cloves, allspice berry, salt, celery seed, peppercorns, onion, parsley, and cayenne, 10 minutes. Add soaked gelatin, cool slightly, and add vinegar. Freeze to a mush, add heavy cream, beaten until stiff, pack in half-pound baking powder boxes, having mixture overflow boxes, adjust covers, pack in salt and ice, and let stand one and one-half hours. Remove from boxes, cut in slices crosswise, and serve on lettuce leaves. Accompany with salad dressing.

Frozen Fruit Salad.—Ingredients for this seasonal salad are one tablespoon soft butter, two egg yolks, three tablespoons flour, the same of sugar, one teaspoon salt, one-third teaspoon paprika, two-thirds cup milk. Mix the flour, salt and paprika, one cup mixed pineapple, berries of any variety, orange and banana and cherries if in season. One cup of heavy cream.

Put butter in top of double boiler; add well-beaten egg yolks with flour, sugar, salt and paprika mixed together; then add milk and lemon juice. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Strain into a bowl and beat two minutes. When cool add chopped fruits and fold in cream, whipped stiff. Put into mold or freezer can, adjust cover and pack in ice and salt. Let stand three hours. Remove from freezer, slice and serve with boiled dressing.

Frozen Cream Salad.—Ingredients: One and one-half cups cream cheese, two tablespoons salad oil, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-half cup pecan meats, one-half cup chopped green peppers, one-half cup shredded pimiento, one-half cup mayonnaise, and one-half cup whipped cream.

Cream cheese and blend with oil, salt and paprika. Add chopped nuts, green pepper and pimiento. Blend with mayonnaise and cut in whipped cream. Place in mold and pack in equal parts ice and salt for three hours. Serve on lettuce leaves garnished with cress and parsley.

Summer Appetizer.—As an appetizer before a company dinner many hostesses are serving grape juice in tiny cocktail glasses with a thin sandwich—hardly more than a bite. This may be served in the living room or library just before dinner is announced or at the table.

PEP UP THE APPETITE

Easily Digested Foods Will Tempt a Jaded Appetite.

Do you realize that when your digestion is below par because, let us say, of over-work and hot weather, a slice of cold white meat of chicken, a dish of crisp lettuce with lemon juice instead of vinegar and some thin white bread and butter and a dish of home-made fruit ice cream is the best answer.

The white meat of chicken is one of the most easily digested forms of meat.

The plain lettuce salad furnishes vitamins and mineral salts without offering a complicated mixture to an already over-tired digestion. The thin white bread and butter is more suitable for this condition than heartier slices of graham bread, and finally, a plain fruit ice cream is ideal both from the standpoint of the digestion and food value.

FRESH PEACH PIE HOLDS ITS OWN

Various New Ways of Making This Dessert, Increases Its Popularity.

PEACH PIE is seasonal every day and all days. Few desserts appeal to the masculine population as do pies. In summertime, if the wise housewife belongs to the wily type of femininity, she will have peach pie for dinner once a week and place on top of each slice a generous portion of vanilla ice cream. Pie a la mode is probably the greatest drawing card offered at the downtown lunch rooms which men most frequent. Pie a la mode will be equally popular as a home dinner dessert.

Recipes are given for two popular peach pies and for a peach cobbler. Ice cream may be served with any one of the three dishes.

Peach Meringue Pies.—Line tart pans with light pastry. Skin and quarter 12 medium-sized peaches. Sift sugar and salt and sprinkle over fruit. Bake in a moderate oven 35 minutes. When cool cover with meringue made by beating two egg whites until frothy, adding one-quarter teaspoon baking powder and beating until stiff, then folding in four tablespoons of sugar. Put in a hot oven or under the broiler to brown quickly.

Peach Pie.—Line piepan with pastry. For the filling slice six medium-sized peaches, one cup sugar, two tablespoons flour and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Add to sliced peaches sifted dry ingredients, stirring well. Turn into piepan lined with crust; put on upper crust and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 50 minutes.

Peach Cobbler.—For the dough use two cups of

Cheese, a Valuable Food, Is Rich in Nourishment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOT long ago I told you something about cheese as a food. Recently I have seen a report of the Foodstuffs Division of the United States Department of Commerce. This report shows that last year the total world trade in the cheese commodity amounted to 725,000,000 pounds.

Germany is a great importer of cheese. Last year she demanded 150,000,000 pounds. The British Empire affords the largest market for world cheese. In 1925 that country imported nearly 350,000,000 pounds.

The United States comes third as an importer of cheese. Our imports in 1925 amounted to 62,000,000 pounds. This came from Italy, Switzerland, France, Holland and Greece. Of course, tremendous quantities are made in the United States. The cheese brought from abroad represents varieties not manufactured here.

It is a pathetic thing, however, that the per capita consumption of cheese in America is very much less than it is in Europe. It is safe to say that we do not eat one-quarter as much as they do in France or Holland.

I regard as a misfortune this popular failure to recognize the value of cheese as a food. It is an invaluable food. It supplies protein food in the most available and cheapest form.

There is no waste to cheese. It differs from meats from which the bone, scrap and fat must be removed. Every particle of the cheese placed upon the plate is available for the nourishment of the body. It is rich in food values and capable of nourishing and strengthening the system.

Of course, cheeses differ materially. Some of them are much richer in fat than others. When they are made of cream or whole milk they possess fattening and energy giving qualities. There are cheeses made from skimmed milk. These have all of the mineral and body building properties without the fat.

The popular idea that cheese is constipating is due to the fact that many cheeses are made of cream or whole milk containing a large amount of butter fat which has a constipating effect. This is not true of cheese made from skimmed milk or from milk less rich in butter fat.

In any event, I look upon cheese as one of the very best of foods, and I wish it might be more commonly found upon the American table.

PLANNING MENUS FOR THE COMING WEEK

Suggestions for Arranging Meals That Are Balanced and Appetizing.

Those who have followed this series will realize that a roast beef appears but rarely. This is simply because of the fact that it is a somewhat expensive cut for a small family. The inevitable leftovers must be used as in this case, the bones lend themselves to soup.

For the sake of variety, however, it is a good plan to serve this standard meat dish occasionally even in warm weather. Thin slices of cold meat are sometimes the most appetizing form in which to serve the main dish at either luncheon or supper. In this connection attention might once more be called to the fact that we are considering the question of variety in general rather than limiting it to one particular meal. In other words, just as we vary the meal plan from week to week, we also vary our way of using standard foods.

You will notice that at the Tuesday luncheon croquettes of canned salmon are served. Not only has salmon itself been found to be rich in iodine, one of the much-needed minerals, but the canned product has been shown to be just as valuable as the fresh flaked for this purpose. In passing, it might be said that these statements apply to all canned products put up by reputable firms.

For the filling use eight peaches, peeled and sliced, three-fourths of a cup of sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt and the same amount of cinnamon. Mix these ingredients together and place in the bottom of a baking dish, cover with the dough and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes.

FRESH VEGETABLES

Ideas for Vegetable Dishes
That Are Novel and Appetizing.

THE food value of vegetables is very high on account of the contained mineral salts so necessary for health. Vegetables also furnish most of the roughage necessary to cleanse the system.

Of course, every housewife serves vegetables every day either for luncheon or dinner, but how often does she serve vegetables cooked a new way? Almost every day a new recipe for cooking spinach, tomatoes, potatoes, eggplant, turnips, radishes, cucumbers, parsnips or carrots is broadcast through the country by the daily press, the magazines and the farm journals.

Some of these recipes are offered here to the housewife who is looking for new ways of preparing the daily food offered her family.

Eggplant Pie.
An eggplant pie which vies in popularity with the stuffed eg-plants of the Armenian and Syrian restaurants is made like this:

Peel six eggplants and cut each lengthwise into four pieces. Sprinkle the slices with salt and leave them for two or three hours, then drain on a clean cloth. Dip the slices in flour, then fry them in butter to a golden brown color, then slice. Mince finely about half a pound of cooked veal and six ounces of bacon fat, add about a cup of tomato puree, mix and season with salt and pepper. Line a deep baking dish with short pastry, spread a layer of this last mixture at the bottom, place some of the eggplant slices on this, then more saucy, repeating until the dish is full. Pour two tablespoons of melted butter on top of this. Cover the dish with a layer of pastry and bake in a moderate oven for about an hour. Serve hot or cold. Enough for five or six servings.

Creamed Radishes.
Scrape and cut into cubes any amount of radishes you wish to serve and cook until tender, allowing the water to boil away, season with salt, pepper, butter and a little hot sweet cream. They may also be cooked with an equal amount of potatoes and when done mashed together and seasoned.

Buttered Kohlrabi.
Peel turnip-shaped globe; cut into small pieces; boil until tender.
Add one teaspoon salt to each quart water. Serve plain with melted butter and pepper, or with cream saucy. The leaves may be stemmed and cooked as greens, boiling 45 minutes.

Fried Cucumbers.
Peel and cut cucumber in quarters lengthwise. Roll in flour, fry in butter (planch salt). When fried, arrange on platter and cover with dressing made of two tablespoonfuls prepared mustard, two tablespoonfuls sweet cream and little sugar, mixed thoroughly.

SALMON AND PEAS.
Drain one-half pound can of salmon and remove skin and bones, separate into small pieces, add one cup of cooked peas and mix with any good salad dressing. Serve on lettuce leaves. A good late supper or emergency dish.

MUSKMELON PRESERVES.
Take seven pounds of musk-melon, three pounds of sugar, one quart white vinegar, one ounce cinnamon, one-half ounce of cloves.

Wash, dry and cut firm melons in halves crosswise. Remove seeds and soft pulp. Cut in slices one inch thick; remove peeling and dice.

Heat sugar, vinegar and spices tied in a piece of muslin, to the boiling point and boil one minute.
Pour over prepared melons and let stand over night. Next morning drain; bring syrup to boiling point and boil one minute; pour over melon and let stand over night. Do this for three mornings.

MANY NOVEL WAYS OF COOKING CORN

Green Corn Retains Its Individuality Even in Combination Dishes.

THERE are many ways of cooking green corn besides on the cob and stewed. Indeed, corn is a very versatile vegetable, although this quality is little appreciated by the housewife. Here are several recipes for cooking corn which will be well worth trying, as they not only offer a change, but are delicious, particularly when served with the lighter meats like chicken and lamb and when served with the popular vegetable dinner.

Corn Omelette. Take four eggs, separate and beat yolks until thick. Add four tablespoons milk, one-half cup drained stewed corn, one-half cup bread crumbs, one-half teaspoon salt. Add one-half a teaspoon salt to egg whites and beat until stiff and fold into first mixture. Heat frying pan, grease well and cook slowly over low flame until set. When omelette is sufficiently set, place omelette in oven for a few minutes to brown. Fold left side over right and turn out on hot platter; garnish with parsley.

Maryland Corn Pie. Lay three pieces of partially cooked baked corn, the bottom of a greased casserole and three more around the sides. Sprinkle with fine bread crumbs, add a layer of fresh, sliced tomatoes and a little green pepper. Sprinkle with salt and half the sugar, and dot with butter. Add a layer of uncooked corn cut from the cob. Sprinkle with salt and bits of butter; then finish with another layer of tomato and seasonings. Cover with buttered crumbs. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) 30 minutes. (Canned corn may be substituted.)

Green Corn Soup. One pint of chopped corn, two-thirds of a quart of milk, two teaspoonsful of butter, one tablespoonful of flour, two eggs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar, one small onion chopped, one-half a tablespoonful of pepper; after cutting the corn from the cobs, put them on to boil in water enough to cover, let them boil 20 minutes; then remove them; add the corn, after chopping, and dot with fine, and the onion; cook 15 minutes; then add the milk and the rest of the seasoning; thicken with the flour, which should be mixed smooth in milk.

Cook about five minutes after the thickening is added. Beat the eggs well and add after the soup has been removed from the stove.

Green Corn Salad. Cook fresh sweet green corn for from 10 to 20 minutes in boiling water. Remove from water and when cool cut with a sharp knife through the center of each ear of kernels. Then cut or scrape corn from cob. Season with mustard and onion juice scraped with a knife from an onion cut in half. Marinate corn with French dressing, let stand one hour. Drain and serve on a bed of shredded lettuce or chicory.

How to Whip Cream This Delicacy Has Great Nutritive Value.

Whipped cream is without question the most delicate accompaniment of desserts. Whether used as a garnish or as one of the constituents of the dessert, it has no equal. It is high in butter fat, contains some protein, and is fairly rich in the milk mineral salts. Fortunately, it is liked by most individuals.

Evaporated milk even whips without the addition of cream. And it may be used in this way and combined with a little salad oil, lemon juice or vinegar to make delicious sour cream dressings. This is best done by putting a can of milk into cold water and heating it just to the boiling point. Remove and put on ice at once.

After chilling for three or four hours, it should be put into a bowl set in ice, then whipped with a wheel egg-beater. Like cream, it must be kept cold to hasten the process. Two parts evaporated milk and three parts of whipping cream chilled and whipped in the usual way give a product with an appearance and taste of whipped cream that may be used wherever whipped cream is called for.

Care of Milk. Particular care must be taken of milk and cream in summer. A fresh supply every day is the only safe precaution. This should be kept at a temperature not over 50 degrees F. Either metal or glass milk bottle tops to replace the pastboard ones, once the bottle has been opened, are both sanitary and convenient. But-ter should always be kept in a covered jar; otherwise it will absorb flavors from other foods.

Cantaloupe Frappe.
Boil one teaspoon of gelatin in one-fourth cup cold water for five minutes. Have ready two cups of cantaloupe pulp which should be added to the dissolved gelatin, which has been previously strained. Add one-half cup sugar, one tea- spoon lemon juice, one-half cup grape juice or gingerale and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Put mixture in freezer and freeze until mushy. Serve in the rinds of the cantaloupes which should be cut to represent baskets. To prepare the cantaloupe pulp, remove seeds from melons, scrape pulp from rind and force through a puree strainer.

RECIPES FOR DISHES IN THE WEEK'S MENU

Easy Directions for Making the Favorite Dishes of the Family.

MAKE a vanilla ice cream as follows: Two cups scalded milk, one tablespoon flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two table- spoons vanilla, one egg, four cups thin cream, one cup sugar. Mix the sugar and flour and add the lightly beaten egg. Add the milk slowly. Cook the mixture in the double boiler for about 10 min- utes. Stir constantly at first. Add the cream and flavoring.

Add one-half cup of crystallized ginger cut in small bits, three ta- blespoons of ginger syrup and two table- spoons of grape juice. Freeze.

Golden Corn Cake.
One cup yellow corn meal, one egg, three-fourths teaspoon salt, two table- spoons beef or chicken dripping, one cup flour, one cup milk, one-fourth cup sugar. Sift the dry materials and then combine them. Combine the egg, milk, shortening, then combine the two mixtures. Bake in a shallow greased pan in a hot oven for about 20 minutes.

Pineapple Junket.
Two cups milk, one-third cup sugar, one teaspoon vanilla, one junket tablet, one-third cup boil- ing water, few grains salt. Heat the milk until it is luk- e warm. Reduce the sugar to car- mel; add the boiling water and make a syrup. There should be about one-third cup. Let the syrup cool and add the milk slowly. Pow- der the junket tablet. Add to the mixture, then add vanilla and salt. Stand in a warm place until set. Chill and serve with fresh, shred- ded pineapple with plenty of juice.

Jellied Chicken Bouillon.
Prepare chicken broth in the ordi- nary way, letting it stand to get thoroughly chilled. Remove every vestige of fat and to solidify al- low one tablespoon of granulated gelatin to 12 cups of boiling broth. The gelatin bouillon may be sea- soned with celery salt or any de- sired flavoring.

Salmon Croquettes.
One and three-fourths cups cold flaked salmon, few grains salt, one cup white sauce, one teaspoon lemon juice, few grains cayenne. Add the sauce to salmon, then add seasonings. Spread on a plate to cool. Shape, dip in crumbs and egg; fry in deep fat and drain.

Cantaloupe Salad.
Dice one cantaloupe or cut into balls with french cutter and one cup of red raspberries. Shred one head of lettuce and pile berries and melon balls in the lettuce which had previously been arranged on a salad dish. Serve with whipped cream dressing.

Cucumber Canapes.
This appetizer is made of one medium-sized cucumber, two tablespoons grated onion, four table- spoons finely chopped celery, two table- spoons finely chopped green pepper, four table- spoons finely chopped sweet pickle, three stuffed olives, lettuce and salad dressing. Wash, pare and cut cucumber into six-inch slices. Mix onion, cel- ery, green pepper and pickle to- gether with enough salad dressing to moisten. Spread each slice of cucumber with this mixture and place on heart of lettuce. Garnish with slice of stuffed olive and immediately.

This finest-ever rice pudding—serve it tonight

It's a real rice pudding—the old-fashioned, rich-flavored, thor- oughly-cooked kind that brings back childhood memories of the best home cooking in the world.

Yet there's a new delicacy about it, a smooth velvetiness, a rich creamy flavor, that even the best of old-time rice puddings didn't have. The secret is its special ingredient—Carnation Milk. The unique goodness of Carnation explains the surpassing richness and flavor you will get with the recipe printed below.

Carnation Milk is the finest dairy-farm milk—rich full-cream milk made doubly rich by evaporating part of the natural water, and "homogenized" to give every drop an equal share of the double helping of cream. That is why Carnation is better than bottled milk for all cooking.

You can use this double-rich milk in place of cream, too—and cut two-thirds off your cream bill! You will like Carnation Milk in every way. Ask your grocer for it—by name. Then you will be sure of Carnation quality.

Carnation Rice Pudding
3 cups Carnation Milk, diluted with 2 cups water; 1/2 tsp. salt; 1/2 cup sugar; grated rind of 1/2 lemon; 1/2 cup rice; 1/2 cup seed- less raisins.

Combine all ingredients except raisins. Turn into buttered bak- ing dish, set in pan of hot water, and bake in 300° F. oven three hours. Stir several times during first hour to keep rice from set- tling to bottom. After pudding has cooked two hours, stir in raisins. Return to oven and finish baking.

VERSATILE BANANAS BAKE, BOIL OR FRY

Housewives Are Beginning to Recognize Their Value in Cookery.

BANANAS, which are one of nature's most wholesome and most easily digested foods, are particularly adapted to combination dishes, although we Americans are just grasping this fact. Bananas are in reality a ration dear to the housewife for it may be used as a fruit, an entree, a vegetable, a main dish, a salad or a dessert.

Recipes for combination dishes in which bananas are used follow:

Eggs and Bananas.

Cook one-fourth cup rice in one and three-fourths cups water until the rice is soft and the water absorbed. Place in baking dish and cover inch deep with sliced bananas. Place in oven and bake for 15 minutes. Remove from oven and have ready one poached egg for each person served. Put eggs on top of the rice in the baking dish. Garnish with strips of bacon broiled delicate brown and serve with parsley sauce.

Baked Bananas.

Peel and scrape six bananas and cut in halves lengthwise. Place in buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with six teaspoons brown sugar. Pour over six tablespoons water. Bake in moderate oven until bananas are translucent.

Steak and Bananas.

Tear down one section of the banana skin, then carefully loosen the pulp from the rest of the skin and take out the fruit, and return to its original position, setting the strip of skin back in place to keep the fruit from discoloring. Set the bananas side by side on an agate plate and let cook in a hot oven until they are soft to the touch. Turn from the skin, in half circles, around a roast of any kind of meat, or upon broiled steak. Serve as a vegetable with the meat gravy or sauce.

Scalloped Bananas.

Stir one-fourth cup of melted butter into two cups of sifted soft bread crumbs (center of loaf). Sprinkle the bottom of a baking dish with part of the prepared crumbs, cover with sliced bananas, and sprinkle with a little sugar mixed with cinnamon; repeat the layers of buttered crumbs and bananas, until the crumbs are used, having the last layer of crumbs. Add the juice of a lemon or four tablespoons of boiling water; cover and let bake 25 minutes, then remove the cover to brown the crumbs.

Banana Fritters.

Cut peeled banana, each in two and split each half. Place the pieces in a bowl with sugar and orange juice and let them stand for one hour. Drain the fruit, dip in batter and fry in deep fat.

Olives opened for some special occasion, when all are not required, may be kept almost indefinitely if olive oil be poured into the bottle. The oil, being light, rises to the top of the liquid in which the olives are stored and thus keeps out the air.

Another way to fix an egg attractively is to beat the white of the egg stiff, pile it on a piece of toast and drop the yolk in the center. Set it in the oven and cook slightly and serve. This also has the next idea.

Toast is much improved if melted butter is poured over it, instead of spreading it with cold butter.

PROVIDE COLD MEATS FOR PICNIC OUTING

Home-Cooked Meats Fill a Need on Week-End Outings.

THOSE fortunate St. Louisans who have cottages at the near-by summer resorts in Missouri and Illinois where they spend their week-ends, find it very convenient to take with them on their outings something in the way of baked or boiled meat, so that whatever may occur, there will be a supply of meat for sandwiches.

By purchasing a large piece of beef, pork, ham, veal or lamb on Saturday and cooking it Saturday morning, a supply of excellent cold meat is assured for the week-end trip to the camp or cottage.

Directions for cooking several types of boiled and roast meat are given in the following recipes:

Boiled Corned Beef.

Wash and soak corned beef in cold water over night. In morning rinse with cold water and cover with scalding water. Let come slowly to boiling point and boil for 15 minutes; then reduce the heat and simmer gently, allowing 50 minutes for each pound of meat.

Boiled Tongue.

Either fresh or pickled tongue may be used. Wash and put in kettle, cover with cold water and bring slowly to the boiling point and cook until tender. When slightly cooled, take from water and remove skin.

Picnic Ham.

Take a 10-pound smoked ham and soak it in cold water over night. Then boil slowly for two and one-half hours and let stand in water until cold. Then put in roasting pan, take the skin off and pour over it one-half cup syrup and two tablespoons brown sugar and put one cup water in pan. Bake slowly for one hour and half, basting often.

Roast Beef.

Select a loin, rib or shoulder cut. Wash with a damp cloth. Place meat in broiler and broil under a very hot fire for 20 minutes.

Reduce heat to moderate and roast until rare or well done as desired.

While roasting baste occasionally and add seasonings, pepper, salt or barbecue sauce just before removing from the oven.

If used hot, make gravy out of drippings. If to be used cold, remove roast from pan, place on platter and allow to cool.

Individual Ice-Box Cakes.

Use three eggs, one-fourth cup granulated sugar, one tablespoon cornstarch, one-fourth cup milk, juice of one lemon, grated rind of one-half lemon, one-half cup of butter, one cup confectioners sugar and whipped cream.

Separate eggs, place well-beaten yolks in double boiler with granulated sugar, cornstarch and milk and cook slowly, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Remove from fire, add juice and grated rind of lemon and let cool. Cream sweet butter with confectioners sugar and add to first mixture, then fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites.

Scoop out centers of cup cakes, fill with lemon filling and set in ice box over night. Serve with whipped cream.

Blackberry Custard Pie.

Line a pie pan with rich pastry. Fill with blackberries which have been washed and drained. Pour over the berries a custard made of three eggs well beaten, three-fourths cup sugar, one teaspoon salt, two cups scalded milk and a teaspoon vanilla extract. Bake in a moderate oven about one-half hour.

Watermelon Cocktail.

With a vegetable or fruit cutter prepare two cups of small balls of bright pink watermelon. Sprinkle lightly with powdered sugar and add two tablespoons of lemon juice. Chill the mixture thoroughly. Fill glasses and garnish with sprigs of fresh mint.

The Safeguard to Healthful Cleanliness

Use the Old Dutch "safeguard" for Healthful Cleanliness. The fine, flat, flaky particles erase all the dirt, grease and stains and the invisible impurities as well. Laboratory tests show that surfaces cleaned with Old Dutch are really hygienically clean. It doesn't make scratches which easily collect and hold impurities.

Post Toasties stay crisp in milk or cream

Double-Crisp and Double-Good because they're Double-Thick

We want you to test Post Toasties, Double-Thick corn flakes. We want you to try them in milk or cream and know their Double-Crispness, Double-Goodness.

Post Toasties, made from the selected white corn, have a natural corn flavor. They come to your table, oven-fresh from Baking, their crispness and flavor preserved by three wrappings.

Make the Milk or Cream Test and know the luxury of Double-Thick corn flakes. Note how that wonderful flavor lasts. See how these delicious, Double-Thick corn flakes hold their crispness—even in milk or cream!

How to make the test:

Make the Milk or Cream Test, get some Post Toasties at your grocer's or send for free test.

package. Open the red and yellow, wax-wrapped package and shower some of the golden, crisp flakes into a bowl. Then add milk or cream.

With the first spoonful you will experience a new cereal delight. As your teeth crunch those oven-crisp flakes you will marvel at the wonderful flavor.

And you will find that even the last few flakes at the bottom of the bowl are still deliciously crisp.

Be sure you get genuine Post Toasties, Double-Thick corn flakes. Ask for them by name and look for the red and yellow wax-wrapped package that wears the Post Toasties Seal.

WORLD COURT ISSUE IN WISCONSIN PRIMARY

Gov. Blaine, Who Opposes Senator Leinroth for Nomination, Attacks Latter's Vote.

By the Associated Press. MADISON, Wis., July 29.—President Coolidge's administration and the World Court case another test in the Wisconsin primary election Sept. 7.

United States Senator Irvine L. Lenroth, one of the administration leaders in the upper house, and the Senator who led the successful fight for American adherence to the World Court, holds the seat which is at stake. He is opposed for re-election by Gov. John J. Blaine, follower of the late Robert M. La Follette.

Wisconsin has been overwhelmingly Republican in elections of the last decade. The campaign therefore presents not a battle between parties but a contest between progressive Republican followers of La Follette and those Republicans subscribing to the Republican platform.

Attacks World Court. Gov. Blaine is seeking the Republican nomination on a platform which denounces the Coolidge policy on several questions and pledges adherence to the La Follette progressive principles. He is devoting a large portion of his campaign to attacks upon the World Court, which he asserts, is the principal issue in the senatorial contest.

Senator Leinroth has charged that the World Court has been grossly misrepresented in Wisconsin and asserted that he was guided in his voting on the tribunal and other matters, "not by what attitude the electorate assumed but the position they would take if they possessed the information he did."

Expects La Follette to Help. Although young La Follette was elected to succeed his father, the mantle of leadership has not been recognized by some of the progressives adhering to the La Follette principles.

La Follette junior ran for Senator with the support of Gov. Blaine and Attorney General Ekern, as a result of which he is expected to reciprocate this fall and support their respective candidacies for United States Senator and Governor. Disunion appeared within the ranks and Fred Zimmerman, Secretary of State, and Stanley Smith, former Insurance Commissioner, entered the gubernatorial campaign, seeking the support of the progressives.

The question looms as to the effect the three progressive candidates will have on the senatorial campaign.

COMMERCIAL PRINTERS IN CHICAGO GET PAY INCREASE
New 3-Year Contract Provides for Commission to Try All Disputes.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, July 30.—Provisions looking towards a new understanding are made in a new three-year contract between the Franklin Association of Chicago, the commercial printing firms and their 4300 union printer employees, just announced. The instrument grants increases of 23 weeks.

Its unique and forward-looking paragraph is found in a stipulation for the establishment of 10 members, five from each group, which in cases of disputes during the life of the contract will become a trial board. Should 30 days of consideration fail to effect an agreement, a mediator shall be called in, although he cannot vote.

The new contract will date from July 15. Under it, printers employed at day work will receive $4 for a 44-hour week, while night workers will receive $18 for the same number of hours.

The remaining union printers in Chicago, employed by the newspaper, signed a new contract last Saturday. Retroactive to May 27, it provides for a 43 a week increase for the first year, and a weekly increase in each of the next two years.

Kansas City Association Begins Sur-

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, July 30.—The first survey to check up on Kansas City's "drugless" drug stores will begin at once, Carl B. Casper, secretary of the Retail Druggists' Association, said tonight. Information obtained is to be turned over to the State Pharmacy Board.

It is alleged that 200 of the 495 drug stores in the city violate the pharmacy laws daily by not having registered pharmacists on duty to handle all prescriptions, and other drug store business required by law to be attended to by registered pharmacists.

TELLS HOW MOTHERS MAY ACHIEVE BUSINESS CAREERS

Proper Husband and Job Analysis Necessary, Woman With 11
Children Says.

By the Associated Press. AMSTERDAM, July 30.—A solution for reconciling marriage and a career was given by Mrs. Frank Gibbreth of Montclair, N. J., at yesterday's session of the International Federation of University Women convention. "Job analysis and proper husband" she declared, were essentials for this reconciliation.

By proper husbands, she meant the kind who were willing to "fifty-fifty" to make a wife's career possible; job analysis she interpreted as a kind of industrial engineering applied to dishwashing and children's baths and feeding. Mrs.
Gibbreth is mother of 11 children.
She is an industrial engineer and a recognized authority on industrial psychology.

Many of the delegates were openly skeptical of her advice;
others were frankly enthusiastic.
The afternoon meeting was devoted to discussion of co-ordination of woman's interests and reconciliation of domestic and professional life. Elizabeth Baker, professor of economics, Barnard College, New York, outlined the attempts being made in the United States to solve the problems.

The Congress will not be in session today, but will reconvene

AMERICAN FIRM INSTALLING BATH FACILITIES IN EUROPE

But Political Upheavals Delay
Work; Pilsudski Postpones
$10,000,000 Project.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

VIENNA, Austria, July 29.—Europeans are submitting to the American institution of the Saturday night bath, but not without protest. The American construction firm of Ulen & Co., which is installing a bath in the city, has had to take it off the drawing boards.

At least to hold up the laying of water pipes in nearly all countries where it has started work because of the violent political upheavals.
In Poland four cities were being Americanized underground, and about 25 per cent of the allotted expenditure had been made when Marshal Pilsudski got busy. The battle took place before the company's offices.

Uncertainty of the turn politics might take a further check on the $10,000,000 was postponed. In Athens work was well under way on a reservoir and pipe system when Gen. Panagiotis declared himself dictator. Work had a slight setback, for Athens needs the water to drink, not to bathe in. But partial progress was made.

The question looms as to the effect the three progressive candidates will have on the senatorial campaign.

CENSUS OF 1930 TO BEGIN IN JANUARY AS HEREFORE

Suggested Change to July Because of Winter Weather Handicap, Deemed Inadvisable.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 30.—Despite some dissatisfaction with the mid-winter date for taking the decennial population census, the 1930 enumeration will proceed on the same method and at the same time of year as the 1920 count.

Announcing this decision today Census Bureau officials said that the population census coincides with the census of agriculture, and January is a much more convenient month than July for obtaining farm statistics. Many farms pass into the hands of new owners or tenants in the spring, and between mid-winter and July much data on crops, acreage and other major matters is lost.

January has been found to be unfavorable for the population enumeration because of inclement weather.
Deep snows and heavy storms in the Northern, Northwestern and Rocky Mountain states delayed the returns of enumerators considerably during the 1920 tabulation, but bureau officials decided that this disadvantage was sufficiently great to justify a transfer of activities to July, as had been suggested.

Tabulation and compilation will be speeded greatly in 1930, they said, because of improvements in the tabulating, punching and sorting machines used in 1920.

Represented in 2000-Mile Circuit of 12 Cities.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 30.—Twenty-one aircraft manufacturers have entered 38 planes in the commercial reliability flight scheduled to start from the Ford airport at Detroit Aug. 7. Pilots will compete for the $10,000 Edsel Ford trophy and will make a 2000-mile circuit of 12 Middle Western cities, returning to Detroit on Aug. 21.

The route from Detroit passes through Chicago, Milwaukee, St.
Paul, Des Moines, Lincoln, St.
Joseph, Wichita, Kansas City, Mo.,
Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Fort Wayne.

Cash prizes totaling $20,000 have been offered by the committee in charge.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The opening of the stock market today was characterized by a pitched battle between the professional bear crowd and the power forces that have been directing the course of the market since the present recovery began operations on the floor of the Stock Exchange last year. A most interesting spectacle during the early part of the session all indications pointed to a duplication of yesterday's spectacular performance. General Motors pushing forward emphatically to new record heights at the opening, but as the morning progressed constructive operations in that stock appeared to be meeting greater resistance. Steel common was suddenly taken to task and regaining its position as the market leader had a new forward movement which carried many stocks to a new high around midday.

Bears Converge on Two Issues.—Midway through the afternoon stocks tumbled under an avalanche of selling as all money rates rose to the highest levels since June 30 last. A bitter struggle for supremacy was started around the Steel and General Motors posts. Bear efforts naturally converged on these two premier industrial stocks, the last mentioned breaking badly before the selling was stemmed by the appearance of powerful support. Trading slackened perceptibly in final hour, with prices fluctuating erratically above the lows of the early afternoon.

Call Money at 5 Per Cent.—The run-up in the call money rate to 5 per cent in the early afternoon, the logical sequence to the extensive cutting of collateral loans by banks in connection with heavy month-end requirements, was the signal for a heavy selling movement. It was soon apparent that the bear element, while badly trouced since the beginning of the week, was still a factor in the market. Huge blocks of the leading industrial, General Motors and Steel common, were dumped over for short accounts. The market with realizing induced by jump in money rates brought precipitate declines in stocks that had been most popular. General Motors, which had reached new high ground shortly after the opening, tumbled abruptly, and Steel came off sharply from peak levels of the morning. Selling spread throughout the industrial list and many stocks came down suddenly, though the rally of good resistance. Eventually the day was waged between opposing forces in the leaders and ultimately constructive operators again secured control of the situation.

Rails Claim More Attention.—With everything pointing to a new record in earnings by the country railroads for June, the carrier stocks came in for more attention than at any previous time this week. Buy orders by no means of the spectacular character that has been witnessed by the industrial. Demand seemed to run to the high-grade issues and was indicative of buying for investment. Atchafalpa, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville, Western & North American, and Lackawanna were prominent among the dividend payers, while New York and Pennsylvania island continued most popular among the speculative issues. In the bear drive of the afternoon the rails showed much better resistance than the industrials, indicating an absence of the over-bought condition existing in the latter part of the list.

Estimates Await French Plan.—Still awaiting something definite on the plans of the new French coalition Cabinet looking toward monetary reform and the stabilization of the franc, foreign exchanges moved irregularly in quiet demand today. In the slight recession in sterling some traders professed to see the withdrawal of government support. France was slightly higher, while Spanish currency had a further sharp setback. Scandinavian rates were firm with exceptional strength in Danish eight drafts.

Weather Reports Bode Grain.—"Cotton was under steady pressure of local and southern liquidation, running off an average of 25 points in the active market. The decline continued under the influence of weather reports, moving generally higher as notices told of prolonged dry and hot weather in the wheat area.

Paige-Detroit Shows Gains.—DETROIT, July 30.—Substantial gains in the common stock of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. were reported today. The stock advanced 10 points to 142.98, its highest price since the first of the year. The company's earnings for the first six months of 1926 were $247,888.67 as compared with $247,888.67 for the first six months of 1925. The company's net income for the first six months of 1926 was $247,888.67 as compared with $247,888.67 for the first six months of 1925.

Would Issue Equipment Trust Certificates.—WASHINGTON, July 30.—The Western Railway, Mineral Wells & Northwestern Railway of Texas applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to issue $2,000,000 of equipment trust certificates. The company is to use the proceeds for 300 furniture freight cars.

BIG BUSINESS GROUPS' ERECT TRADE CENTERS

Co-Operative Building by Competitors Illustrated by Chicago Structures.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Chicago business interests in a dozen different fields believe that just because they are competitors is no reason why they should not also be neighbors.

Therefore, just as fast as their buildings can be put up, concerns in a common field have been flocking together here until hardly a week goes by that some new project to bring all units of a trade under a common roof is not announced.

A "pioneer" in the move for centralization of activities was the furniture trade, which erected the world's largest building in the "billion-dollar triangle" on the near north side. Here scores of dealers and manufacturers of furniture established offices and display rooms in what is known as the Furniture Mart.

The next to follow were the insurance companies who became neighbors in the huge American Fore building.

Then the farmers and farming interests, always leaders in the co-operative idea, announced plans for a building mart the honor of being the world's largest. This structure will be given over entirely to organizations in the agricultural field.

Next the jewelers decided to congregate, and their imposing tower, one of the tallest buildings west of New York, is nearing completion.

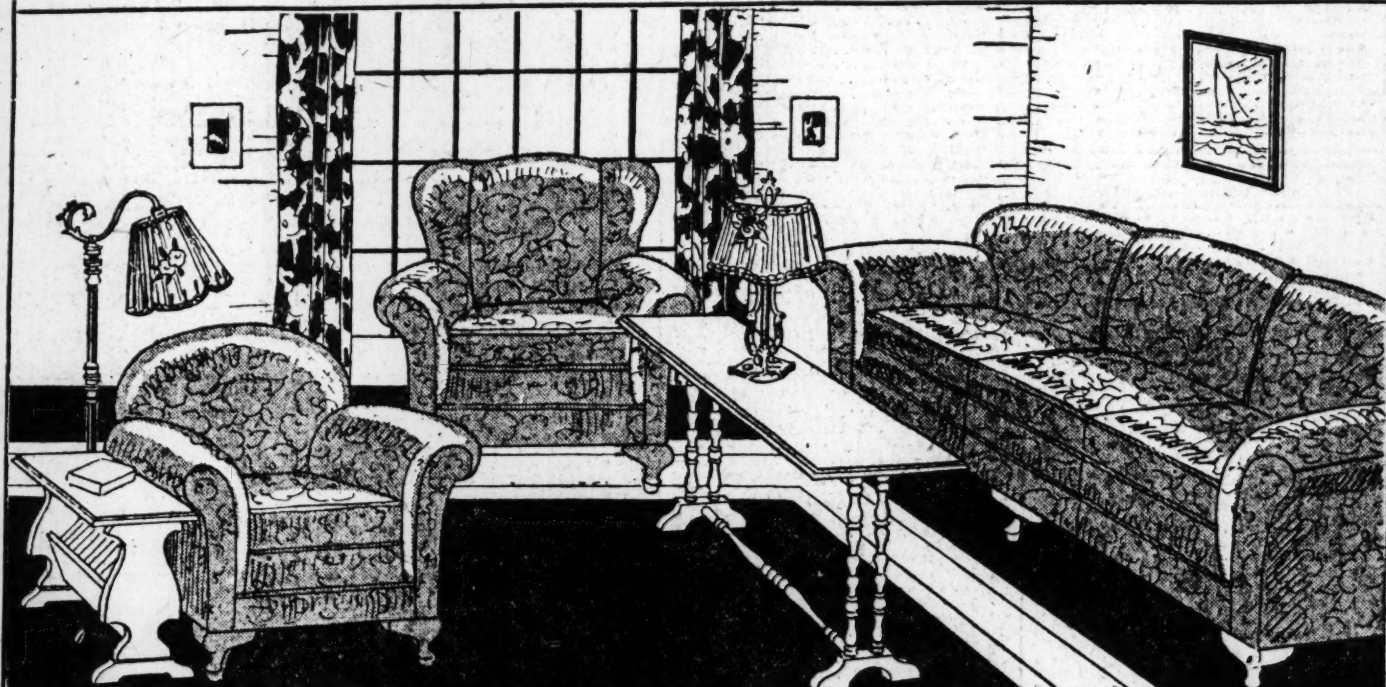

Since then the building contractors, the doctors and dentists, the "butter and egg" men and a number of others have announced plans of getting together in buildings of their own.

But probably the most interesting development of all may be expected from the architects, who also have the "get-together" bug. Leaders of the movement believe that the architectural craft should be represented by something very exceptional in building design, and the final plans probably will be selected by competition among the draftsmen who plan to make the structure their common quarters.

Most of the new buildings have been planned in or near the neighborhood of Wacker Drive, the magnificent new double-decked boulevard skirting the south bank of the Chicago River.

The Love Story of a Man Pledged to Commit Suicide After His Honeymoon.

By OCTAVUS ROY COHEN

(Copyright, 1934.)

CHAPTER XVII

A New Alan Appears.

FOR a few seconds Alan stood motionless. Then reaction set in. His knees felt weak and he sat down quite abruptly on the nearest chair. Beads of perspiration stood out on his forehead, and he laughed in a short, nervous fashion.

As for Beverly, she was staring as though at an apparition. She was too surprised immediately to say anything or to collect her thoughts, but her paramount emotion was of amazement—tinged with delight and pride.

It was a new Alan who had appeared to her in this crisis; an Alan who was not at all the man who had contemplated suicide and who had allowed himself to be flung around willy-nilly in a current of adverse circumstances, with never a fight in his own behalf. He had proved himself a man and he had done it all so quietly and unobtrusively—and so effectively—that she as yet was unable to believe it was the same man whose roof she had shared for three months. He mopped his forehead and laughed weakly.

"Beverly," he said, "I'm scared to death."

It was a naive, boyish admission. Suddenly Beverly sat down and for the first time in their acquaintance Alan saw her in tears.

For a few moments he stared, scarce knowing what to make of it. Her slender body was wracked with sobs, but when she looked at him she was smiling through her tears. Like a great helpless baby he walked over to her and rested a hand on her shoulder.

"I say, Beverly—don't carry on that way. It's all over—There isn't any sense to it."

She took his hand in hers and clung to it with a power which surprised him.

"It's all over, Beverly. There's nothing to cry about."

"I know it—but I can't help—"

"He wouldn't have hurt me; really."

"He would. He's a bad man, Nick Webb. But that isn't why I'm crying, Alan. It's nervous, perhaps—and it is happiness, too."

"Because—because nothing happened—to me?"

"Yes—and because something happened to Nick; because you acted as you did. Can't you see, Alan—I'm crying with happiness because you've proved yourself a man. Oh! It doesn't make me love you any more, perhaps, but it does make me proud of you—and I never was very proud of you before. A woman couldn't be proud of a man who was letting himself be kicked around. Now there seems to be some hope."

He shook his head in bewilderment.

"I'm afraid I don't understand, dear. I suppose I'm dense—"

"You are. No man ever understands the woman who loves him."

He bent over her and touched his lips lightly to the soft tendrils of chestnut hair. "I don't see that anything much has happened—anything to change conditions."

"But it has, Alan! You've shown me a vein of steel which I never suspected. There's always a chance for a man who has the will and the power to fight. There must be! I'm hysterical and happy and proud."

She went into her room and a few moments later Johnny Ames entered. He, too, was loaded down with Christmas packages, and his face was alight with glad tidings.

"Alan! I've done it!"

"What, Johnny?"

"Convinced Mae. She says she'll come to Christmas Eve supper."

You know, the kid's crazy as a loon—the way she's been crawling for the last few weeks. So I just backed her into a corner, and she says she'll probably make a mess of things, but she reckons if she's ever going to marry into the family she might as well come. Great kid, Mae—no fancy stuff but a head like Edison."

"I'm glad she's coming, Johnny. I like Mae and I'm sure Beverly will."

"Gosh! I ain't worrying about Beverly liking her. Bev's always been able to see below the surface—" —and there's her Mae assays one thousand per cent. The bedroom door swung back and Beverly came into the room. Her eyes were still red. Johnny looked at her in surprise and then for the first time he noticed the gun which lay on the floor near the fireplace.

"Sweet Christmas! What's that?"

Alan bent his elongated figure, picked up the automatic and gazed at it on the table. "Nothing."

"Huh? Say—when did you start packing a gun?"

Alan flushed and said nothing. It was Beverly who explained.

"Nick Webb was here, John. He tried to—"

—to kiss me. That is his gun."

"Nick? Johnny shook his head. "I don't get it a little bit. Where's he?"

"Gone. Alan sent him out."

"Sure—sure—but how did he happen to leave the fire-spitter?"

"Alan knocked it out of his hand."

"Ah, g'wan—"

"With a poker. I think he broke Nick's wrist."

Johnny leaned weakly against the table. "I hear words, but they don't mean anything. You mean Nick Webb pulled a gun on Alan and Alan did him up with a poker?"

"Yes."

The lad's eyes, wide and staring, turned on the abashed figure of his brother-in-law.

"Great slimy snakes! Nick Webb? Why, Sis, it ain't possible. I'm crazy—or you are. How did it happen?"

She sketched the details, her voice a-thrill with pride. At the conclusion of her story Johnny shook his head in amazement.

"I have to believe it—but I can't. Then his face grew serious."

"Listen, folks—I don't like to give bad news, but this isn't the end."

"What do you mean?"

"Nick's bad. That's why North wished him onto me. He's mean as poison, and when he threatens to get somebody, he means to get him. I'm worried."

Alan warned Johnny with his eyes. "Nick isn't going to bother me."

"Maybe not. I guess you can get a lot of comfort kidding yourself, but it isn't reasonable. I know the man—and I'm afraid of him myself. I still don't figure this thing—"

—with a poker!"

Beverly had been thinking. "North will hear of this, won't he?"

"How?"

"Nick will have to explain his wrist. He can't run liquor in that condition."

"Explanations come easy to a genius like Nick. He'd never tell that a chap like Alan busted him with a poker when he had a gun's Good Lord! He wouldn't have that known for a million. It'd ruin him."

"But, suppose," persisted Beverly, "that Andrew North knew Nick was threatening to kill Alan. Suppose, in other words, that he had reason to believe Nick would do it and so probably interfere with the smooth working of his plan to collect on Alan's life insurance? What would North do then?"

Johnny was thoughtful. "Just pass the word, I guess."

"What do you mean?"

"Slip the dope to Nick that if anything happened to Alan before the right time he'd better travel fast, far and frequent."

"And Nick would obey?"

Johnny laughed harshly. "Everybody obeys Andrew North."

"Well, I'm against it," Alan broke into the discussion, his voice curt and incisive. "I may be foolish—but I don't at all fancy the idea of running to North for protection."

"But, Alan—"

"Please! I'm rather insistent about this. Promise me that you will not go to North with this story."

She bowed her head before his new dominating manner.

"If you insist, Alan."

"If you promise, Johnny?"

"Yeh! But I didn't have any more brains than you—"

"That's settled then. And now suppose we fix supper."

All through the meal Beverly regarded the camera face of her husband with a new awe. Frightened as she was, she yet was glad of the evening's episode. Through her heart there ran the melody—

"He's a man—a man!"

Not was her brain idle. She was afraid of Nick Webb and she knew that miracles do not repeat. She knew, too, that while Nick was not lacking in courage—Alan would not be given an open chance the next time. She was thinking.

Later that night, after Johnny had gone to see Mae Desher, Alan and Beverly went for a walk. She seemed lost in the warm fur coat which shrouded her tiny figure, but she kept pace with his free, swinging stride.

They made their way to the lake front; the bitter wind of early winter lashed the usually placid waters into a chill and white-capped fury, but they breathed deeply of the cold air and finally her hand found his and snuggled into it. He smiled and put his own hand, with its precious burden, into the pocket of his overcoat.

Beverly knew that he did not want to discuss again the affair with Nick Webb, and so she did not broach the subject; but a new element had entered into their relationship and she made no effort to conceal it from him. Eventually she broke the gossamer silence:

"Yes, dear."

"I've begun to hope."

He looked down at her: at the oval face peeping up at him from the gray squirrel collar.

"For what, Beverly?"

"Us."

"That is wise, dear?" he questioned gravely.

"Why isn't it? Is it any more wise to bow to the inevitable? Doesn't that merely make it more inevitable? What happened—this afternoon—has made me see things differently. It has made me see you in a new light, for one thing."

You're not flimsy, floating, helplessly with the current; you can swim against it if you will."

"Yes—provided the current isn't too strong."

"No current is too strong. Oh, Alan! It isn't conceivable that our love must die before it has had its chance to mature. Life just doesn't run that way—and you mustn't let yourself believe that it does."

He pressed her hand as it lay warm within his in the depths of his overcoat pocket.

"I can't think of the future, Beverly. Not tonight. I can only think of the present and of us and of our love for one another. I can only know that we are together and that every minute is more wonderful than the last. I can only tell myself that no matter what the future holds—the present is perfect."

He heard the sigh which escaped her lips, heard it above the roaring wind-lashed waters, above the shriek of the gale through barren trees. Tragedy seemed far removed from them at the moment; far distant from these two healthy young persons who faced the first biting blasts of winter with heads thrown back and hearts unchilled.

They swung away from the lake and walked swiftly through a section of bungalows and apartment houses; homey places with darkened windows.

"It's only the present that counts, Beverly," he said at length. She shook her head slowly. "Not entirely, Alan. Tomorrow the present will be past. It is the future we must face—so that when it becomes the present we will be glad."

The following morning she went to Ellen. Clearly, concisely and without adornment, she told the story of the clash between her husband and Nick Webb. The buxom Ellen was even more amazed than Johnny had been—and she, too, shook her head.

"I wouldn't like to be in Mr. Alan's shoes."

"You think Nick will carry out his threat?"

"But he wouldn't dare—if Mr. North gave orders against it, would he?"

"No-o. I don't suppose he would."

Beverly laid her hand on Ellen's arm. "I know you're here, Ellen; we both understand. But aside from your sense of duty to North, you're fond of Mr. Beckwith and me, aren't you?"

"I'm crazy about the pair of you, Miss Beverly; that I am."

"Then do something for me; carry word of this affair to Mr. North and see that he sends out orders that his preserves are not to be poached upon."

"Hummm." Ellen hesitated, then smiled broadly. "I'll tell Squint and get him to pass it along to Mr. North. And unless I'm all wrong, Mr. North will notify Nick Webb that he'd better leave Mr. Beckwith be."

Impulsively Beverly flung her arms about the astonished cook and kissed her.

"Ellen," she said, "You're a perfect dear."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

WHO can take measure of great and small, what is worth nothing and what worth all? Who can be sure that the daffodil has not its mission no rose could fill? Wise men have written how was spoken or sung, scholars have told us how all forms change ever to other forms new and strange. Life moves forever, a wheel that whirls; life is an ocean that lifts and swirls; nothing is constant and great or small know but one certainty: change for all. Who can be sure that the part he plays, though it lack power and pride and praise, has not its worth, in the scheme of things matching the worth of the lords and kings?

SECRETS OF HEALTH AND SUCCESS

BY CHARLES A. L. REED, M.D. FORMER PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

YOUR interest is naturally attracted by anything relating to the possible cure of cancer.

The newspapers and medical journals for the last few months have contained many references to the treatment of that disease by the use of lead.

Before describing this recent work in the struggle against cancer, it is important for your protection and that of the public to point out emphatically that this treatment by lead is still very tentative and experimental.

The discoverers make no claim whatever that lead will "cure" cancer; they simply state certain results which have followed their treatment.

It will probably be years before the process is sufficiently understood to justify either its condemnation or its general use. The difficulties in its way may prove to be insuperable and for this reason no one who is unfortunate enough to suffer from cancer should for the present base any hope whatever upon it.

Here is what has so far been demonstrated:

It seems that the various malignant growths which are known by the general name of "cancer" will absorb lead more readily than any of the other tissues of the body, and that its influence on them is very hostile.

The trouble is to prepare lead in a form so fine that it will penetrate these tissues, and so "protected" that it will not poison the system.

After many experiments with more or less imperfect colloidal preparations of lead, the discoverers succeeded in making an electrical suspension of metallic lead in water with small quantities of gelatin and calcium chloride.

The larger particles are eliminated by whirling the solution at great speed, and the whole is sterilized by boiling. The finished preparation contains one-half of 1 per cent of metallic lead.

The object of using a colloidal preparation is to deliver the lead slowly to the highest bidder, as it were, among the body cells, which is believed to be the malignant cell.

The preparation is injected into a vein and remains in the blood stream for a considerable time before it is finally absorbed.

This is the only way to be sure that any remedy shall reach all the tissues of the body, for drugs swallowed or injected into the skin are not always absorbed.

The fatal dose of lead is only 3 of a grain, but it is possible to give about 3 of a grain in seven or eight doses during four months without any serious lasting consequences to the patient although many patients suffer from colic, vomiting and other unpleasant symptoms.

The discoverers were told by Dr. W. Blair Bell in the London Lancet, treated 227 patients, of whom nearly all had been condemned as hopeless and had tried nearly every other known method of treatment. To show how bad some of them were, 29 died before treatment could be started; 50 before it could be completed; 106 died after treatment, including two deaths from acute kidney diseases caused by lead poisoning. Four died because the lead destroyed

Home-Making Helps

Summer Gleanings.

WHEREVER vacation days lead us there is always something worth gleaning. Among the pines, we may gather the fragrant needles for pillow-making. Unbleached muslin bags the size we want may be filled, then set aside to allow the needles to dry and shrink, then refill until we have a bagful. The pillows may be made up when we get home.

Where the balsam firs grow, we are apt to find the beach plums growing also. These plums make delicious jam or jelly.

Perhaps on the trunks of old trees we can find large oddly shaped toadstools that we may detach, dry, paint and use as pin-cushions. Milkweed pods, after they burst, yield a lot of soft, silky-seeded material that may be used between the glasses used for the bottom of a tea tray. If prettily arranged the seeds are very attractive in appearance. The pods with seeds left in are frequently used in winter bouquets.

On roadsides where golden rod reaches perfection in plumed blossom heads, tie in bunches and hang them upside down to dry. This keeps the color which is their beauty. Down in the meadowland, you will find the large cattails that are very decorative; also the lovely pink flag blossoms, the delicate bunches of Princess feather and the lush grasses that have individual coloring all their own.

Wherever we go we are sure to find something of interest with which to brighten the winter home if we only look about us, and become friendly with some of the natives who are nature lovers.

Of those still living the fate of 14 is not yet known; nine refused to carry the treatment right through but are living normal lives. The disease was completely arrested in 10, and 21 were believed to be cured and their treatment discontinued.

In spite of these figures it is certain that those who initiate the treatment will be disappointed, as they will have a long series of failures before they get a good result.

These facts are to be taken into consideration by both patient and physician before recourse is had to a treatment that seems to have some scientific facts underlying it.

MAN'S CRYING NEED.
One of the greatest institutions of this age is the Woman's Magazine.

The Woman's Magazine and the Woman's Page contain all the vital news of the world. For instance, it is much more vital to know what to do for the baby's croup, than it is to know how the Rhineland case came out, or what Peggy Joyce is going to marry next.

It is far more vital to know how to get a husband, or how to get off the carpet or how to keep your nose from peeling, than it is to know that the President had his old straw hat cleaned again.

But, what this world really needs at this psychological moment is a MAN'S MAGAZINE, as I have already suggested several times.

There are hundreds of personal problems that men have to solve for themselves, all by their little lonies, when just a word of expert advice would save them hours of labor, worry and heart-aches were made. And and everybody's on edge.

At this time the magazine assistant put their heads together and came up with a trick on "The big one." "We'll have to say that he is ill and that he is of climate," they decided morning Mr. Black's fine and fit, and especially well groomed, and morning Mr. Black's manager, "what's the matter, approaching him with solicitude in his eyes?" queried Mr. Black, "think you are over eyes look tired and you right."

Black's face fell, and along came the expressed his concern of state of health. After another, the man in the secret, let Mr. Black had all the of illness. And before was over the poor man announced to the they would simply be stock without him that was going on a Western upstate.

Of course, no one attend that course of to anyone; but it is the power of suggestion not suggest health and good cheer and while you are suggesting just as potent and constructive than advice keep harping on the stiffness and the and all the rest of it along with every words around? Keep inconveniences and the remarking about the matters worse.

Barker the Seal

The dog that barks may never bite,
But still may give you quite a fright.

At a certain point on the beach there were many rocks. Some of these rocks went far out into the water, so that when the tide was high they were wholly covered. When the tide was low, some of them would be entirely out of the water and some would be partly covered with water. They were big rocks. Seaweed was attached to them and in among them lived all sorts of curious little seafolk. Both Jimmy Skunk and Reddy Fox had discovered that when the tide was out there sometimes could be found among the rocks things very good to eat. So at low tide they were in the habit of going down there to see what they could find.

It happened one night that Reddy Fox was poking about among these rocks clear down to the water's edge. Beyond him he could see the flat tops of great rocks standing in the water, but he paid no attention to these. They didn't interest him in the least. He couldn't get out on them, so why think about it?

He had just found a fish that had been washed ashore. It looked like a very good fish. Reddy opened his mouth to pick it up, when suddenly there was a sharp bark right behind him. Reddy didn't even take time to look. He didn't pick up the fish.

Away he raced up the beach as fast as his legs could take him. Several times he heard that bark and each time he heard it he tried to run a little faster. When he was safely up back of a sand dune he stopped to listen. At first he heard no sound. Then he heard that barking again far away. Reddy crept back to the top of the sand dune. You should have seen how crafty he was. As he got near the edge he flattened himself right down on the sand and crawled. He crawled until he was right behind a little bunch of coarse, stiff grass growing on the very edge of the sand dune. He peeped between the blades of grass. It was bright moonlight. He could see almost as well as if it were daylight. No dog was

and this time he saw the stranger open his mouth. He knew then who it was that had fooled him. At least, he knew it was this stranger who had fooled him. The stranger flopped clumsily across the rock and suddenly slipped into the water. Reddy saw that round head moving swiftly above the
